SUMMARY.

The Allies have made marked progress north of the Yser, where they drove back the enemy and inflicted heavy losses.

The Germans again employed asphyxiating gases, but the Belgians and French successfully devised means for protection.

The French Embassy states that the British stopped two attacks debouching from Passchendaele and Brodsunder.

The Germans have captured Saint Julien, north-east of Ypres. An English airman destroyed the railway junction at Courtrai.

Bringing up large reinforcements, the enemy have tried repeatedly to break through between Boesinghe and Zudschoote.

It is believed that they have the largest concentration of artillery of the present war, including 17-inch howitzers.

Sir John French reports that the general situation north-east of Ypres is unchanged. Our left flank is readjusting the line.

At Lizerne the river channel and the adjoining village were piled a yard high with German dead.

On Sunday night the French and Belgians began a counter-attack between Pilkem and Saint Julien, and are still fighting.

The entire New York press denounces Germany's resort to the use of asphyxiating gases.

The Paris "Journal des Debats" calls on the military to adopt immediate reprisals against the enemy.

After an extremely fierce bombardment the Germans succeeded in setting foot on the summit of Hartmann's Weilerkopf, in Alsace.

A "Daily Chronicle" correspondent at Lemberg says that Hill 992 has earned the title of Golgotha.

Since the Austro-German forces attempted to dislodge the Russians the Germans alone have lost 20,000 men.

The Austro-Germans captured the hill, but the Russians still hold Kosiowa and the gateway to the plains.

They could retake the hill, but in view of their general position it is not worth the cost.

The general attack on the Dardanelles was resumed on Sunday, the army disembarking along the Gallipoli Peninsula.

Despite strong opposition by a well-entrenched enemy a large force was established ashore before nightfall.

A declaration in the "Corriere d'Italia" says that Italy has been in communication with London.

Her rights in Trente, Trieste, and the Dalmatian Archipelago have been formally recognised.

It is also stated that Italo-Serbian interests have also been reconciled, even in the Adriatic.

There is an increasing agitation at Italian universities against German professors. At Pisa a students' demonstration took place.

Italian police arrested several German officers at Cremona trying to blow up the bridge over the Po.

According to the "Echo de Paris" an agreement between Italy and the Entente is near conclusion.

King Ferdinand of Bulgaria has granted an amnesty to all officers sentenced after the Balkan war.

He visited Dedeagatch and congratulated the commandants on the troops' fine appearance at Xanthi and Gumuljina.

The Belgian National Relief Committee appeals for half a million sterling a month for the utterly destitute.

Astounding revelations result from an investigation into French war charities.

Out of 147 societies in the department of the Seine 76 were fraudulent, many being founded by ex-prisoners.

The visiting State Governors were entertained at a banquet in the Town Hall by the Lord Mayor last evening.

Mr. Flowers yesterday resigned his position of Vice-President of the Executive Council and Minister for Public Health.

He has been appointed President of the Legislative Council, in succession to the late Sir Francis Suttor.

Mr. J. D. Fitzgerald was appointed Vice-President of the Executive Council and Government representative.

Mr. Black, Chief Secretary, was also sworn in as Minister for Public Health.

Mr. Cann explained yesterday that the proposal for a road round Farm Cove was not a definite one.

His own view was in favour merely of reclaiming part of Farm Cove, making deep water right up to the wall.

Further discussion regarding the Agent-Generalship was carried on by the State Cabinet yesterday, without any decision.

All that the Premier would say of the candidates subsequently was that there were five or six.

The State Cabinet yesterday decided that the Land Super-tax Bill will be introduced early next session.

The Premier said it was in the interests of closer settlement, and was an issue raised last election.

It has been decided that Civil servants with salaries less than £200 are to be allowed due increments.

Difficulties have arisen in regard to the steam trawlers which were recently bought by the Government.

They cost £30,000, but no definite scheme was prepared into which they can be fitted, and no depots were established.

At Melbourne yesterday a conference of the Federal Grand Labour Council was opened.

M. Henri Verbrugghen, chief of the Glasgow Choral and Orchestral Union, has been offered the State Conservatorium directorship.

H.M.A.S. Encounter has captured the German island trading steamer Elfriede in the Pacific.

Senator Pearce yesterday stated that this was the last of the German ships out of port.

The works committee of the City Council yesterday considered the legal opinion on the question of St. Mary's approach.

It was decided to take the opinion of senior counsel on the motion of Alderman M'Elhone.

Sir Gerald Strickland presided at the annual meeting yesterday of the Sydney Industrial Blind Institution.

Sir Anderson Stuart said the free circulating library of embossed books was perhaps the largest in the world.

For the first time in Braille journalism 3500 daily war bulletins had been published and distributed.

Yesterday's turnover on the Stock Exchange was an improvement on the transactions of the previous day.

A fair number of sales were recorded at slightly firmer prices.

A slightly better tone prevailed yesterday in the mining section.

It showed itself in a little more business being transacted, while sales were conducted at steady rates.

Egg supplies in Sussex-street yesterday were again very small, and best samples fetched 2s 6d to 2s 7d a dozen.

It is generally believed that values have reached the highest figure to which they are likely to go this season.

The price of onions was reduced another 10s a ton. Best quality bulbs were offered at £7 a ton.

There was a fairly good inquiry for potatoes. Tasmanian oaten chaff brought £8 to £8 5s a ton.

During the last fortnight Java coffees have risen 23s a ton.

Owing to the high prices of oats, millers are not pushing the sale of oatmeal.

Linseed oil is rather easier following on the news of the prohibition of export to foreign countries by Great Britain.

The wool sale position has not improved so far as the associated brokers and buyers are concerned.

No solution was found at meetings of the Wool-selling Brokers' Association and the Buyers' Association yesterday.

Two non-associated firms, however, propose to submit catalogues totalling some 5000 bales next Thursday.

Forecast.—Fine throughout, with cold, frosty night; southerly winds chiefly; rough seas on the North Coast.

TWO WEEKS IN SAN FRANCISCO.
THE PANAMA-PACIFIC EXPOSITION
is now open. Forty-one Nations represented at the Exposition emphasises its International Character. It is the most colossal of Expositions the world has ever seen; and its interest to the man of business and to the tourist is something that may not be duplicated for many years. Like Niagara Falls, this great Exposition, which has taken years to prepare, cannot be adequately described, but we have literature on its wonders which will be sent to you on application.

SEVEN WEEKS IN ALL.
Approximately from Sydney to San Francisco and back occupies 7 weeks—5 at sea, 2 on shore. In these 2 weeks you can see the Exposition, the Yosemite Valley, the Grand Canyon, Rocky Mtns., etc. No other line has so fast a time-table; but our return tickets are interchangeable with the other trans-Pacific Companies. Our route is via Honolulu going; Honolulu and Samoa returning.

LONDON IN 29 DAYS.
The great war has made little difference on our time to London. In conjunction with the Trans-Atlantic "Siers," we are landing Australian passengers in London in less than one month.

HOUSES AND LAND FOR SALE.

COME AND GROW RICH IN HABERFIELD.

The man or woman who becomes wealthy to-day must either discover gold, strike oil, or buy real estate
in a growing community, and sell when the price goes up. Nearly everyone knows the history of the growth of Haberfield and the rapid rise
in real estate values.

The reason is not far to seek. Haberfield is such an out-of-the-ordinary suburb. A run through it in a tram car is sufficient to convince any man of its advantage and its future.

HABERFIELD HOMES ARE UNIQUE IN DESIGN,

a pleasure to live in, and attractive in appearance. They give you far more for your money than it is possible to obtain elsewhere.
Then, apart from the question of Haberfield being a good place in which to live, comes the question of your personal money gain.
The terms of purchase are so easy that you should be able to own your own home at Haberfield, and STOP PAYING RENT FOR EVER.
Think how much you pay out each year for rent—that same money would be better employed in paying off for a home of your own.

£50 DEPOSIT

is all we require to give you possession of one of the beautiful Bungalows in this Garden Suburb. The Title is Torrens, and we give you your certificate of Title immediately, if you so desire.
Each week you pay 25/ to 30/ until the balance of purchase money is repaid. Interest is calculated at the very low rate of 5 per cent.
SEVERAL HOMES ARE NOW READY,
£890 TO £1450.
Come out any day and look round this bright, well laid-out Modern Suburb. Call at our Haberfield Office, and we'll gladly take you by motor.

Interesting Booklets are free for the asking from any of our offices.

A NEW INVENTION.
One of the most practical and useful of all New Inventions exhibited at the Royal Easter Show is a SELF-LOCKING ALL-STEEL FENCE, built with the Rawson Moody Patent Self-locking All-Steel Gate and Straining Posts, Holdfast Standards and Droppers, with No. 8 Galvanised Wire.
This new fence possesses many big advantages over all other present methods of fence constructions, being much stronger and cheaper than wooden fences, yet only 25 per cent. the weight of a wooden post fence of anything near the same strength; and this at a cost of only 12/6 per chain.
It is very simple in design and easy to erect. Two men can erect half a mile per day, and when so erected it will last a lifetime.
It is being used by the N.S.W. Government, leading Pastoralists, Farmers, and men with large and small areas, with much success, and is now recognised by experts and users as the greatest fencing invention on record.
Those intending fencing in their properties should write for a catalogue, or call on the Rawson Moody Manufacturing Coy., 343 Kent-street, where a fully erected fence can be seen, and will be shown with pleasure to all interested callers.

ECONOMY AS AN ART.

The "Blue Book" consisting of the sectional report by Mr. Carmichael, as Commissioner regarding agricultural schools, etc., touches women's interest in a very decided way. The ex-Minister in one paragraph, where he urges that the consolidation of his proposed rural day schools would be beneficial to girls, who could take cookery and home needlework courses, jam and preserve making, the growing of fruit and vegetables—studies chiefly directed to making the farm profitable. There is much more to it than just this short summary, but this little list will serve to show in what direction education is tending. Technical education for girls in its best and truest sense must include every art and science that leads to improved methods of housekeeping and, in a wider area, farming on its domestic side. Nothing is more characteristic of this present time than is the increased respect paid to what is roughtly called domestic science, not only by men who have always regarded it in the "magnificent because unknown" aspect, but by women who too long have had for it the familiarity which invariably breeds contempt. Men look upon it on the ideal side, and women on the real side.

Science deals with reality to its n-th. To increase efficiency, to eliminate waste, to cause routine to run like clockwork without one nerve-destroying hitch, to be cognisant of every matter affecting family comfort and family well-being; this is the aim of domestic science, or, to call it by its proper and shorter name "economy"—for economy means literally house management and nothing else. The State is doing something in this line. The "Blue Book" just referred to shows an effort which will probably have results. The great aim of many enthusiasts is to get a Chair of Domestic Science at the University. This would indeed be a fairy tale of science. It would be Cinderella, the kitchen wench going to the ball. But stranger things have happened, though this event is not likely to happen just at once. If the once promised college of domestic science, for which the vote on the Estimates was allowed to lapse, had ever been got going, it would then be time enough to think of endowing a Chair. But we are certainly coming more into line, woman by woman, on this question. It was once considered a mark of intellectual superiority to care nothing for house management. Now women are taking to it with the zest that belongs to doing the correct thing. An amusing letter from a soldier, lately published, describes the writer (who was wounded) eating "bacon very well cooked by a lady whose usual occupation is writing excellent novels." In the home also, the bacon is none the worse cooked because the cook is educated, nor does a "light literary touch" necessarily imply a heavy hand with pastry.

But science is a cold word. It is not at all comforting, like Mesopotamia. What then is the magic muttering that will make economy glow with life, and become interesting, and so to speak, pretty? "Art" is the password. When economy is treated as an art and not as a science, then it becomes part and parcel of woman's life, and adds a charm of its own, which nothing else can impart. This aspect is brought out most clearly and forcibly by a letter written for the "Times Weekly" edition by the paper's Fashion Contributor in Paris. The contributor pens a most appreciative tribute to the genius of the Frenchwoman for making the best and the most of the common things around her. Since the war, the Parisian woman has had to practise economy in its straitest and most inconvenient form. But such is her art that she manages to be graceful, and to concede nothing to the grim ugliness of poverty as long as she can possibly manage. The little personal daintinesses, so dear to her heart, are the last things she will let go, and this not in a selfish way, but because of her intense perception of the art of living. Then she is such a manager. "Nothing is wasted," declares the contributor, every crust, every scrap is turned to account. The Frenchwoman of whatever rank keeps her children well fed, well clothed, and well brought up. Both in the city and in the country the women of France to-day are helping to save Europe, because they can so ably play their part. The reason of all this efficiency is to be found in the simple statement, Every Frenchwoman can cook, and every Frenchwoman can sew.

HOSPITAL SATURDAY.

What are we going to do about Hospital Saturday? The familiar appeal has come around again, and we are taken this year "all standing," as the sailors say. The scarlet posters, with their vivid "Help, help," gave us a gasp of surprise when they decorated the city the other day. "Can it possibly be Hospital Saturday so soon?" we asked each other, in surprise. Yet, looking back it seems a century since May, 1914. We must put on our considering caps and contrive a substantial donation, as usual. Oh, dear no; it will never do to excuse ourselves by murmuring about "war funds." The hospitals keep on all the time, war or no war. Even now the calico booths for Saturday's onslaught are being tacked together, and the rattle of those irrepressible collecting boxes is almost in one's ears. We must take a thought, and just do without some thing if we cannot manage to give in any other way. Let us try and make this a record year. It would cause a small sensation in Berlin if it were to come to pass that the citizens of Sydney were so prosperous that they could afford to make a record Hospital Saturday collection during war time. The moral effect would be splendid.

A WELL-LOVED TEACHER.

Miss Kate Ryan, who recently retired from the position of head mistress of Newtown Superior Public Girls' School, after occupying that position for 20 years, has a record of 51 years as a Public school teacher, and among the thousands of girls who have enjoyed the benefit of her teaching, counsel, example, and personality, there is not one who is not proud to say she was a pupil of Miss Ryan; for all grew to realise later in life, if not during school days, the value of her advice, quiet demeanour, great amiability and sense of humour. An "old girl" recalls how Miss Ryan's ready sympathy was frequently shown when troubles were brought to her by the school girls. Miss Ryan never failed to help; also in cases of sickness her kindness was unfailing, and many a senior scholar enjoyed a smile when she would notice the head mistress listening to a tale of aches and pains from one of the little ones, the unvarying remedy being castor oil. She was always very considerate, and gave the child 3d "to buy something to take the taste away."

A former pupil, now an old lady, was heard to say, "She taught all my eight, and all theirs, and if there were any more she'd get them also."

Among the girls of Newtown School Miss Ryan's name is fondly honoured. The ex-pupils have formed an old girls' union with Miss Ryan as president, the intention being to keep in touch with each other.

FROM NEAR AND FAR.

The projected Belgium Day, May 14, has caught the public interest, so much so that letters and promises continue to pour in daily to the organisers of the movement, from people desiring to help. Specially gratifying is the manner in which the women of Sydney and suburbs are coming forward, almost every letter conveying eager desire to assist in some special way. For the information of those ladies who may have missed the first appeal, it may be pointed out that the organisers will be glad to receive the names of those who will enrol as street collectors, for the day or evening. Also will there be required almost an unlimited number of rosettes, favours, button-holes, flags, and buttons, which will be sold in for the benefit of the fund, on the same day. Ladies willing to make and contribute these items should send in their names without delay to the joint hon. secretaries, Natonal Belgian Relief Fund, Challis House, Moore-street, city.

To obtain money for the starving Belgians some of the junior pupils of the Rangers College, Mosman, bought up a number of penny dolls, dressed them daintily from odds and ends, and with a few dolls' clothes, penny toys, and sweets, made a brisk sale, clearing every article in half an hour among some of their little school mates. The highest priced article cost 9d, and was put up to auction 'mid much excitement.

Miss Marjorie Black, hon. secretary of "Everybody's Club," organised a social evening at the Y.W.C.A. rooms on Saturday, in which equal numbers of the club members and Y.M.C.A. members took part. About 50 were present altogether, and a very pleasant time was spent in games, music, and recitations.

To raise funds for a travelling kitchen, a meeting was called on March 26 by Mrs. Ralston, at her residence, Kooragama, Wentworth-street, Strathfield, when it was decided to hold a garden fete at the above residence on May 15. The fete is under the patronage of Lady Edeline Strickland, and will be opened by Lady Cullen.

Mrs. George Earp has received quite a number of valuable objects for the auction sale at the matinee in aid of the Polish Relief Fund, to be held at the Little Theatre on Friday next. Lady Anderson Stuart has sent a beautiful woolwork tapestry picture in a papier-mache frame. Mr. Jira has given a fine piece of fiery light opal for a pendant. Misses Hollander have presented two pictures, Messrs. Beard, Watson, a beautiful cushion, Misses Earp a red enamel watch, and Mrs. Wilkins, of Port Macquarie, a gold bangle.

For the past five months the Marquis and Marchioness of Bath have given up a great part of their estate, Longleat, for the benefit of wounded and sick soldiers, both English and Belgian. The mansion, which was built in the sixteenth century, stands in the centre of a beautifully wooded park. Not far from the house is "Heaven's Gate," a favourite resort for all who love the charm of English scenery. Here tradition says that Bishop Ken wrote the well-known morning and evening hymns, "Awake, my soul, and with the sun," and "Glory to Thee, my God, this night." The stillness around Longleat is remarkable, the only sounds which disturb the silence being the shrill shriek of the pheasant and the distant rumbling of the guns from Salisbury Plain.

Under the Austrian regulations, soldiers' marriages can be celebrated without the bridegroom's presence, if he writes from the trenches desiring it.

* * * * *

Motoring for women is now looked upon as a profession to be taken seriously. Miss Gladys de Havilland, the well-known lady motorist, and the only motor saleswoman in the world, recently gave her opinion in the "Pall Mall Gazette" that there is no reason why women should not competently replace the men who have gone to the front on transport work, leaving motor vans and lorries without drivers. It is becoming increasingly difficult to replace them by other men motorists. The motor woman's dress should be a coat and skirt of feather-weight mackintosh, as grease and dirt can be wiped off it. To go with this a sou'-wester hat of a shade to suit the wearer. For foot-gear shoes and spats are preferable to boots, on account of the use of the clutch, which forces the driver to raise the foot, and boots cut the instep. In our local shops they keep a special make of this material—cashmerette is the technical name—for making motorists' garments. It is a very serviceable colour, and has a workman-like look that recommends it as an ideal material for coats and skirts, not only for motoring, but for driving on dusty country roads.

THE OLD SEWING MACHINE.

For 30 years it had stood and whirled and buzzed in its corner of the sewing-room. The homestead had rambled in many directions, as old country houses do, but the living-room had known but one change of name, and that one sewing-room it retained by virtue of its brightness and airiness by common consent. Now, to the infinite joy of the girls, a new sewing-machine was to arrive that day, and the old one would retire from active duty, and amidst quite a bustle it was being pushed into the box-room till it could be disposed of, so they said.

The mother joined in the general rejoicing and lent a helping hand, but presently when she was alone beside that old friend, which the others so easily put aside, she touched the scratched cover and the works that required so much coaxing, with a gentle hand. She knew that she would never love the new machine as much as the faithful comrade.

The comfortable home faded and instead stood three compact rooms, to which she had come a bride. In the first unpacking of necessity, the machine had been placed in the living-room, and there she had spent many hours alone with it.

A busy housewife from the first, even the tenderest and daintiest garments woman makes—her baby's clothes—she had been compelled to make with its aid. Then for some years it seemed as if those wheels must constantly have turned for her family of boys and girls—seven children full of life and energy, who were always needing new clothes. But what did that matter, when their limbs were straight and strong, and rosy cheeks glowed with health?

Then finer clothing, as her lassies went to school, and at the same time the boys brought 'possum and wallaby skins tanned by themselves which mother must join for rugs—and the old machine had managed that, too.

Only a year ago, but dint of careful use and oiling and much coaxing, more dainty tucks and stitchery had been produced, for the eldest daughter, who had flown from the old nest to her own roof-tree.

Then, through the last grey months, the list of soldier comforts and necessities for her own two sons and others, had seemed to overcome that faithful friend, and its day of usefulness was over. But the mother resolved to keep a quiet corner for it as long as she had a home, for the old sewing-machine could recall memories, and summon dreams to her, both sad and sweet.

BROWNIE.

WHY WOMEN WORK.

The "pocket money worker," who for so long a time has been a bogey to frighten off inquirers into the fields of women's industries, has been shown to be largely a myth. There are still many women who do a little real work of sorts in order to increase their pocket money, and not from a real necessity or from the prompting of a feeling that this world is a place for active service, and not for loafing, but such triflers are very few, so few that they do not affect the statistics of women's employment. The above fact has been brought out in a report to which the "Times" recently gave prominence. The Fabian Women's Society instituted an inquiry ranging over two years and covering every trade and profession open to women, and this brought to light that 51 per cent., more than half of 4000 typical cases, were supporting others besides themselves, and 80 per cent. were entirely self-supporting, leaving a small percentage depending on others for partial support.

A TOQUE OF NIGER BROWN VELOURS.

This report was concerned only with peace conditions, and, although not an Australian finding, it answers pretty well to what goes on here in peace conditions. The Australian young woman is an independent person, and likes to have her own money to spend, and her own way in spending it. We have been hearing recently of the "typists' rush," and the phrase sets us thinking of the women typists, the army of business girls and women who pour into the city in the morning and out of it again in the evening. They march southwards from the Quay and northwards from the Railway Station. They are interesting to watch, because they all look so purposeful and capable. Some take trams, but the majority appear to walk, for they stream along until the big frowning warehouses, shops, and offices swallow them one by one, or dozen by dozen, or score by score. All very much alike in that they are all wage-earners, or "salary" earners, yet how great is the difference between the high and mighty department-head or buyer, or confidential secretary, and the little apprentices, with their hair tied behind in a big black glace bow, and their tight skirts only half way between knee and ankle. But they are all workers and all self-supporting, or on the way to be so; not a girl of them is out "for fun." It is downright business. They all dress alike, too. Some of them are neat, and a very few are careless and untidy, but when Jap silk blouses are in, they all wear Jap silk blouses; when narrow moire ribbon ties are the last word of fashion, then they all show this finishing touch; when neckbands went out, every neck was bared to the summer breezes; when furs are worn, then necklets, muffs, and stoles are displayed to great satisfaction.

"Do you see these hats?" observed a city shopkeeper, indicating with a wave of his hand a tempting pile of the "very latest" in felt headgear. "Well, they will all be gone this time to-morrow. I am featuring them to-day, and the business girls will buy every one of them." And so they did; those felt hats are now scattered far and wide, and may be met on tram, and boat, and train. They are all alike in many ways, our women, who work in the city, and they all have the same reason for working. They all want the money. "Women's work!" sometimes a haughty masculine person exclaims, "What is it worth?" The obvious answer that it is worth board and lodging to most does not altogether please a critic of this kind, and he tries hard to make himself believe that women only work for pocket-money.

Before the war, there used to be much discussion about what women should do, and what they should not do, for a living. It seemed rather cruel to dictate to any woman, who had the necessity of keeping herself forced upon her, that she must only do certain things in an uncertain way, the training being often absent. "Surely," some of the doubters used to say to themselves, "if a woman must earn her own bread, it is only fair to let her choose her own way of doing it as long as she does not steal the bread or the means of buying the loaf." But those thoughts belonged to the prehistoric past of nine months ago. Women are replacing men in all kinds of employment. We do not see much of this substitution in Australia, though there are many instances of a woman carrying on in her husband's or her brother's place. But if many more of our men go, as go they must, these instances will be multiplied. We can all of us call to mind women friends or acquaintances who are doing just that. The wife of a pastoralist in another State is quietly preparing to take full charge in the absence of her husband, who holds a command in the expeditionary force. She will look after the homestead and her family of five children, supervise a dozen station hands, in consultation with the overseer, keep the books, and give out the stores. At the other end of the social scale, a small tradesman has left his shop to be looked after by an assistant, a capable middle-aged spinster, who works from early morning till late at night, in order to get round all that must be done in the shop and the house; she keeps the customers with her brisk, cheerful manner, and her cash register rings all day long. Helping the country in the truest sense are women who thus fill an absent man's place and keep the wheels going round till he comes back again.

We must face a dreadful possibility—nay, a certainty. Those splendid men whom we all admired in the march on Saturday—they are all going, sooner or later, to sail away from Australia to fight. They are only a few. All over the country there are camps, and men marching and training—for what? To go away and fight. They will not all come back. Then will be the time when we women must show the stuff we are made of. There will be many unusual tasks that we shall be called upon to perform. We can show then that we work not only to support ourselves, but to do the best that is in us for our country.

AN OLD DIARY.

As interest is at present focussed round Port Macquarie district owing to the opening of the railway to Wauchope, some extracts from the diary of the late Mrs. A. A. C. D. Boswell may give an insight into social and domestic life in the infancy of the settlement. Mrs. Boswell was the niece of Major A. C. Innes, the chief police magistrate of Port Macquarie during the 'Thirties and 'Forties of last century. Her life in Port Macquarie extended over several years, her first visit being in 1839, and her return in 1843, when she remained until the early years of the 'Fifties. She speaks of the trip on a return voyage to Sydney as being made in "a tiny sailing vessel, the Elizabeth Cohen, crowded with passengers, and sick and miserable we all were. Two people played cribbage loud and long in the cabin, off which our little den opened. It took two days for the voyage." In 1843 there was one weekly steamer to Port Macquarie, which put in at Newcastle for coal by the way. The beautiful old mansion at Lake Innes, about seven miles out of the immediate town, is described: "My room opened from the school-room, and below it was the china-room, which was entered from the back court, the whole surmounted by a square room called the "look-out," the upper part of each side being of glass, and each afforded a wide view. To the north we looked over the flower garden to a thickly-wooded and level tract of country through which lay the road to Port Macquarie. To the south in the distance lay Camden Haven; to the east the hill between us and the sea, on which stood the flagstaff; to the west the beautiful sunlit lake, with lovely hills in the distance. The house consisted of 22 rooms, all well furnished. My uncle loved to keep open house, and to share with others the good things that fortune showered upon him. One of my uncle's pleasures was to send a horse at once to any new arrival in the township, to be used as long as required, which was a great boon to some of the young officers stationed at the port. Once a man wrote, and said the horse did not suit him, and described the kind of horse he wanted, when my uncle only laughed, and sent another; but the story got about somehow."

The fashion of sending to China for a specially-designed and painted dinner set was a custom among the richest colonists; and Mrs. Boswel mentions that Major Innes, in the good times of 1840, sent for a "really magnificent set of Chinese china made to order, which comprised dinner and dessert, breakfast, tea, and coffee sets; also hot-water plates and three large and beautiful bowls, the Innes crest being in colours on each piece." Some of this splendid china found its way into a Sydney auction room lately, and brought a high price as historic ware. In June, 1843, the election of members took place for the first Legislative Council of New South Wales. Mr. Alex. Macleay, the late Colonial Secretary, was one of the candidates for the counties, in which Port Macquarie was included. Major Innes entertained him, and went to Sydney with him. "A terrible storm came on, and we had a wakeful night, thinking of the travellers in that fierce gale in a small steamer. With them came Mr. Gray and Colonel Gordon, who was in the engineers, and lately succeeded Colonel Barney as Government Engineer-in-Chief. In honour of Mr. Macleay, an old retainer, Bruce, played the bagpipes, and after dinner the late Colonial Secretary showed us an old country dance called 'The Country Bumpkin.' Besides the already-mentioned guests there were Captain Jobling, Dr. Carlysle, Mr. Acroyd, Mr. Evans, Colonel Gray, Mr. Salwey, and Dr. Richardson present." At the first dinner party Mrs. Boswell says Captain Wauch, Captain Jobling, Mr. Montgomerie, and Mr. Purves were among the guests. Some of these names belonging to present-day New South Welshmen recall memories of their pioneer ancestors.

The description of the triumphant march round the town of the favourite candidate, Mr. Macleay, is too long to be given in full, but everyone wore pink flowers; the bagpipes played, and before the four carriages that took the party from Lake Innes into the township rode six horsemen bearing flags. "An admiring crowd of natives, profusely decorated with pink calico, looked very gay. A cold luncheon was given by the Mayor to celebrate the event, and by a happy coincidence," says the narrator, "it happened to be Mr. Macleay's 80th birthday."

Some years later, the visit of Sir Charles Fitzroy and Lady Fitzroy took place, when the new Governor determined to visit all the settlements in the colony, establishing a precedent in that respect, as former vice-royalties had done very little travelling beyond the districts around Sydney as a whole. They arrived at Port Macquarie earlier than was originally arranged, landing in the port February 14, 1847, instead of March, so that even the champagne intended for the luncheon had not arrived. "Aunt Barbara Macleay and Mr. William Macleay, however, came first, and we were soon busy in preparations, and half buried in curtains, which were of clean book muslin, the hems bound or lined with glazed calico of different colours in each room. The party from Sydney consisted of his Excellency, who is immensely tall and stout, Lady Mary, who is also very tall and stout, and has but slight remains of the good looks for which she had been remarkable; Mr. George Fitzroy, their son, tall, slight, and good looking; Colonel Munday, Adjutant-General, a gentlemanly looking little man; Dr. and Mrs. Dawson. The dinner party also had of local people Mr. Woodward, Mr. Wright, Dr. Gaamack, Mr. Grey, Mr. Massey, and Mr. Taylor. Mr. Gray sat at the head of the table, Mr. M'Kay at the foot, it being the fashion for the lady and gentleman of the house to sit at the sides, in the centre, with the chief guest at either hand."

Mrs. Boswell says that Lady Mary Fitzroy was very busy making articles for the School of Industry bazaar. "We are threatened with two conflicting manias, one for fancy work, the other for the polka—a new dance—for not to know it argues yourself unknown." Several descriptions of dresses worn for parties and picnics are given in the diary, and perhaps the best pen-picture of what the ill-fated Lady Mary Fitzroy was like, and what a noble, intellectual character she possessed. The anniversary of her wedding day was celebrated by a picnic, and in the afternoons and evenings great work parties gathered round her, she sitting in what the writer calls the "flirting" chair. Lady Mary would tell stories of the Governor's rule in Antigua, when there was a terrible earthquake. She read to the party, played all the new music, and gave advice in fashion, introducing the new stiff petticoat, the precursor of the crinoline, to the bevy of young ladies. Later in the year, a visit to Government House, Parramatta, was paid by the young writer, and in December she records hearing with deep sadness of the dreadful carriage accident at Parramatta.

The wreck of the Wanderer on the bar of Port Macquarie, and the death of its owner, Mr. Ben Boyd, by the natives of one of the Solomon Group is mentioned in the diary, and as most of the party were known personally it made a great impression at Port Macquarie, although all the crew were saved. Mrs. Boswell died last year in Scotland, at a very advanced age, her diary having been published privately for her relations and friends; but as an interesting record of many events of early days, and the mention of many of the principal personages of her times, it is also of considerable general value.

SOME COOKERY NOTES.

A lady took to the rooms of the French-Australian League on Monday a little loaf for afternoon tea, which all the workers enjoyed very much. She had made it herself in a gas oven, and naturally all the women were keen on getting the recipe, which she willingly gave them. Here it is:—Take two generous cupfuls of flour and a little salt. Have ready prepared the mashed inside of a baked sweet potato, and about an equal quantity of plain boiled mashed potato. Add two teaspoonsful of cream of tartar, and one of carbonate of soda; mix all together, add a lump of butter, the size of a small hen egg, and then stir in a well-beaten egg, and enough water to make a dough. Knead lightly and slightly, and bake in a quick oven. When nearly done, take out, and butter the top of the loaf. This makes a nice soft crust. When browned the loaf is done. Too much cooking will turn the crumb of a soda loaf brown.

Concerning casseroles, a friend tells me that the cost of a casserole itself was for some time a bar to her using one, but that there is a very good local make on the market at a much lower price than the cost of the imported ware. It answers all casserole purposes admirably. She makes a paste of flour and water, and with it seals the lid of the casserole, to prevent the steam escaping as it does around the loosely fitting lid. There is a vent hole for steam in the lid, which is sufficient for the escape. A much better favour results when the lid is sealed on, and also the paste answers the purpose of a guide to the oven heat. For if it blackens at once the oven is too hot, if it is browning too quickly, turn down the gas. The casserole requires a moderate oven. A useful casserole may be made of two pie dishes (earthenware or enamel), one slightly smaller than the other, is used reversed, as a lid, and the join is sealed up with paste, leaving a little opening for a vent.

THE LATEST COAT AND SKIRT.

Mr. Geo. Black's remarks about common fish would be much more valuable if he would give some recipes for cooking the despised catfish, etc. Still, many housewives would willingly back up the new Chief-Secretary in his assertion that some of the "common" fish make excellent eating if properly cooked. For that reason they would be glad to have instruction on the point (as the legal folk phrase it). Many, and many a small boy brings home a catch of leather johnnies (or leather jackets), as the spoil of a Sunday afternoon's fishing, and gets his mother to fry them for tea. Very nice they are too, when properly cooked. They should be plunged in boiling water, and the tough skin removed, then fried and drained in the usual way. The small boy's "leathery" is invariably a "bantam," but the small fish seem to be the sweeter. They are quite as nice as flounder, or, perhaps, we only think them so after a sleepy afternoon spent fishing from the boat on the quiet river reaches, with mother acting subsequently as chief cook on the maid's "Sunday out." Those shoals of tiny fish, pilchards as most call them, which have lately been seen in the harbour, may figure as whitebait when done with a well seasoned sauce, and served very hot, either in separate dishes or as a scollop. The fish supply in the suburbs is anything but satisfactory, and it is fervently to be hoped that all the recent agitation will result in making fish even a little cheaper, and easier to come by.

Cape gooseberries and yellow guavas are in, and though to only a few is the tartness of the Cape gooseberry agreeable, yet the fruit may be made into a preserve, by removing the outer husk and boiling the fruit in a thick syrup; when the syrup boils up it should be gently simmered until the fruit is tender. Guava jam is made by cutting the fruit in half, and taking out the pulp. A few of the skins should be boiled, and added to the pulp, which is boiled in the ordinary way, with sugar. The jam is rather sickly, and a little of it "goes a long way." Guava jelly is made from the small red fruit, something like a lilli pilli. Can any correspondent tell me if the latter is ever used for jelly. The large purple lilli pilli berry, which is just now looking so handsome, ought to make a good preserve.

TABLE NAPKIN COVERS.

On folding up a napkin after its use it is easy to slip it into an oblong case of linen, with initials on the outside flap, which closes with two snap fasteners. For two napkin cases, take a quarter yard of yard-wide linen, and cut it in two lengthwise. These pieces, measuring 18 inches by 9, are first to be finished with a quarter-inch hem on all four sides. This may be quickly done on a sewing machine, but it is quite worth while to draw threads and hemstitch it. Now measure from one end 7 inches, and turn it up for the pocket, fastening the sides together with neat overstitch. The rest of the strip forms the flap, on which may be embroidered the initials of the owner.

PENELOPE'S WEEKLY NOTES.

The best suburban eggs have this week reached the alarming price of 2/10 a dozen, and are so scarce as to be almost unobtainable in several localities. The butter and egg man, pursuing his avocation of gathering newly-laid eggs from suburban housekeepers who have them to spare, or, to be more correct, who contrive to spare them to sell to other suburban housekeepers anxious to buy them, has frequently of late arrived at his customers' houses with butter only for his stock in trade, announcing cheerfully: "No eggs to-day—and I don't know when there will be any."

A scarcity is to be expected at this time of year, but this year it is something more than a mere matter of season. Housekeepers who hitherto have been accustomed to eking out their weekly allowances by disposing of their eggs to their butterman are now so startled at the high price of maize, and, indeed of all poultry feed, that they are killing off a large proportion of their stock. And as week by week this backyard slaughter goes on so is there ever less prospect of our egg market recovering a healthy tone, for the suburban egg is now a factor of importance. The prospect is indeed gloomy. We shall either have to pay an exorbitant price for our eggs or make shift without them. But, since the cost of living is now so excessive, it is unlikely many of us will use the former alternative; therefore, the demand for eggs will probably not exceed the supply.

Butter also has grown dearer, and bids fair to reach very soon the price we are told now obtains in New Zealand. There it is 1/6 a lb—here, we are paying this week 1/4½ a lb for it. Neither can we comfort ourselves with the reflection that cheese is cheap. In Sussex-street parlance it is firmer. The shopkeeper asks us 1/ a lb for that known as Bodalla and Bega, which are the kinds most commonly used by us.

Last week, when referring to cheese, space forbade the mention of several uses to which it may advantageously be put. For instance, many people have never tried it with cauliflower, yet the combination is excellent. The cauliflower is boiled till tender, then divided into small pieces, each large enough to serve as a helping for one person. Next, these pieces are neatly arranged in a well-buttered pie dish, and a thick, white sauce, into which (while cold), has been mixed one tablespoonful of grated cheese is poured over. Finally, one tablespoonful each of grated cheese and bread-crumbs is strewn over the cauliflower and sauce, little dabs of butter are placed about, and the pie is well browned in a moderate oven.

Cabbage may be treated in the same way, and it is almost equally good. Or it may be cooked according to the following recipe:—Take a young cabbage, boil it till tender, drain it, and thoroughly press all the water from it. Then chop it well, and place in a saucepan and melt 2oz of butter. Into the melted butter stir one teaspoonful of flour, and after mixing it smoothly, add a layer of the chopped cabbage and a layer of cheese, and continue so placing the layers of cabbage and cheese until all the cabbage is used. Then place a little salt and butter on the top, cover with a lid, and stand it where it will simmer gently for half an hour. A tablespoonful of grated cheese greatly improves the flavour of many vegetable soups, notably onion soup. It should be stirred in, slowly and carefully, just before the soup is dished.

Cheese sauce is a distinct improvement to many kinds of fish, but perhaps particularly to mullet or bream.

The fish is prepared in the usual way, either baked, boiled, or fried, as may be preferred, and the sauce is simply a rich melted butter sauce, with a little grated cheese stirred carefully into it before it is cooked. It is better poured over boiled fish, but served in a sauce boat as an accompaniment to either baked or fried.

The price of fruit has altered scarcely at all since last week. Tasmanian apples have grown a shade dearer, but there is yet an excellent cooking apple being sold for 1s a dozen, and a good eating apple for 10d and 1s a dozen. There is no change whatever in the citrus fruit, either as regards quality or price. Passionfruit seem to be more plentiful, and their price runs from 9d to 1s a dozen. Persimmons are 1d and 2d a piece, the smaller ones being almost destitute of flavour. Fiji bananas do not seem to be nearly as plentiful as the Tweed River variety—their price is 1s a dozen—while the river banana is frequently to be had for half that price. Beans, one of our most valuable and nutritious vegetables—are well worth buying just now. Their price is 2s and 2s 3d a peck. Cabbages are 6d and 8d apiece, and, generally speaking, of good quality and fair size. Tomatoes, much spoilt by the late rains, are 6d and 9d a dozen—here and there twice that price. Marrows are abundant, and 4d, 6d, and 8d each. Cucumbers and cobs of corn may be bought for 2d and 3d each. The best beetroot is 4d a bunch, and parsnips and carrots 3d and 2d respectively. Cauliflowers have just put in an appearance, but are still scarce and dear, good ones being 1s 3d each. We may expect them to improve in quality and price in the early future.

THE AUSTRALIAN SECOND HOSPITAL.

If the hospitals of Australia are to be a credit to this country, then the people of the Commonwealth must put their best foot forward. The equipment of the Canadian unit is something unique in character, and we do not want to be behind their standard.

The Red Cross headquarters have this week received notice that the large second hospital, for which they are responsible, has been doubled at very short notice, and this means that the fine organisation is called upon to thoroughly equip with bed linen, dressings, towels, and clothing the 1040 beds which it will contain—that is, equip it in addition to the military grant per bed, which, though excellent in itself, is naturally only for the barest necessities, during the huge operations now in progress.

The Red Cross centre is not dismayed by this last and heavy requisition, but as the time is short, and the calls upon the funds so many, it has been suggested that each of the Red Cross branches should make themselves responsible for half a dozen turkish towels or pillow-slips. In this way a huge collection would be forthcoming, without making too heavy a call upon any one organisation. If the towels are chosen as the gift, the material should be purchased by the yard, and cut 34in long by 17 wide, thus saving cost. The slips may be of the usual size, but of good, stout quality. All these articles must be at the central packing room, at the Town Hall, by May 4, as the goods must be got away without the slightest delay after that date, and the council of the Red Cross Society are therefore appealing, with confidence, to their many good friends.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Blouse Pattern.—"Ignoramus": In the blouse depicted last Wednesday, the collar is cut separately from the blouse, and stitched on. If you show the illustration at the shop where you buy the material, they will cut it out for you. Most of the leading shops will cut out the material when bought to any pattern desired.

A hostess should lead the way to afternoon tea; but walk in last at a dinner party. In showing a house guest the way to her room, the hostess, or her maid, walks before the guest.

You are right in saying that Melbourne people are more demonstrative than Sydney folk. A procession or parade is invariably much more enthusiastically greeted in Melbourne than a similar event is greeted here. Our crowds have only a thinking part in such demonstrations, but the difference is only on the surface.

MELBOURNE NOTES.

At the last monthly meeting of the National Council of Women, the anti-alcohol question was discussed. Dr. Harvey Sutton argued that the war, though an unavoidable evil, may probably prove a blessing in disguise by focussing our attention on our real enemies, the chiefest of which is alcohol. Professor Woodruff considered that there never was a more opportune time than now for real good temperance work to be done. Mrs. Fossett representing the A.W.A.) averred that the sale of liquor in the cafes was a great and growing evil for women and girls. Mrs. C. Strong called upon the National Council to follow the example of the University. When the president put the proposition to the meeting almost every woman present rose in assent. Mrs. C. H. James moved that they follow the footsteps of South Australia and urge 6 o'clock closing. Dr. Edith Barrett asked for an expression of opinion, and the meeting proved to be unanimous upon the subject. Mrs. Thos. Baker presided.

A Victorian nurse, Sister Faddy, on duty in one of the "Australian Huts" at Red Cross Hospital, writes cheerfully to a Melbourne relative:—"There are two 'Australian huts' here, staffed by Australian sisters. It is a very large field hospital, having 35 huts, with 20 beds in each. There are 75 sisters at this centre, and 25 Japanese trained nurses—quaint little things, who do not speak English. It is not so depressing as one might think. Once the men are attended to and rested they become very cheery and jolly. They have five surgeons—all London specialists."

Miss Maude Harvie, hon. treasurer of the Blue Cross Service, which is working to mitigate the terrible sufferings of horses in the war, recently received a letter of appreciation from one of the veterinary officers. Lady Hennessy is president of the movement here, and both the Governor-General and Sir Arthur Stanley have become patrons.

Mrs. Cowper, wife of the secretary of the Collins-street Independent Church, occupies a high place among the few women preachers in Australia. She recently preached at a suburban church on "Faith, Hope, and Love." Mrs. Cowper is the daughter of a Presbyterian minister, and is widely known for her literary culture, her success as a public speaker, and her sympathy with all phases of Christian work.

Some time ago Mrs. Kate Zillmann made a strong effort to gain sympathy and consideration for physically-unfit teachers who were without pension rights. By her vigorous letters, and by means of leaflets, she undoubtedly drew the attention of the powers that be and the public generally. Consumptive teachers received some meed of consideration, and later it is hoped a scheme will be evolved to benefit others. Mrs. Zillmann is now teaching in the special school recently opened in Fitzroy for mentally-afflicted children, which is watched with interest.

VERONICA.

"FOLLOW THE KING."

When they asked Diogenes what kind of wine he liked best to drink, he replied—"The wine of other people;" and war has made a good many of late take a Diogenean attitude towards this pleasure of the table.

But the indications are that even this vicarious expenditure on a luxury is to be removed from us. It will no longer be "good form" to offer wine and spirits to one's friends. Better perish of thirst outright than not be "good form."

It will be etiquette to have no cluster of wineglasses of all shapes and sizes at one's right hand at dinner parties. The "dernier cri" will be one Spartan tumbler, at the most, two. Decanters, if used at all, will hold the juices of fruits, orange juice, lemon juice, pineapple, and such—anything but grape. But the piece de resistance upon the fashionable table will be a crystal jug of plain water.

Facetious hosts may make a reputation for wit by parodying Douglas Jerrold's parody when they ask their guests to fill up the glass—"As for the water, nothing extenuate; and the brandy, put nought in in malice."

This is a movement over which Fashion will be able to exercise a boundless power. There is no rabid teetotal influence behind it. The promoters simply recognise the incalculable drain on the country that drink causes, and they seek, at a time of the old world's direst need to divert the money spent on so useless and harmful a luxury, into channels where it will make for good.

Australia finds herself, now the first panic of the war is over, as rich and as happy-go-lucky as ever. With one hand she is giving in generous fashion to the various funds for the war, but with the other she is still reaching out and supplying herself just as lavishly as ever with the luxuries that she has come to regard as necessaries.

However, she is a loyal young woman, this same Australia, and now that her King has cried, "Hold, enough;" she will answer back, and with promptitude and cheeriness, "Aye, aye, Sire."

SEASONABLE RECIPES.

Meatless Menus.—Pickles, potted meats, sardines, vinegar, salt fish are none of them of much use except as stimulants to appetite. They could all be left out of the dietary of one who wishes to economise, without sacrificing any health-giving foods. Many nourishing foods can be made of vegetable stock, and now the cold weather is coming on, they would help greatly to form a bill of fare that would be economical, and yet satisfying.

Barley Broth.—Take one large onion, sliced, and boil it with 2oz of well-washed barley, in five pints of water. At the end of an hour, mix the barley gradually with 2oz of oatmeal, which has been stirred into a tablespoonful of melted dripping. When the soup ingredients are well mixed, simmer the soup for half an hour, adding celery, black pepper, and salt to taste.

Onion Soup.—Proceed very much as above, but without the barley. Add sliced carrots and parsnips. Onion soup is also made by boiling the onions well, throwing away the water, then mix a paste of flour and cold milk, and press the onions through a sieve or colander. Boil in milk, and add the flour paste when the milk boils, a lump of butter and some seasoning to taste. Only simmer gently for a short while, and the soup is ready for table.

Potato Soup.—Four large potatoes should be peeled and pared, and with one onion stirred in a frying pan with dripping, but not browned. Boil in water for an hour. Press that through a colander, and put it back in the saucepan in milk. Let it come to the boil, then thicken with sago, sprinkled in and stirred well. Keep stirring for fifteen minutes (not constantly, but enough to prevent it sticking), add pepper and salt. About a pint of milk is enough for four potatoes, and say three tablespoonfuls of sago.

Potato Soup.—In cold weather, when Irish stew is most appreciated, the liquor left from the stew makes good potato soup next day. All fat should be removed from the top and liquor warmed. A potato or two may have to be added, or perhaps the liquor may have to be thinned out. If thickening be needed, use potatoes, not flour.

Tomato Soup.—Tinned tomatoes seldom make a good creme. The preservative seems to curdle the milk (or cream). But the tinned vegetable is not to be despised, and a brown soup can be substituted for the creme, using browned flour and onion, rice for the thickening, a generous lump of butter, and a small dash of vinegar.

Lentil Soup.—This is a puree made very much after the recipe for pea soup (which everybody knows how to make). The lentils should be boiled and pressed through a colander. Potatoes may be added if liked. But few people care for potatoes as an ingredient in a mixed broth or puree, unless it be the only one.

THE TURF.

Pony and galloway racing will be the attraction at Rosebery this afternoon, and an interesting programme of seven events should provide good sport. The track is reported to be in splendid order, and the general arrangements up to the customary standard. The transit arrangements include special trams to the racecourse gates, while the ordinary service to Botany will also be available. Owing to the large number of entries necessitating several of the events to be run in divisions, a start will be made at noon. The results may be anticipated as under:—Maiden Handicap: First division, Royal Glory or Stimulus; second division, The Gamester or Selmoor. Fourteen-one Handicap: Mary, Ellen Moore, Honeymoon. Flying Handicap: First division, Amazed or Mosquito; second division, Lady Osfield or Gratis. Fourteen-hands Handicap: Secrete, Iola, My Dove. Encourage Stakes: First division, Lord Castlereagh or Tachreet; second division, Curried Rice or Lyfort. Fourteen-two Handicap: First division, Clysmic or Bobadil Maid; second division, Little Assegai or Silver Mist. Rosebery Handicap: First division, Merel or Blocklock; second division, The Artist or Laloch.

The approaching winter made itself felt yesterday morning at Randwick. An extremely cold breeze from the south-west called for the use of the thickest clothing. The magpie track was the scene of operations. Here Miss Mooltan started the business of the morning by running seven furlongs in 1m 35s. Simon Frisco followed by covering the same distance of ground at a strong pace. Flamboyant was sent over six furlongs at half pace, and Eugeny spurted a few furlongs. Red Denis and Chid were indulged in easy tasks, while Lavanda hopped over a few furlongs in nice style. Tiffany, Poinsettia, and Sir John Barleycorn were together at the end of five furlongs, run in 1m 6s. The old veteran, Matouree, boldly strode ove a mile and a furlong in 2m 5s, while strong work was accomplished by Fordell. Tofua passed over seven furlongs in 1m 34s, which was a good performance for the track. Herringbone went steadily, and Toa Tere worked usefully. A strong six-furlong gallop was executed by Hopoast and Speedfact. Hobble Skirt accounted for seven furlongs in 1m 34s, while Best Scot spurted. Sweet Malt and Royal Laddie spurted along the back of the course. Spadix occupied 1m 21s for his six furlong effort, which was half a second faster than the time recorded by Sir Vive and Balarang over a similar distance. Strong rounds were negotiated by Silver King, Warrabinga, and Taunter. Danaum traversed a mile in 1m 50s, and Metallicus six furlongs in 1m 23s. Athenic sprinted half a mile in 51½s, which was a second and a half better than Miss Bob's effort over a similar distance. Tartanus, Alasco, King Mostyn, and Third Prize confined their exercise to the tan, while Girn and Silver Steel selected the cinders. Gillallambi and Kingsburgh cantered in the centre of the course, and at the close of the morning Rue Kan and N.C. were schooled over a few hurdles, but shaped very moderately.

H. England has arranged with the owner, Mr. White, of Queensland, to train his colt, Fighting Chance, a son of imported Yetman, bred by Mr. G. W. Dight, junr., who is at present an inmate in Clarmore Private Hospital, and safely over an operation for appendicitis.

General entries for the Newcastle Jockey Club's two-day meeting at which the prize money totals £1750, will be received up to Monday next.

The next meeting of the Richmond Trotting Club will be held on Tuesday, May 4, when £105 prize money will be distributed over six events, entries for which close with the secretary, Mr. Kilduff, at 8 p.m. to-day.

The report to be submitted to the annual general meeting of the New South Wales Breeders, Owners, and Trainers' Association at the Cambridge Hotel, to-night, appeals to those who are outside the association to become members, and thus strengthen their hands. During the existence of the association, it states, many disabilities on the railways had been rectified, and the committee was awaiting the conclusion of the war to approach the Chief Commissioner with a view to removing some of the present disabilities that exist on the New South Wales Railways.

Lilyvell and St. Vano have been put into work again by F. Musgrove at Caulfield.

The Murrurundi Race Club's meeting on May 26 has been sanctioned by the A.J.C.

G.M.L. (Cowra) is informed that at the pony meetings divisions are regarded as races. When only two divisions are necessary there is no run-off, and the prize money is divided. When three divisions are resorted to there is generally a run-off, which, however, is left to the discretion of the stewards. In your case you would only be liable for the run-off starting price if the pony mentioned was backed to win outright.

In the Flying Handicap at Gosford yesterday Uralsk fell and broke a shoulder. He was subsequently destroyed.

The A.J.C. have sanctioned the following race meetings:—Cootamundra L.V.R.C. (June 16 and 17); Brewarrina Turf Club (June 16 and 17); Portland Jockey Club (May 29); North Bourke Amateur Race Club (May 28 and 29); Menangle Park Race Club (May 6); Muswellbrook Race Club (May 24); Western Darling Picnic Race Club (May 5).

ANGLING.

GAME FISH STILL PLENTIFUL.

The game fish record of the New South Wales Anglers' Casting Club, made by Mr. C. H. Gorrick at Port Stephens some days since, was beaten by Mr. J. Falkiner, a member of the club, in the same waters the following week, when he killed a 40½lb kingfish on the club's light tackle (9-thread line and 6oz rod).

When it is remembered that the kingfish is acknowledged to be the most difficult of all game fish to handle, owing to its habit of rushing straight to the rocks, thereby endangering the line, Mr. Falkiner's performance is all the more meritorious. Great skill is necessary in playing this variety on account of the delicacy of the line and tackle.

Large numbers of game fish were recently caught at Broughton Island, which is situated 18 miles from Port Stephens, and advantage was taken during the calm weather by members of the New South Wales Anglers' Club to get as much sport as possible. Launches leave Nelson's Bay for Broughton Island early in the mornings, returning to the mainland before dark. The average catch on these excursions is from 30 to 50 fish, totalling up to 45lb per boat, carrying two rods.

It should be understood that except under very good weather conditions the Broughton Island trip is extremely dangerous. A stiff blow might be fraught with very serious consequences; therefore, inexperienced amateur fishermen and boatmen should not venture in that direction unless calm weather prevails.

Tunny and Spanish mackerel are keeping members of the New South Wales Anglers' Club busy at Newport, where an hon. official weigher (Mr. Jackson) is established with the necessary apparatus, official cards, and records. The club has other honorary weighers at various frequented grounds. Mr. J. H. Hansen, officiates at Manly, where members operating in that locality may obtain his services when the big fish come their way. There are still a large number of members enjoying excellent sport up Port Stephens way.

Mr. Albert E. Nash has presented the New South Wales Anglers' Casting Club with a very handsome sterling silver cup to be competed for by club members amongst the game fish. The conditions that Mr. Nash has imposed are that the record for the largest fish must be held three times by an individual member before the cup becomes his property. The competition for this trophy will be very keen, and doubtless some exciting work will shortly be recorded.

The New South Wales Anglers' Casting Club will not hold any casting competitions at Centennial Park this year, until the championships in September or October.

FOOTBALL.

THE RUGBY UNION GAME.

Next Saturday the first of the periodical visits of teams to the Liverpool military camp will take place, Randwick Club being the body entrusted with the opening of these fixtures, which are expected to be mutually pleasant and satisfactory from a recruiting point of view. All the other clubs will be engaged in the opening matches, games being arranged at the Sports Ground, St. Luke's Oval, Manly Oval, Hurstville Oval, and North Sydney No. 2. Two new clubs, in Mosman and H.M.A.S. Tingira, will play next Saturday.

The Great Public Schools' competitions will commence on Wednesday, May 12, when for the first time for many years six teams will compete, the Scots College having been admitted to the first-grade.

RUGBY LEAGUE GAME.

SEASON'S PROSPECTS.

The New South Wales Rugby League's season was to have been officially opened on Saturday next, but owing to last Saturday's practice matches being cancelled the opening has been deferred till May 8.

A prominent League committeeman, when speaking of the coming season's prospects, said: "Big inroads on the playing strength of the game have been made by the recruiting sergeant, and further losses are sure to be felt, as the governing body of the League is urging its players to tackle the sterner game which is being fought out on the fields of Europe. However, a careful deliberation on the season's fixtures convinced us that we owed a duty to the large following of football enthusiasts who must of necessity stay at home to keep the wheels of local business and industry going, and we accordingly decided to go on with our customary programme of grade and interstate and international games. New Zealand will send over a thoroughly representative team, and will play matches in Sydney on June 5, 7, 26, and 28. Queensland will be with us later on.

"Our code is gradually finding its way all through the country. On the northern rivers they have become quite enthusiastic, and South Sydney's tour of this territory last season promises to be very fruitful, as clubs are springing up everywhere, and as a result several big competitions will be conducted by the latest adherents to Northern Unionism. Splendid reports are to hand from Newcastle, Maitland, Tamworth, Bathurst, Orange, and other country centres."

With all of the above views we do not agree. It were well if the New South Wales Rugby League decided to cancel the interstate and international games, and confine its attention to the local games. In ordinary circumstances the enterprise of the League would be commendable, but times have changed, and the British nation is in the throes of a life-and-death struggle with a powerful adversary, whose aim is world-domination. As an adjunct to health and physical fitness football, like all other manly outdoor sports, is excellent; but the present is not an opportune time to arrange the more important fixtures. In this respect the New South Wales Rugby Union has set a splendid example. Its executive has taken a more serious view of this great war than that of the Rugby League. No interstate matches will be played, the local competition matches have been suspended, and in lieu thereof club matches and drill will take place on alternate Saturdays, and matches will also be played at the Liverpool camp. No exception can be taken to local competition matches, as they are desirable in several respects.

THE AUSTRALIAN GAME.

GENERAL NOTES.

The annual meeting of the New South Wales League brought about some unexpected changes in official personnel. The decision of Messrs. A. E. Nash, J. J. Jagelman, and J. J. O'Meara declining nomination for important positions, previously held by them, occasioned surprise. Not so, however, the decision of the League trustees—Messrs. H. R. Denison, A. E. Nash, J. J. Jagelman, H. C. Harte, J. J. O'Meara, and E. W. Butler—to relinquish their connection as such, and dispose of the Australian Football Ground. Such a course of action was advocated at a meeting of the League in October last. Lest perhaps, the happenings may cause undue concern in the minds of supporters of the game, it will not be out of place to mention that the league, as now constituted, look forward with hope, consequent on a return to the old order of things. With the resumption by the league of full managerial control, financially and otherwise, the experiences of the past few years should prove invaluable, and it is safe to say that strict economy and rigid discipline will be enforced. The propaganda fund allotment set apart by the Australasian Football Council will enable the League to carry out an active campaign in junior and school circles, and as all the league district clubs of the past two seasons have again enrolled, there remains but energetic and well-directed effort on the part of League delegates to make both the game and the League progressive.

Consequent on the conference between the New South Wales Rugby League and the Australian Football Council, and the suggested alterations in the rules of both games emanating therefrom, a great deal of misunderstanding exists in the minds of patrons generally. Through information received from Mr. C. Hickey (secretary of the Australian Football Council) there will be no alterations in the rules of the game this season. It is almost certain, however, that the council will meet in November next to give effect to important alterations, which have so far been agreed to by the following leagues:—Victoria, South Australia, New South Wales, Goldfields League (Western Australia), Tasmania, and Queensland, the only dissentient, at present, being the Coastal League (Western Australia).

BRITISH ASSOCIATION.

N.S.W. ASSOCIATION.

The district League matches will be contested this season in two divisions, the first (which will compete for the Rawson Challenge Cup) and reserve Leagues. The teams in the first League are Annandale, Balmain, Drummoyne, Glebe, Granville, Northern Suburbs, Pyrmont, and Sydney; and in the reserve League, Annandale A and B, Balmain A and B, Glebe, Granville, Pyrmont, and Drummoyne. The competitions will open next Saturday, and club secretaries should note that all registrations, with fees, should be forwarded immediately. The draw for the first round is:—

First League.

Balmain v Granville, University Oval, 3.15; Annandale v Glebe, Federal Park, 3.15; Northern Suburbs v Drummoyne, Drummoyne Oval, 3.15; Sydney v Pyrmont, Lyne Park, 3.15.

Reserve League.

Annandale B v Balmain A, Federal Park, 1.45; Annandale A v Glebe, Birchgrove, 3.15; Pyrmont v Drummoyne, Drummoyne Oval, 3.15; Granville Reserves v Balmain B, Clyde, 3.30.

Where a late start is made with the preliminary fixture the referee is empowered to terminate the match at 3.25 p.m., playing the available time in two equal sections.

ROWING.

The rough weather at Middle Harbour on Saturday gave an excellent idea of what Felton and Towns may possibly encounter, and creates rather a big risk of races in outriggers being rowed there in a hard southerly blow. The going was tough enough even in the 16ft pleasure skiffs the Kemp-Pearce match was rowed in, and undoubtedly outriggers would be under water during the greater part of the way in similar weather. As the Felton-Towns contest is to be decided in the depth of winter, the prospects are that even worse weather conditions may be encountered there. On the Parramatta there is some shelter either on one shore or the other, of which scullers may take advantage, no matter from what quarter the blow may come.

Sculling matches in sight are Felton v Towns, Hagney v Durnan (probably at Toronto, Canada), and Webb v Hannan, at Wanganui. Hagney has certainly had a varied career in different phases of sport. He is reported to have been a sparring partner recently with Jack Johnson in Cuba, and prior to that was boxing in England, where he also threw out sculling challenges, but no matches resulted.

Some of the amateur rowing clubs, including North Shore and Sydney, have already arranged winter races, whilst Enterprise and Leichhardt have an interclub contest in view. The other clubs will need to fix races soon to keep the attendance of their members at the respective sheds up to the mark, as there is always an inclination on the part of a section of the oarsmen in each of the clubs to drop out during the winter months.

The ladies' clubs are keeping busy, and the Glebe Club has a double sculls event set down for next Saturday, for which seven crews have entered, whilst a combined regatta between Glebe and South Sydney Ladies is being arranged for May 22.

CRICKET.

THE SEASON'S REVIEW.

I.

Though the curtain has not yet been finally rung down upon the cricket season of 1914-15—the third grade final being as yet undecided—the time is opportune for a brief general review of the season. Looking back, the most prominent feature, perhaps, has been the practically unanimous verdict that both the standard of play and public appreciation have fallen away tremendously throughout the year. Whether in this deterioration, which cannot be denied, pessimists are justified in seeing, as has been asserted, the signs of decadence of the game is a matter for the future to determine. For our part, we place no such interpretation upon the season's doings. In many respects it is difficult to restrain feelings of intense disappointment in regard to the season's cricket. The general standard of play has indubitably fallen away; the methods adopted by players have certainly been far less attractive than formerly, and the great body of cricketing non-playing enthusiasts have, as usual, been quick to detect the change, with the inevitable corollary, the falling away in popular support.

THE SPIRIT OF OPTIMISM.

These are circumstances which make mental pabulum for the pessimist. Happily, however, the latter is distinctly in the minority. In the inner cricket circles, the spirit of optimism is very much alive, and it is specially interesting to find the voice of experience in the person of Mr. J. H. Clayton, president of the New South Wales Cricket Association, loudly proclaiming optimistic views in regard to the future of the game.

Mr. Clayton's experience of cricket in Sydney runs through almost the whole history of the game in New South Wales, and in that experience he can readily find many instances of similar slumps in the game, followed sooner or later by periods of opulence. Just as the game itself is full of ups and downs for individuals; so is its history in all countries. Victoria is just now beginning to experience a period of fatness immediately following several lean years, and in England, too, the game has gone through a similar metamorphosis. It is with confidence that we predict a return to its former standard and popularity for our game.

THE FUTURE RESTS WITH THE PLAYERS.

It rests very much with the cricketers themselves. They must resume their former brighter methods, and they must sparkle more in the field. Ground fielding was this season not so much below standard, but the taking of catches was undoubtedly very poor. The general work in the field gave the impression of neglect, notwithstanding that it is an old truism that good fielding makes moderate bowling good, and is a most important factor in the winning of matches. We cannot too strongly, in a general way, urge upon our cricketers similar functions in the other States. Thus, the necessity of devoting some time at least to the improvement of their fielding, and especially their catching; we do so all the more because catching is a part of the art of fielding that can be readily improved by earnest practice.

THE STORY TOLD BY THE STATISTICS.

A glance at the season's averages does not reveal the dull and monotonous character of the season's play, but it does provide ample evidence of the possession of any amount of real skill by a large number of our players. In first-grade cricket, for instance, no fewer than 55 players averaged 25 runs or over per innings with the bat, and of these 30 exceeded 30 runs per innings. These results spell merit. The honour of securing highest average falls to the credit of Warren Bardsley, who made double figures in every innings, and with 146 as his highest score, made an aggregate of 602 at an average of 66.88 per innings. The champion left-hander, for various reasons, perhaps, was not seen to best advantage in the interstate matches, but he made club bowlers pay heavy toll. Batting 11 times, he topped the century on three occasions, being the only batsman to do so. The highest innings played in the first grade competition was that of E. P. Barbour (181) for University against Gordon. The University crack, after an indifferent start to the season, compiled 555 runs at an average of 55.50, and thereby secured second place in the general list. Barbour, along with his club mate, F. M. Farrar, and C. G. Macartney, who each exceeded the 100 twice, were the only batsmen besides Bardsley to make more than one century in the season.

LEADING AGGREGATES.

The little Gordon champion, however, may be accounted a trifle unlucky in this respect, as, in addition to making 159 against Waverley and 125 against Redfern, he scored 98 against Middle Harbour, and 96 against University. There is some consolation for the trifling disappointments embodied in the latter in the fact that he easily carried off the season's aggregate (824), at an average of 51.50 per innings. The nearest aggregate to this was Bardsley's 602. In the big games Macartney did not shine, owing, no doubt, to a lack of serious practice, a lack which was less apparent in the club matches. With the exception of the three mentioned, only one other batsman aggregated 500 runs—viz., Sid Thomas (Central Cumberland), who in 19 visits to the creases aggregated 553 runs at an average of 32.52 per innings. His highest score was 99, but he played very consistently throughout, and made many extremely useful double-figure contributions to his side's success. Two other batsmen averaged over 50—C. Kelleway (54.25) and C. W. Hosking (54.00) for 5 innings. The latter, a left-hander, coming into the North Sydney first eleven after successes in the first two rounds in the second grade, showed splendid promise, and before the season was half over had the refusal of a place in the Sheffield Shield team for New South Wales. His progress into the first-class arena was hampered, however, by war considerations, and through enlisting his valuable services were early lost to his club.

ATHLETICS.

To-morrow night's annual meeting of the New South Wales Amateur Athletic Association promises to extend to a late hour, for, in addition to the usual business of presentation of annual report and balance-sheet and election of officers for 1915-16, there is a lengthy list of motions for consideration. The report to be submitted cannot be considered satisfactory, not that the officers controlling the sport are to be held responsible, for the secretarial position has undergone some changes during the year, and the present occupant of the office has only been engaged in his duties since the beginning of the present year. Mr. W. B. Alexander was re-elected at the last annual general meeting, but resigned in October, his place being filled by the then race secretary, Mr. W. E. Murphy. The latter retired in January, and it was again the race secretary, Mr. W. H. Lodge, who replaced Mr. Murphy. Mr. Lodge has held the office since then, but is not seeking re-election, and the late hon. treasurer, Mr. W. E. Corben, has been returned unopposed. Mr. Lodge, as well as Mr. J. M. Taylor, is nominated for the office of hon. treasurer. In the majority of other elections a ballot will be necessary.

It is undisputed that the financial position of the association is most unsatisfactory. After the State championship meeting in January, 1910, in which the American team competed, there was a deficit of nearly £200, and no earnest move has been made to liquidate the amount; indeed, sums loaned for the purpose of bringing out the American athletes have not yet been repaid. Those delegates who are styled the "progressive party" have vainly sought to urge the council to move in the direction of placing the finances upon a sound footing, but instead of achieving that object further losses were incurred over the recent State championship meeting. The unusual list of nominations is the outcome of the progressive party's endeavour to save amateur athletics from dissolution, for it must be realised that unless strong measures be taken this is probable. There is a huge deficit to be expunged, and the time has passed when propositons for the association's future prosperity are to be shelved.

Some important proposals will be submitted by delegates. Mr. A. W. Pickard will move that an annual capitation fee be imposed upon members of all clubs. Mr. G. P. S. Parke has given notice.—"That in the interests of amateur athletics in New South Wales, it is advisable that delegates to the biennial Australasian conference shall only be men who occupy a position in, or who are active members of, the N.S.W. Amateur Athletic Association, and that the resolution shall be forwarded to the A.A.U. of Australia and New Zealand, urging only the appointment of officers who are members of a State or Dominion association." Mr. A. S. Baldick will move that the rule of the association fixing the date of the cross-country championship for the last Saturday in August each year shall be rescinded, and the last Saturday in July shall be set apart for the race. Another motion aims at expunging from the rules the by-law granting the secretary a fixed honorarium of £25 per annum.

GOLF.

CLUB COMPETITIONS.

NEW COURSE FOR PARKES.

The procession of troops was responsible for scanty attendances on the city and suburban courses on Saturday, and those who played found it difficult to obtain caddies. They were all in the streets of Sydney to see the troops march past. Nevertheless, several competitions were held, and three clubs played for the association's bronze war fund medals, and if entries were fewer than on last occasion the desire to witness the parade of our troops for the front was the reason. At Manly, E. L. Apperly, lately returned from England, played with his old skill. In a competition limited to one grade it is only occasionally that a short mark man wins; but Apperly, though burdened with +2, won with 79+2=81. Ordinarily this score would not win at Manly, but it was a good performance. Apperly is credited with reaching the fifth green at Manly (about 600 yards) in two wooden shots.

One of the best cards of the day was that of W. D. Roxburgh at Concord. Handicapped at 11, turned only one down. Coming home he played really well, winning 3 holes, and halving the remaining six. His card of 2 up won comfortably, though Captain Tower and F. Pfoeffer each had cards all square with bogey.

At Killara, W. D. Jones, with 94—18=76, scored a win at the eleventh hour, as he was the last man to reach the club-house, and practically finished in the dark. The war fund medal at Bonnie Doon was won by L. W. Mogg with 84—4=80. It is evident that Mogg is getting back to his old form. J. Kell secured the war fund medal at Hunter's Hill with a good round of 78—4=74; and L. W. Cable (18) was successful at Parramatta with 3 down. A stroke competition at Dobroyde resulted in a tie between F. M'Mullen (14) and W. H. Cockburn (24), who each had cards of 77 net.

The difficulties under which country golfers labour are not fully recognised in Sydney, where players have luxurious club-houses and well-kept courses and greens. These are taken as a matter of course, but if Sydney players went inland some 200 miles or so they would find a very different set of conditions. There would certainly not be well-kept fairways, or if there were the credit would be to the cattle or sheep depasturing on the course. There would not, in all probability, be any bunkers, as they are known to us, though creeks, gullies, standing timber, and fences are made to serve the purpose. And, except in a very limited area, there would not be well-grassed and mown putting greens. Instead there would be chip or sanded greens, or "browns," according to the class of country. These "browns" take a lot of knowing, and a city golfer is usually quite at sea until he has had a few games over any course on which they prevail.

Notwithstanding this, country golfers are quite as keen as their city brothers—a fact which their attendance at country week, when they are given an opportunity of playing over properly-constructed courses, amply testifies. A district little known in golfing circles is that of which the towns of Parkes, Forbes, and Trundle form the centre. The standard of play, perhaps, is not very high, but that can easily be remedied by calling in the services of one of the travelling professionals, but apart from that the golfers are very enthusiastic, and much rivalry exists between the three towns named.

The Parkes Club lately became dissatisfied with its old course, and engaged F. T. O'Brien, the well-known Killara professional, to lay out a new one of 9 holes in the people's park, distant not more than 10 minutes' walk from the town. This is said to be a considerable improvement on the old course, and O'Brien, who seized the opportunity to impart a little tuition to the members, speaks very highly of it. There is already a dressing-room on the ground, and as the land is fairly cleared, and the greens are of the "chip" variety, the course should be ready for play in a few weeks. One of the features of the course is the Huntingdon Dam, which O'Brien has used on the third and fourth holes, giving carries from the tees of 140 and 150 yards respectively. These holes should provide a steady source of income for boys who can swim. The Parkes Club is to be congratulated on its enterprise.

A letter from "One of the Framers of the Leura Pot Rules" appears in Monday's issue. The criticism offered was in a friendly spirit, as our correspondent recognises. It is admitted that the present system of handicapping has in the past answered very well, and while we consider that system capable of improvement, as suggested, we do not think that interest in the "Leura Pot" is likely to slacken if the present rules and regulations be adhered to.

A meeting of the Suburban and Country Golf Association will be held on Friday night, when matters in connection with the War Fund medals will be dealt with. The hon. secretary desires that any clubs having funds in hand will send them to him on or before Friday, so that a distribution may be made without delay.

BASEBALL.

PROSPECTS OF THE SEASON.

The season will commence on Saturday next with the competition matches. Waverley, last season's premiers, although they have lost their best pitcher, G. Brown, will be able to put a good nine into the field. A. Kippax and V. Marshall will be promoted from the lower grade to fill the positions of catcher and shortstop alternately. Both players performed well in their respective grades last season, and may be expected to give a good account of themselves. A. D. Watson has qualified for University.

Petersham will have an access of strength by the addition of several of the more experienced players from Petersham Junior's last season's team, and a well-balanced nine will be selected from the following:—G. Campbell, S. Armstrong, R. J. Oram, R. W. Law, T. J. E. Andrews, V. Donowa, J. Moriarty, E. H. Dean, H. W. Turner, N. Clarke, and T. Brooks.

Leichhardt expect to be without the services of two of last season's regular players—W. Bailey and E. Bury, both reported on the sick list—and the most promising of the lower grade players will be called on to fill their places. H. Franks and J. Franks, as pitcher and catcher respectively, will be the team's battery, and, with T. Bury as leader, may be expected to turn out a good nine.

University will be weakened by the loss of its last season's battery, F. Farrar (pitcher) and L. Hunter (catcher), and first baseman Dr. E. P. Barbour. E. J. M'Guinness and J. Hooke (pitchers), and H. Leahy (catcher) will probably form the battery. A. D. Watson on first base should prove a tower of strength to the side.

Paddington team, as far as can be seen at present, will be as follows:—J. Pope (catcher), C. Winning (pitcher), G. L. Sayle (first base), G. Stack (second base), N. Callaway (shortstop), F. Toby (third base), R. Oakes, E. A. Dwyer, E. Palmer, N. Cohen, and G. Davidson, outfields. The absence of the names of the American contingent, regular players of last season, is noticeable in this list, also that of Bruce Stafford. The latter is on active service.

Lane Cove will be known for the future as "Gordon District," with headquarters at Chatswood Oval. The district will be handicapped by the absence of such players as C. W. Simmonds, P. Johnston, and probably R. V. Tait, and will have to depend on last season's A division players for its battery work. However, R. Ellsmore as pitcher and A. Murdock and E. G. Hinwood as catchers may be depended on to do good work.

St. George, the new district division team, will rely on the following in the contest for premiership honours:—A. Bragg (catcher and captain), S. Huxley (pitcher), A. Emerick, A. Jarrett, and H. Haydon, first, second, and third base respectively; F. Young (shortstop), D. Hutchinson, E. Dunstand, and C. Cogan (outfields). The firstnamed player will not be available for the first two matches, and will have to obtain a permit before playing with the team at all.

BOWLS.

THE BOND WITH NEWCASTLE

CHAMPIONSHIP GAMES.

The relations of the New South Wales Association and the Northern District Association are friendly, as they should be between affiliated bodies. But this should not be interpreted to mean that the basis of union is satisfactory. On the contrary, it is unscientific, ill-constructed, and deficient. An example from recent history may be given. The Northern Association reported to headquarters that it would be represented in the B finals in Sydney by Singleton club. The intimation was accepted as a matter of course until it suddenly occurred to someone that Singleton was not affiliated to the N.S.W. Association. In a sporting spirit, the omission was rectified, but it is not to be assumed that a precedent has been established. Singleton—fortunately, in the circumstances—did not win, but had they done so, awkward points may have been taken by watchful delegates. That the "articles of affiliation" are unscientific is not difficult to prove. Although the two associations are affiliated, there are clubs in the northern association that stand out of the union. It is a case in which affiliation with the greater does not include the less. A Newcastle club may belong to the northern association and contest its championships and yet reject the invitation to affiliate with the Bowling Association of New South Wales. That would not matter much only for the fact that the northern championships are only stepping-stones to the finals in Sydney. What, then, is to happen when one of the non-affiliated clubs achieves supremacy in the north, and by merit of play is the true and worthy representative of its district for the ensuing State championships in Sydney? The problem will never again be quietly and illogically solved, as it was with Singleton. Another unsatisfactory phase of the situation is that each Newcastle club that is affiliated to headquarters sends its fee direct to the metropolitan office, the result being that the northern association may possibly not be sure, season by season, whether affiliation in certain cases has been effected. It would seem that the northern association should carry on the business of its own district, collect the affiliation fees, and forward them to Sydney, and use all its influence to bring every club into line. The trouble that looms ahead is that a non-affiliated club cannot be allowed to represent the north in the State championships, and if headquarters intimated that it could not accept such a winner as a competitor in the finals, there would be a "crisis" that might destroy the union of the two associations.

The final stages of the New South Wales championships in rink, pair, and single-handed games are close at hand. Four rink matches will take place at Mosman on Friday afternoon. Harris's rink, of the City Club, will play W. H. Gartrell's rink (Chatswood). Among bowlers there is an impression that City will win. Opinion also favours Thorpe's rink (City) against Marsden's rink (Wellington). Similarly Clayton's rink (Lowlands) against T. Rees's rink (Wollongong). Dr. Burge's rink (Waverley) will meet Costley's rink (Goulburn), and there is the usual disposition to show faith in the metropolitan team. The semi-finals will take place on Saturday morning, and the final in the afternoon. On Monday morning next four pair games will be played at Waverley as follows:—Taft and Thorpe (City) v Jones and Marsden (Wellington); Hart and Litton (Parramatta) v Thomas and Manson (Newcastle City); Lawson and Moses (Ashfield) v T. Rees and T. Byron (Wollongong), and Barnes and Colquhoun (Mosman) v Steele and Costley (Goulburn). On the play shown by Lawson and Moses in a memorable match against Strong and Yeo they should be difficult to beat. In that game there was no score for 50 minutes, seven dead leads testifying to the skill, as well as the vigour, of the play. There will probably be a large gathering of spectators at Waverley when the semi-finals are played on Monday afternoon; the final will take place on Tuesday morning. The singles will start on the same green on Tuesday afternoon. The games are:—H. Harris (City) v J. Morrison (Petersham), W. Hingst (Newcastle City) v T. Anderson (City), E. R. Hawke (Dubbo) v H. Lawson (Ashfield), and W. Rees (Woonona) v W. Costley (Goulburn). Lawson's form is not known, but Harris is playing well. Rees is not new to championship games, and Hawke impressed the spectators last year. The semi-final is set down for Wednesday morning, and the final (as all finals should be) in the afternoon.

The youthful MacDonald, a brilliant "third" of the City team, won his way into the final for the club championship by defeating the experienced and graceful player Butler, one of the skips of the Pennant-winning team. Marks, an autocratic draw-player on his day, and Widerstrom, a veteran of many championships in various clubs, had to play for the distinction of meeting MacDonald. It was a fine game, with unexpected features. Widerstrom got the length first, and, playing with bowls of only medium draw, had no difficulty in finding the green. He piled up points and led 25—13. Marks then suddenly disclosed consistently good form, while the veteran developed a tendency to play narrow. It was a long journey to wipe out his deficiency, but Marks was equal to it; he won 31—28. Macdonald is versatile, and for that reason shines in rink play. He may be relied upon to do well, but if Marks retains the form he showed in the final in Ashfield against Randwick, and in his battle against Widerstrom, he should win.

Bowlers are trying to settle the order of merit of some of the prominent skips of the pennant games. There are various things to be considered—number of games played, wins, and points up. The most notable performances were:—

	Won.	Lost.	Tie.	Up.
Raffan (Randwick)	13	1	1	90
Alderson (Ku-ring-gai)	11	3	—	142
Burkell (Waverley)	11	3	1	106
Thorpe (City)	12	3	—	96
Oakes (Ku-ring-gai)	11	3	—	109

To give any order of merit is only to invite argument. The figures in each instance are so good that each skip and his rink are entitled to congratulation.

The secretary of the Australian Bowling Council has prepared his report of the annual meeting. It was a surprise to bowlers that the council rejected (on a casting vote) the proposal that when a toucher goes outside the boundaries of its rink it should be dead. As in the past, the "toucher" will remain "alive"—a rule that has nothing to recommend it, unless we are to encourage wild, haphazard play.

In reply to "K.K.": The council decided as follows:—"If any bowl objected to does not bear the imprint of the council's die for the time being in use, the party or side playing the same shall forfeit the game to his or their opponents." The only correct stamps on bowls are: "N.S.W.B.A., 1910;" or "A.B.C." No other stamp makes a bowl legal.

SYDNEY v NEWCASTLE.

The inter-association match between Sydney and Newcastle will take place on Saturday, May 8. The event will be played at Newcastle and Chatswood simultaneously, where six rinks from each association will meet. The total scores of the whole 12 rinks will decide the winners. The following have been selected to represent Sydney:—

At Newcastle.—(1) Sehrl, Morrison, Yeo, Moses; (2) Whitehouse, Taft, T. Anderson, Thorpe; (3) Wickham (Randwick), Mackenzie, Bromwich, Raffan; (4) Breckenridge, Barnes, Woodhouse, Colquhoun; (5) Hart, Quigley, Tyler, Arnott; (6) Henley (Drummoyne), Taylor (St. George), Chapman, Leitch.

At Chatswood.—(1) Clark (Waverley), Crump, Frank Cox, Dr. Burge; (2) Payten, M'Gee, Lawson, Pettigrew; (3) Blaxland, Berry, Morris, Thorne; (4) Flook, Copeland, Purves (Manly), Butler; (5) Kennan, Marks, Macdonald, Harris; (6) Green, Donaldson, Wilkie, W. M. Alderson.

BOXING.

The heavyweight contest to be decided at the Rushcutter Bay Stadium on Saturday evening next will be one of more than ordinary interest. Jeff Smith, middleweight champion of the world, will meet ex-amateur champion Harold Hardwick, now the generally recognised Australian heavyweight title holder. Since Hardwick entered the professional ranks he has had two contests, in each of which he was victorious, conquering Les. O'Donnell and Mick King, middleweight champion of Australia. In Saturday night's battle the men will meet at catch weights. Hardwick will be heavier than his opponent, but this will not seriously handicap Smith, who, in the past, has conquered men to whom he was called upon to concede poundage.

LAWN TENNIS.

THE CHAMPIONSHIPS.

A WET TOURNAMENT.

The New South Wales interstate and open tournament of 1915 will long be remembered for many reasons. It will be known as the year of the great war (let us hope no other will have such distinction), the year that four Australian States sent teams to Sydney, and, the wet year. There has probably never been a New South Wales tournament when so many interruptions have been caused by rain, although old players recall the year 1890, when wet weather delayed the start of the intercolonial match for so long that Norman Bayles, now member for Toorak in the Victorian Parliament, had to return, his place being taken by a brother of Dudley Webb, who happened to be in Sydney. That misfortune of this kind should have happened this year is especially regrettable, because the necessarily limited attendances have reduced the sum to be handed to the Belgian Relief Fund, and because there are so many more visitors from other States to be disappointed thereby than is usually the case. Just what fine sportsmen they are, however, is shown by the sympathy they have expressed with the officials who have been hampered in conducting the tournament, while concealing the disappointment they must all have felt.

The imperfect state of courts and balls, consequent upon the rain, inevitably affected the play throughout last week, but in many cases players showed a greater degree of adaptability to the unaccustomed conditions than is frequently seen. Some, of course, are more prejudicially affected than others by the soddened balls and courts. Those, for instance, whose forte is accurate placing with delicate, wristy shots, suffer more than sturdy "pluggers," who aim at getting every ball into play with a wide margin of safety. A comparatively dry and fast court gave one of the former class—Barclay, of Tasmania—an opportunity that he availed himself of when he met Marsh in the singles championship. More accurate placing at high speed has seldom been seen than that shown by Barclay in the first two sets. He clipped the lines so frequently that the umpire had a very anxious time. But Marsh had been forcing him to the top of his game, and directly he began to lose accuracy under the strain the New South Wales player forged ahead and won.

This was but one of many close contests in the early stages of the championships, for Marsh had to battle through another five sets in the following round against Pockley. "The hardest man to stop in a fifth set" was the description of Marsh by a good player and judge—a remark that many would not contradict. Barclay (Tas.) and Thomas (S.A.) hold out the best hopes of future greatness of all the visiting interstate players. The latter had A. B. Jones in great difficulties when he led 4-0 in the fifth set. It is hard to decide what caused the change that enabled Jones to win six games in succession after losing the previous seven. Some think condition told, but the change was too sudden for that to be solely responsible. It is likely that Thomas, seeing a prospective notable victory in store for him, became anxious. Certain it is that he became erratic as Jones began to draw up, and that the latter, noting the lack of confidence in the play of Thomas, became endowed with a greater degree of that quality. It is seldom that Jones has to fight two five-set matches in succession, but he was called upon to do so when Clarence Todd led him by two sets to one. But Jones is of the right temperament for such an ordeal, and he emerged triumphant from it. Though defeated, Todd gained in reputation, for Jones was in great form—better than when he met Thomas.

HOCKEY.

NO COMPETITION GAMES.

Hockey players will content themselves this season, which will commence on Saturday next, by playing club games only, the competitions having been abandoned. Many players will be absent from their accustomed places; the majority of them have responded to the call to arms, and others, owing to business demands, are unable to give the necessary time to the game. Consequently, the association has to face the season numerically weaker in clubs, and the best that is hoped for is that the interest in the game will be maintained through the friendly rivalry of club matches.

By keeping the game going the association will retain a grip on their grounds. It would be a pity if such areas as Marrickville and Imperial ovals were allowed to pass from the hockey men, as it would be a difficult matter to obtain grounds again. The majority of the games will be played on the grounds referred to, but some pleasant outings to Richmond are looked forward to, where the Hawkesbury Agricultural College ground will be again available.

It has been decided to join forces with the lacrosse players in an endeavour to make the proposed Belgian Fund field day a success.

Captain Frank Wheatland, the Victorian representative player, passed through Sydney last week, on his way to the front. It is interesting to know that several hockey matches were played at Rabaul while our troops were stationed there.

Mr. Thorpe Bray, of the Pilgrim's club, has been elected hon. treasurer of the association, in succession to Mr. Foskett. Mr. Foskett, however, is a trustee of the association, and that his interest in the game is still keen is shown by the offer of his services as an umpire.

WOMEN'S HOCKEY.

The Women's Hockey Association held its annual meeting last Saturday. Miss West presided, and there were 40 members present, representing the following clubs:—Amazon, Cooeyanna, Culwulla, Kookooburra, University, Graduates, Valkyrie, Wandah, Fortians, and the N.S. Girls' High School. The election of officers resulted:—President, Miss West; vice-president, Miss Walsh; hon. secretary, Miss Long; hon. treasurer, Miss Hamilton; committee, Mrs. P. B. Fitzhardinge, Misses Lyall, Warden, Friend, Vickery, Maybury, Wallach, Kent, McMurtrie, Fielding, Houison, and Crane; auditors, Mrs. Heath and Miss Brown.

In ordinary circumstances the interstate week would this year have been held in Tasmania, but it was agreed that on account of the war, and the consequent general depression, to postpone the carnival for one year. However, a patriotic tournament will be held in this State, and the funds raised thereby will be pooled with the returns from similar functions in the other States. Thus, all the Women's Hockey Associations in Australia will endeavour to do something substantial in assisting the afflicted.

The programme has not yet been drawn up, but it is hoped that matches will be arranged between selected teams and clubs, and with country teams and the schools. The meeting also decided to accede to the request from the New South Wales Hockey Association to join in the "hock-crosse" carnival on May 29, and a meeting will be held later in conjunction with the Women's Lacrosse Association.

SWIMMING.

William Longworth added another championship to his long list last week-end by annexing the Rose Bay Club's 100yds from his brother. The time, 60s, again demonstrates that Longworth seldom travels faster than he has to to win. The postponement of the Ladies' Patriotic Carnival, which was to have been held at Manly last Saturday, left this the only important event decided. The Ladies' Association has not been fortunate this year in regard to weather and counter-attractions, and it was wise to postpone last Saturday's event. As the result of its ill-fortune, the finances of the body are not in as healthy a state as formerly; nevertheless, the association has a band of enthusiastic officials, who will carry on the good work that is being accomplished, despite a temporary setback in the direction indicated.

Mr. W. W. Hill stated yesterday that he had not received any news from America regarding the proposed visit of Miss Fanny Durack to the Panama Exposition, other than that which we have already published. The consent of the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States is awaited, but it is felt that that body will probably await the letter sent in confirmation of the cable, and which should reach the officials in a few days' time. Miss Durack is anxious to leave on May 13. A circular has been issued by Mr. W. W. Scott, hon. secretary of the N.S.W.A.S.A., asking each club to supply a list of its members who have enlisted, and club secretaries are reminded that the list is required at once.

CYCLING.

THE ROAD SEASON.

CYCLISTS' UNION ANNUAL MEETING.

At the annual general meeting, to be held at the Sports Club this evening, the New South Wales Cyclists' Union will complete the thirty-second year of its existence.

Altogether the 1914-15 season has been one of exceptional difficulties. In the first place, the bad condition of the championship road course near Granville spoiled the Dunlop premiership competition. Then the general disorganisation caused by the war compelled the abandonment of the Goulburn-Sydney road race in September, besides affecting the entries for later road-racing fixtures. The same cause also resulted in decreased attendances at track carnivals. Still, for all that, a very liberal programme of events was carried out.

The honorary secretary (Mr. George Liggins) in his report says that the finances, the exceptional circumstances considered, are in very fair condition. The membership, however, shows a considerable falling off, and at present stands at 745, the Marrickville Club heading the list of the 32 affiliated clubs with 84 members.

A large number of members, the report says, have gone, or are now in training to go, with the Australian Expeditionary Forces; while others have been serving for home defence. Active cyclists are nearly all physically fit, and any more members who are free to go need have little fear of being rejected.

The treasurer's statement shows a credit balance of £113 2s 3d.

THE BETTING EVIL.

Dealing with the campaign against betting at track meetings, the report states:—"With a lively recollection of the nuisance caused during the previous track season by the frequent presence of bookmakers at our race-meetings, your executive this year took special steps to check the trouble early in the season. Without going into details, it is sufficient to report that the action taken resulted in the prosecution and conviction of two well-known offenders, who were both heavily fined. Though possibly not entirely stamped out, the evil has been effectively checked. Vigilance, however, will be necessary in order to prevent recurrence of this objectionable feature, which will certainly kill amateur cycling, as it did the professional side of the sport, if it is allowed to obtrude itself."

DUNLOP SHIELD.

The Cyclists' Union has received word from the Dunlop Rubber Company that as far as they are concerned they are quite prepared, as in the past, to carry out their share of the work of promoting the annual interclub premiership competition, and doubtful as the prospects of the season may be it is now certain that this popular series of events—it takes several weeks to run it off—will be put through.

"The preliminary round," Mr. George Liggins, hon. secretary of the New South Wales Cyclists' Union, stated yesterday, "in all probability will be commenced in June. The question of the course is already under consideration as well as any alterations to the conditions which may be deemed necessary. It would be only looking for trouble to run the event over the old Homebush course, even if the surface had improved. This is a far too heavily trafficked thoroughfare nowadays to run a teams race with the safety demanded by the union. The claims for the Enfield-Burwood course have also been reviewed, but, besides being in bad order, the road is narrow and there is no five-mile turn. The latter reason has weighed against the Baulkham Hills course being used, as it is impossible to turn a bunch of 12 or 14 riders round a mark in the middle of the road without a spill. The time trial conditions of last year will only be employed as a very last resort."

There are six clubs which will be able to put very fair teams into the field for this year's premiership. Eastern Suburbs (last year's winners) have an undiminished force, while Enfield-Burwood, Marrickville, Western Suburbs, Manly, and Liverpool, can all organise formidable road teams.

OPENING ROAD RACE.

Entries will close with the union officials on May 4, for the annual "Carbine" road race, to be held over a distance of nine miles on Saturday, May 22 and 29. This event, which is promoted every year by the City Cycle Club, is looked upon as the opening road race of the amateur season, and never fails to draw a large entry. This year it is likely to be the only short distance race run under the union's auspices, as that body is determined to continue its propaganda of long-distance events instituted a couple of years ago. The course for the "Carbine" has been arranged between the Sherwood Council Chambers and Prospect, the heats being run on May 22, and the final on May 29. Early entries may be lodged with Mr. R. Tuck, hon. secretary of the promoting club.

YACHTING.

THE LATE MR. CHARLES PARBURY.

Mr. Charles Parbury, one of the few remaining links with the past in connection with yachting at Sydney, and more particularly with the Royal Sydney Yacht Squadron, passed away in England last week. Mr. Parbury was one of the 19 gentlemen who met in Mr. William Walker's office, Exchange corner, Bridge-street, Sydney, on July 8, 1862, and formed what is now the Royal Sydney Yacht Squadron. Of these nineteen sportsmen there are now only two survivors, namely, the hon. Henry C. Dangar and Mr. P. J. Jackson.

As the owner of the famous yachts Why Not and Xarifa, Mr. Parbury was a prominent member of the aquatic sport in the 'Sixties, and, although he sold the latter yacht to a buyer from the South Sea Islands in [illegible], he always retained a keen interest in the sport, and at the time of his death was an honorary life member of the Royal Sydney Yacht Squadron, for which club he worked strenuously as a committeeman from its origin until leaving Sydney to take up his residence in London, and during that time held office as vice-commodore for three years.

Although eminently successful in yacht racing, first with Why Not and then with Xarifa, it was his match with the latter craft against the schooner Chance which made him most famous as a yachtsman and a sportsman. The Xarifa, which measured 31 tons, was in those days considered but a very small craft, and the fact that she was able to successfully carry through a match race from Sydney to Newcastle and back with an English built schooner rated at 78 tons, reflects credit on her Australian builder, Dan. Shea, of Woolloomooloo, her sporting owner, and her plucky and skilful crew, especially as in the hard southerly which blew during the race the topmast and jaws of the gaff carried away, and it was necessary to effect repairs to the latter while on the run to Newcastle, in readiness for the hard thrash back to Sydney. The race started from Sydney at 1 p.m. on Friday, February 26, 1864, and finished at 11 a.m. on Saturday, February 27, the distance being about 130 miles. It is interesting to note that the match was made immediately the keel of the Xarifa had been laid down.

Since those days the size of the racing yachts has considerably decreased, much to the regret of the old hands, and the ocean races are now held over very short courses. The largest of the racing fleet now is only of 18 tons register, and the recent interstate racing took place between yachts of four tons. The usual racing course outside the Heads does not now exceed five miles to sea, the exception being the annual contest for the Basin Cup, which extends along the coast as far as Broken Bay. With the larger yachts of Mr. Parbury's day it was often deemed necessary to engage a fair percentage of professional yachtsmen to form the crews for racing, which did not take place as frequently as in modern times, but in these days the crews are composed almost entirely of amateurs.

Amongst the valued paintings conspicuous in the club-house of the Royal Sydney Yacht Squadron are two of the Xarifa; one running before the southerly gale with square sail and raffee set, and another standing in under North Head on the port tack, with topmast gone and trysail gaff lashed to the damaged gaff, and the mainsail double reefed, in which condition she finished some three hours ahead of her formidable rival. As long as the club exists these two pictures should perpetuate the memory of Mr. Parbury and the Xarifa.

Mr. Watt and Mr. Tighe, instructed by Mr. Cecil A. Coghlan and Co., appeared for the plaintiff in each case; and Mr. Windeyer, instructed by Messrs. McLachlan and Murray, for the defendants. As the actions arose out of the same circumstances it was agreed that they should be heard together. The plaintiffs William Henderson and Benjamin Timms, coalminers, sued defendants to recover compensation for injuries sustained by them in Mount Keira colliery on July 14 of last year. An outline of the case for plaintiffs has already been given. Damages were laid at £500 in each case.

Defendants denied that they had been guilty of any negligence, either at common law or under the Employers' Liability Act.

The case still stands part heard.

Everingham v Penrith Council.

REGISTRATION OF MORTGAGE AND TRANSFER.

Peek v Peek and others.

The hearing of the suit of Peek v Peek and others, in which George Augustus Peek asked the Court, among other things, for an injunction restraining the Registrar-General from registering a purported memorandum of mortgage, over certain lands at Granville, came to an abrupt conclusion.

At the close of the plaintiff's case, the defendant, Arthur Richard Peek, was called by the defendants, the Commercial Banking Company of Sydney, Ltd., to give evidence for the defence, but he failed to appear. The defendant Bank called no further evidence, and his Honor made a decree in favour of the plaintiff, in terms of practically the whole of the prayers in his statement of claim. The defendant Bank was ordered to pay plaintiff's costs of the suit, except so far as they had been increased by joining Barbara Taylor as a party to the suit, and obtaining relief against her; Barbara Taylor to pay such increased costs. His Honor said the defendant Bank and Barbara Taylor were entitled to receive from the defendant, Arthur Richard Peek, any costs they might have been called upon to pay to the plaintiff under the decree; the costs of the Registrar-General to be paid by the plaintiff, and added to his costs of the suit.

His Honor added that the papers should be sent to the Attorney-General for his consideration as to whether proceedings should not be taken against Arthur Richard Peek.

Mr. Loxton, K.C. and Mr. Jordan, instructed by Messrs. Perkins, Stevenson, and Company, agents for Mr. C. E. Byrnes, of Parramatta, appeared for the plaintiff, George Augustus Peek; Mr. R. H. L. Innes, instructed by Messrs. Dibbs, Parker, and Parker, for the defendants, the Commercial Banking Company of Sydney, Ltd., who disputed the whole of the plaintiff's claim; Mr. Bethune, instructed by the Crown Solicitor, for the defendant, the Registrar-General, to submit to any order the Court might make; and Mr. W. H. Atkinson, for the defendant, Barbara Taylor, who also submitted to any order the Court might make. There was no appearance on behalf of the defendant, Arthur Richard Peek.

DIVORCE COURT.

DECREES ABSOLUTE.

His Honor made absolute the decrees nisi in the following suits and declared the marriages dissolved:—Lillian (or Lily) May Thackeray v Charles Thackeray; Lillian Sarah Chadwick v Walter Thomas Chadwick; Mabel Charlotte Wilson Thompson v Robert Thompson; Mary Ellen McKinnon v John McKinnon; Ellen Violet Louisa Allen v Robert Cruse Allen; Alice Moran (also known as Eliza Alice Moran) v Levi Morán; George Gillam v Ada Blanche Gillam; Samuel Johnston Hunter v Bertha May Hunter.

(Before Mr. Justice Street.)

ELLIOTT v ELLIOTT.

Mr. Boyce, instructed by Mr. W. H. Drew, appeared for petitioner, Dorathea or Dora Elliott (formerly Jacobe), who sought for a dissolution of her marriage with William John Cyril Elliott, on the ground of respondent's misconduct with a woman at Sydney. The parties were married at the Lutheran Church, Melbourne, on December 19, 1888.

His Honor having heard evidence of petitioner, found the issues in her favour and granted a decree nisi, returnable in six months.

BAXTER v BAXTER.

Mr. E. J. Spear appeared for the petitioner, Ernest George Baxter, clerk, who sued for the dissolution of his marriage with Annie Gertrude Baxter (formerly Pearce), on the ground of respondent's desertion for three years and upwards, without just cause or excuse. The parties were married on July 27, 1893, at Lithgow, according to the rites of the Primitive Methodist Church. Petitioner, having given evidence in proof of the desertion charged, his Honor reserved his decision.

PROBATE COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice Street.)

WILL OF ELIZABETH WALL, DECEASED.

Cummins and another v Wall and another.

The hearing was concluded of the suit, in which Celia Jane Cummins and Charles Henry Gale, who claimed to be the executrix, executors, and trustees of the last will and testament of Elizabeth Wall, widow, late of West Maitland, asked that probate of the will, dated July 9, 1913, be granted to them; which application was opposed by the defendants, Edward Wall and Una Elizabeth Wall, grandchildren of the deceased, on the grounds that the alleged will of July 9, 1913, had not been duly executed as required by law; that at the time of the alleged execution, the deceased was not of sound and disposing mind, memory, and understanding, and did not know and approve of the contents of the alleged will; and that the execution of the document had been obtained by the alleged undue influence of the plaintiff, Celia Jane Cummins, and others acting with her.

His Honor reserved his decision.

Mr. Halse Rogers, instructed by Messrs. Webster and Maclean, agents for Messrs. R. W. Thompson and Son, of West Maitland, appeared for the plaintiffs; and Mr. Ralston, K.C., and Mr. Parker, instructed by Messrs. T. J. Dickson and Dickson, agents for Messrs. Norrie and Lindsay, of West Maitland, for the defendants.

PRIZE COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice Street.)

MOTION FOR VALUATION.

Re The Carl Rudgert Vinnen.

Mr. H. E. Manning, instructed by the Commonwealth Crown Solicitor, appeared for the Crown, and applied under rule 29 (4) of the prize rules, for an order fixing the value of the vessel. Mr. Tighe, instructed by Mr. S. E. Cook, appeared for Andrews Sandrel, the master of the vessel; and also for the owners. Dr. Brissenden, instructed by Mr. S. E. Cook (agent for Messrs. Sparke and Millard, of Newcastle), appeared for Messrs. J. and A. Brown, who had a claim on the vessel for money advanced. Mr. Manning said that on July 29 the ship was requisitioned by the Admiralty, and was in port when hostilities broke out. The Chief Justice on October 7 of last year, made an order for the detention of the ship, and on March 31 last, an order was granted for its temporary delivery to the Lords of the Admiralty. Under that order the ship was handed over to the Admiralty on the 15th inst. As a matter of fact, applications had already been made for appraisement, under another rule, of this and other German vessels, but they were adjourned; and an appraisement would involve the payment of commission. The proper officer of the Crown now asked the court to fix the value under rule 29. The value of the vessels when so ascertained would be paid into court by the Admiralty, and the Admiralty could then insure to cover its liability.

Dr. Brissenden said that the best and fairest way of dealing with the matter was by appraisement by the Registrar, and two assessors, after hearing evidence in which case respondents would have the right to nominate one of the assessors.

His Honor referred the question to the Registrar to ascertain the value of the ship on the 15th inst., and also the value of the consumable stores and provisions on that date; the usual undertaking to be given by the Admiralty as to security or payment into court.

Similar orders in respect of the Athene and Ernst were made, the value to be fixed as on April 12, the date of delivery to the Admiralty. Mr. Weston, instructed by Messrs. Sly and Russell, appeared for the masters and owners of the two vessels.

Mr. Herbert Harris, Crown Prosecutor.

BOGUS ADVERTISEMENTS.

Mack Albert and Cyril Gregory, both young men, were arraigned on a charge of conspiring together to cheat and defraud Charles Sant and Robert Marquam Gillam of divers large sums of money, on January 14, 1915. Both pleaded not guilty. Albert was defended by Mr. E. R. Abigail and Gregory by Mr. H. E. M'Intosh. In response to an advertisement for a painter with £25, to whom £3 per week would be guaranteed, Sant, who is a Maltese, interviewed the two men. Gregory went with him to the bank, and Sant drew out £25 and handed it over. He got a receipt for his money, but no work to do, and when he applied for his money back he was told he had not lodged any. Gillam had answered an advertisement for a man for a position of trust. He deposited £1 with the accused, at their office in Rawson-place. The defence was a complete denial.

The jury convicted the accused of conspiracy, and they were remanded for sentence.

ALLEGED FORGING AND UTTERING.

John O'Sullivan, aged 52, was arraigned on a charge of forging an endorsement on a cheque for £9 signed by Albert Bourke, a hotelkeeper, of Bathurst, in favour of E. R. Arpante, a wholesale cigar merchant at Sydney. Accused, who pleaded not guilty, was defended by Mr. McMahon. O'Sullivan was employed by Messrs. E. R. Arpante and Co. as a traveller. He received the cheque from a publican at Bathurst, drawn in favour of "E. R. Arpante," with "bearer" crossed out. He then visited the Park Hotel, and tendered the cheque for payment of refreshments, endorsed, "E. R. Arpante, per J.O.S." He subsequently attempted to rub out the endorsement, scratched a hole in the paper, and then pasted another piece of paper over it.

O'Sullivan admitted that he had endorsed the cheque, and said he had done so with scores of cheques. He had run out of money and needed some to pay his expenses on the trip on which Arpante had sent him. Arpante had a fidelity guarantee bond of £200 against any money the accused might collect on his behalf. He had been allowed only £2 to go away on a trip to Newcastle, and, having exceeded that amount, he was given 27s 6d for expenses on the western trip. Accused broke down in the witness box, and said he never had any idea of being charged with forgery. It was admitted that O'Sullivan had a good character.

The jury found a verdict of not guilty.

"Not guilty, gentlemen," said his Honor. "Did you bear in mind that you were sworn to find a true verdict, according to the evidence?" Turning to the accused, his Honor said: "O'Sullivan, you are discharged. I think it is a pity the jury have made a mistake, and acquitted you of a charge to which you admitted you were guilty. It would have been better for you to have had something to pull you up on your course of drinking."

QUARTER SESSIONS.

(Before Judge Murray and juries.)

Mr. C. A. White, Crown Prosecutor.

YOUTH PLEADS GUILTY.

Sydney Victor Ferguson, for whom Mr. E. R. Abigail appeared, pleaded guilty to a charge of breaking and entering the dwelling house of William Alfred Dudley, at Randwick, on January 20, and stealing therein £5 8s, the property of various occupants of the house. Mrs. Dudley appeared and asked the Court to be lenient with the boy, whom she had known for some time. Ferguson was bound over in £50 to appear for sentence if called on, and was sent forthwith to the Gosford Industrial Home, where he had formerly been an inmate.

WARRANT ISSUED.

Jimmy Simmons, who had been committed on a charge of a serious assault on Walter Short, did not appear when called. His Honor ordered the forfeiture of the recognisances on which he had been admitted to bail and the issue of a Bench warrant for his arrest.

ACQUITTED.

William Doherty, aged 60, was charged with stealing a horse, the property of John Williams, at Marrickville, on January 26. Mr. E. R. Abigail appeared for the accused, who pleaded not guilty. Doherty took a horse from the stable, while under the influence of liquor, and rode it to his home at Blacktown. The defence was that a day or two before, Doherty had purchased a horse and left it in the same livery stable. He had taken the wrong horse in mistake for his own.

The jury acquitted Doherty without hearing counsel. His Honor said Doherty left the court without a stain on his character as to his honesty. He hoped the experience would convince him of the wisdom of giving up the ruinous, idiotic, disastrous, and ghastly habit of taking poison into his system for a few moments' happiness, and possibly for life-long misery.

SENTENCED FOR CONSPIRACY.

George Hill and Harry Hooper, who had been tried on the previous day on a charge of conspiring to defraud Percy Ferguson Barnes of large sums of money, in connection with the sale of an alleged poultry farm at Bankstown, were again arraigned. The jury, which had been locked up all night, returned into court with a verdict of guilty against both accused. In Hooper's case, however, they added a strong recommendation to mercy. His Honor sentenced Hill to three months' hard labour in Goulburn Gaol, and ordered him to enter into a bond, with a surety, for the payment of £20 compensation to Barnes. Hooper was sentenced to six months, but was released on his own recognisance as a first offender, to be of good behaviour for twelve months.

THE KENNEL.

(BY W.C.J.)

"Myrmidon" writes suggesting that it would be a good move if the Fox Terrier Club held its June championship show somewhere near the city, as he thinks Brighton-le-Sands is too far distant.

The Victorian Fox and Irish Terrier Club has issued its prize schedule for an open interstate show on May 28 and 29 next. Thirty-one classes are provided, and a number of trophies are offered for competition, one of them being that of the New South Wales Fox Terrier Club, valued at £5 5s. The show will be held under the rules of the Victorian P. and K. Club.

Club secretaries are reminded that notes for this column must be sent in not later than Tuesday morning.

Mr. A. C. Wilson, hon. secretary of the Sydney Silky Yorkshire and Australian Terrier Club, writes:—"At the club's last meeting the matter of a Patriotic Dog Show was discussed. The members decided that it would be advisable to hold a general parade of dogs for the benefit of the Belgian Fund." Mr. Wilson adds that he has since learned that the Kennel Club of New South Wales has taken the matter in hand.

Dr. T. K. Hamilton, of North Terrace, Adelaide, owns two good Scottish Terriers, which he imported. The dog Abertay Aviator is very well bred, as also is the bitch Becher's Betty. Puppies from this pair were advertised for sale in Saturday's "Herald."

The Toy Dog Club of New South Wales held a successful meeting at Bateman's Hotel. Several new members were elected, and others proposed. Mr. Horace Elliott was elected president, and Mr. G. Newman chairman. The financial side of the club is satisfactory, as, after balancing up for the parade and the combined show, a substantial credit remained. The club decided to use its influence to promote a successful Patriotic Dog Show, and a letter to that effect has been forwarded to the secretary of the Kennel Club of New South Wales. Prize money has been posted out to the successful exhibitors in the club's section at the recent combined show, and special prizes will be dealt with later on.

Several valuable greyhounds have lately been poisoned at Leichhardt. Mr. Cobcroft lost Q. Queen, a Derby puppy, and a couple of others.

The Bulldog Club of New South Wales announces that the series of evening parades will be continued next Wednesday at the Imperial Hotel, Wynyard-square. Four classes will be judged, viz., puppy dogs under six months and under twelve months, and the same classes for bitches. Mr. W. L. Eggins will make the awards.

The fees fixed by the Bulldog Club are.—For registration, 1s; transfer, 1s; prefix, 5s; affix, 5s.

FOX-TERRIER CLUB.

The fifth championship annual winter show of the Fox-terrier Club will be held on June 19. With this is incorporated the Sires and Dams' Produce Stakes of 1914-15. The schedule for general classes embraces:—For smooths: Puppy, Australian bred, and open dog and bitch for A grade members, puppy and Australian-bred dog and bitch for B grade members, and the same classification for C grade members. For wires: Puppy dog, puppy bitch, open dog, open bitch. Entries for Sires and Dams' Produce Stakes close on May 22, general entries on June 5. General entries, 4s each. Prize money is fixed in smooth classes at 20s first, 10s second, and 4s third; and in wire classes according to the number of entries received. Mr. T. S. Prescott at the last general meeting of the club was elected judge by a large majority of votes.

At the last meeting of the club reference was made to the death of Mr. Albert Doyle, an old fancier. A resolution of sympathy with his relatives was passed.

A TIGHT CORNER.

CHAPTER I.

THE FREAK WAGER.

Bob Marlowe—long before he became Sir Robert—had always gone his own way regardless of consequences and other people's opinions. He was only nineteen when, to use his own words, he "disowned his uncle and disinherited himself."

The quarrel—not the first between them—was brief but final. He had been home about eighteen months from France, where most of his boyhood had been spent, when he refused point-blank to go to Oxford and then into the Church on the ground that he "preferred to do something useful."

Sir Ernest, the wealthy head of an old Tory family, steeped in self-importance and saturated with veneration for the conventions, was scandalised, and told him so.

"I don't see why you should expect me to do just what you tell me," replied Bob. "It's all right for Claude—he's that sort. Besides, he's your son, a model of your own moulding, and is to succeed you. But I'm not built that way. I don't mean to waste my time at Oxford, and should only make an ass of myself in the Church. A hundred and fifty a year as a curate doesn't appeal to me."

"And pray, what does appeal to you?" asked Sir Ernest, thinking himself severely satirical.

"I've decided to learn a trade—the motoring business—and I've arranged to start at once as an apprentice in Boscawen's big works in Coventry."

Sir Ernest gasped in amazement and rage. "Do you mean that you dare to disgrace the family by—by being a common working man?" he spluttered.

Bob's blue eyes smiled. "I don't see any disgrace in earning one's living by hard work?"

"Are you mad? Do you know what this means to you? That if you dare to do anything of the sort I'll cast you off."

"If it comes to that it's I who am casting you off."

"You'll never have another shilling from me, sir."

"There'll be all the more for Claude, then; and I shall have to start as a mechanic instead of apprentice. That's the only difference."

"You ungrateful young fool——you insolent scoundrel ——"

"Steady, Uncle Ernest, steady," interposed Bob, his eyes lighting with quiet determination. "Fool I may be, but scoundrel I am not, and will not allow anyone to call me, if you please."

"You'd better be off about your business, then. And mind, don't you ever look to me for a penny piece. You go your way for the future, and I'll go mine. You leave the Towers to-day, unless you're prepared to do what I tell you."

"I shan't come to heel, sir——it's not in my nature. I'm sorry ——"

"That'll do. I've had more than I can stand already."

Bob went to the door, and then paused. "As I'm going away, there's something else I'd better tell you. I'm going to marry Olive Peters."

This was the crowning blow. Pretty Olive Peters was the daughter of the one man in Achester whom Sir Ernest hated with a hate that was unquenchable. An ex-official of a Welsh Miners' Union, a born leader of men, and master of a perfervid Welsh vituperation, Peters had led a revolt against the influence of the Towers, and had been mainly instrumental in ousting Sir Ernest at the last election.

The news thus stung him as keenly as if Bob had laid a whip-lash across his face, and he stood a moment glaring at him, his eyes ablaze with unspeakable fury.

"I don't care which route you choose to go to the devil," he growled at length. "I wash my hands of you. Get out of my sight."

Bob accepted his dismissal quite contentedly. He packed a few clothes, left the house, and went straight to Olive to tell her the news and ask her to wait for him.

He was only a boy, with unquestioning faith in the idol of his calf love, and having secured her promise went to Coventry and started his work the next day in the engineering shed.

He was glad to have cast off the shackles of Achester Towers, and threw himself into his work with almost fierce energy and tireless concentration. He soon made his way, and in a couple of years he was so far master of his work that when the firm branched out into the manufacture of aeroplanes he was made foreman of the new sheds, with a wage quite large enough to warrant his marrying.

There had been gaps in his recent correspondence with Olive, and he was on the eve of writing to tell her the good news, when a letter came to say she had tired of waiting, and had married a Dr. Fellowes, who had been at Achester as locum tenens for one of the other doctors.

He took the blow, as he did all things, without flinching. He had been faultlessly faithful to her, and the disappointment hit him very hard. But he sent her a pretty wedding present and a letter of congratulations, offered in genuine sincerity. "No doubt you were right not to wait, and I ought not to have expected it. My only wish is for your happiness, and I trust with all my heart you will never have cause to regret your decision," he said.

But in less than six months she did regret it, with tears of bitter mortification and chagrin, for the startling news came that Sir Ernest and his son had gone down in the Archaic as they were starting on a tour round the world, and Bob became Sir Robert Marlowe, owner of Achester Towers, and an income of over twenty thousand a year.

Bob found it difficult to believe the news, and much more difficult to accustom himself to the changed conditions. There was an end of the work in the sheds, of course; but the last six months had inspired him with a love of aviation. He had already made several ascents, and he was not contented until he became a really skilful and somewhat daring airman.

He did not forget Olive, and his method of revenge was characteristic. He would not see her; but when he learnt that she and her husband were having a tough struggle for existence he used his influence to obtain a good appointment for the doctor, so arranging matters that they should not know it was his doing.

His work at Coventry proved an invaluable training, for it made a man of him, strengthening his independence and resourcefulness. And his love affair materially changed his attitude toward women. Naturally chivalrous, it was impossible for him to be other than courteous and gentle with even the lowliest and feeblest; but he persuaded himself that he had done with love affairs for all time, and that women had ceased to interest him.

In the next three or four years he travelled widely. The hunting of big game was the avowed object, and he chose as a rule those regions which were least known, facing hardships which would have broken down any man whose life had been less clean and constitution less sturdy.

When in London he preferred a club life and the society of men, persistently refusing the invitations showered upon him as a great "catch." And this, coupled with his Coventry experience and certain unconventional acts, secured for him a reputation as "an eccentric sort of chap." This really meant little more than that, as always, he chose his own path, heedless alike of consequences and of the opinions of other people.

Thus a freak wager which he made one day at his club, the "Twen-Cen," that he would travel across Europe, starting without money and earning his living as he went, was a surprise only to those who did not know him.

The talk had turned upon one or two freak wagers of the kind; about one man who had trundled a barrow through England, a couple who had rolled a cask from one end of Europe to the other, and so on. Bob laughed at the difficulties, declaring that anyone could earn enough by work to make such a journey; and when one of the "nuts" sneeringly suggested he should try, he promptly accepted the challenge and the conditions were arranged on the spot.

He was to journey from Calais to Rome, doing the part of the journey from Paris to Marseilles on foot; he was to have one sovereign only in his pocket on leaving Calais, was not to borrow nor beg a sou, nor sell anything, not give his own name to anyone on the journey, but to depend entirely on what he could earn on the way; he was not to stay more than five days in any one place; he was to start that night, and was to complete the journey and be in Rome on May 22—two months from that day.

"It's a bit harum scarum even for you, Bob," said his friend, Dick Gendall, when the others had left.

"I shall enjoy every minute of it. I wouldn't miss the job for twice the amount of the bet," was the reply with a light laugh.

"But how will you manage?"

"It'll be as easy as holing a three-inch putt, man. While you were writing the conditions I planned it all. You cross with me to-night to see that I start fair. Well, I shall train it to Paris, third-class, of course, and that will leave me with a few francs over for emergencies. I shall go straight to the flying ground at Issy and get some sort of a job, and then do enough flying to put me in funds and get a testimonial to use at Marseilles. I can foot it there in a month at the outside—I'm as hard as nails, and can do twenty-five miles a day or more, without turning a hair. At Marseilles I'll get another job as a chauffeur or a flying man; and I'm out of my reckoning if I don't finish well ahead of my time."

"It'll be a tight squeeze, Bob, even with your Coventry experiences to help you out."

"Not a bit of it. I'm half French, and, what's more, I know every inch of the road. If you'd like a little flutter on your own, I'll bet you a fiver I not only reach Rome by May 22, but get back to town and have more than enough in my pocket to pay you the fiver into the bargain."

POULTRY.

Questions relating to fancy or commercial poultry keeping, diseases, etc., should be addressed to Ancona, "Herald" Office.

Fanciers have responded with a big entry for the Parramatta show at the end of this week. The new breeds, as at the Royal, will form an excellent section. Rhode Island Reds, Buttercups, and Sussex have 35, 25, and 22 entries respectively. Wyandottes and Orpingtons tie, there being 75 in each, Leghorns beating them by 11. In the three sections—poultry, pigeons, and canaries—the entries are within a few of a thousand.

The hon. secretary of the Railway and Tramway Poultry, Pigeon, and Canary Club presented a balance-sheet at the late annual meeting, showing a credit balance of over £15. The following officers were elected for the year:—Patrons, president, and vice-presidents, chief officers of the departments; committee, Messrs. Curry, Face, Arnold, Turner, Long, Lyons, Doran, Burgess, Auld, Hughes, McKendry, Thomas, Minogue, Minogue, Lawson, Edwards, and Maloney; hon. treasurer, Mr. F. Westwood; hon. secretary, Mr. W. J. Minnett; assistant hon. secretary, Mr. G. Brooke. The annual show is to be held on June 25 and 26.

An enthusiastic meeting of Rhode Island Red fanciers was held on Monday evening last to further the interests of that breed of fowls. A club was formed, the object of which will be to encourage breeders to work for better type and colour, and to secure competent judges for the breed. The officers elected were:—President, Mr. R. E. Bannister; vice-presidents, Messrs. Dalrymple, Hughes, Evans, and Thomas; committee, Dr. Greenwell, Messrs. Wynn, McMenamin, and Norris; hon. secretary and treasurer, Mr. R. J. Hill-Smith. Already there is a large membership.

In the early days of the egg-laying competitions in this State, the winners and other good laying pens fetched fancy prices, both at auction and privately. An Australian record has, however, been made in Victoria, the winning pen of six Leghorns at the late Burnley test, owned by Mr. O. Mullane, of Castlemaine, being sold to Mr. E. Lawson, of Camberwell, for £75.

During the past week supplies at the poultry salerooms have been greater than usual. The demand, while continuing good, will not absorb the quantities offering. Necessarily low prices obtain. Poor quality Leghorn hens went in some yards as low as 1s 9d per pair, and English ducks at the same price; rates which show a loss to the rearers. A few good meaty roosters, however, fetched in the Municipal Markets up to 9s per couple. The demand has now opened for out-of-season hatched birds, known as grillers, and prices are much better than those obtained for the larger sized birds two months ago.

The excessive food bills and the bad times now being experienced by poultry breeders have resulted in two States closing down on egg-laying competitions. South Australia, which put down an expensive plant at Parafield, announced some time ago that the current year's competition would be allowed to lapse. This has been followed by the Tasmanian Government, which specially erected 30 pens for the purpose. Only 10 entries were received, and the department then decided to abandon the competition.

A witness before the Necessary Commodities Commission on Tuesday, referring to the scarcity and price of chickwheat, said that the Attorney-General had ascertained that experiments carried out at the Hawkesbury College with maize in lieu of chickwheat had resulted favourably. This evidence was bewildering to poultry-farmers, who are all aware that, before there was a ploughed field in Australia, maize was the universal poultry food, and that it continues so to-day. If, however, the favourable comparison was in relation to price, the statement was more confusing still, seeing that maize is being retailed near Sydney at 6s 8d for the 56lb bushel, while 60lb of wheat can be had for the same price.

RAILWAY COLLISION.

A QUESTION OF PENALTIES.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL REPORTER.)

BINALONG, Tuesday.

The inquest on Robert John Thomas, victim of the Binalong railway smash was resumed to-day, before Mr. A. O. Butler and a jury.

Traffic Inspector Arthur Izzard Burt confirmed the statements made by previous witnesses regarding the set of the points. After the collision he interviewed Cotter, who admitted having made a mistake in pulling the up starter, up main starter, up home, and up main inner distant signals.

The P.M.: Did he make any complaints about being run down or overworked, or of having any domestic troubles?—No; he seemed to be very calm.

Witness said Cotter was recognised as being a first-class officer. He had made no complaints at any time that the work was too much for him.

Mr. Howard: Supposing Cotter had backed the Temora mail into the loop, and thereby delayed the express for one minute, what would have been the result?—I don't remember a case where a man has been punished for delaying the express for a minute, or even two. There would probably be an inquiry into the matter.

Mr. Howard: How long would it have taken the night officer to attend to the platform duties and get the mail train into the loop?—About seven minutes.

To a Juryman: The mail was standing at the station for 16 minutes.

In reply to Inspector Thom, witness said the delay of the express would be a secondary consideration to the safety of the passengers. The only time officers were penalised was where it could be shown that the delay was caused by bad working.

John Clark Gilbert, night officer at Galong, the first station south of Binalong, said the express left Rocky Ponds at 3.51, and he immediately informed Binalong when it passed through Galong at 4.1, fourteen minutes late. He again warned Binalong, and got an acknowledgement. After the accident, Cotter rang up witness, and asked him to get the brakedown from Galong. Asked how the collision occurred, Cotter said: "It was entirely my own fault," but he did not give any details. After the express left Galong, and before the collision occurred, witness spoke to Cotter over the telephone regarding the crossing of the second express. The conversation ended about 4.10, or possibly later, when Cotter rang off, saying that he was going to turn the Temora mail into the loop.

The P.M.: Would it not have been just as effective if Cotter had delayed having his conversation with you until after he had attended to the crossing of the express and the mail?—Yes.

Arthur Pooley, night officer at Illalong, on the Sydney side of Binalong, said that from 3.59, when the Temora mail arrived at the station, till 4.10, when application was made for a tablet, there would be ample time to turn her into the loop.

The inquest was adjourned until to-morrow morning, at Yass, where medical evidence will be taken regarding the result of the post mortem examination, after that there will be a further adjournment until May 12, at Temora.

SOLICITOR'S APPLICATION.

At the conclusion of to-day's proceedings at Binalong, Mr. Howard, the solicitor appearing for Cotter, the night officer, who is on bail, on a charge of causing the death of Robert Thomas, asked if his client might be excused from attending at Yass to-morrow.

The P.M.: I cannot understand why the application should be made.

Cotter: It is all a matter of pounds, shillings, and pence with me, your Worship.

The P.M.: I don't think it is, Mr. Cotter, in view of the fact that there are subscription lists in every establishment in town, and nearly £50 has been collected for you.

Mr. Howard: He knows nothing about that.

The P.M.: The very dogs are barking it.

WHO HOLDS SUPPLIES?

COMMODITIES' COMMISSION INQUIRY.

The inquiry into the selling price of chaff, conducted by the Necessary Commodities' Control Commission, at the request of the Attorney-General, was continued yesterday, when the examination of witnesses was concluded.

Mr. D'Arcy Irvine appeared on behalf of the Crown Law Department; and Mr. R. J. Mulholland represented the Sussex-street merchants. Mr. T. I. Campbell watched the proceedings in the interest of the Farmers and Settlers' Association.

After hearing the evidence of several witnesses from the country, the commission decided to call for a return showing the quantities of the following commodities in excess of the amount named held by any merchant or dealer at midnight on April 29:—Hay, 10 tons; chaff, 10 tons; maize, 50 bushels; oats, 50 bushels.

Mr. Mulholland promised to supplement the evidence given by the Sussex-street merchants with a return showing the prices at which the present holders of chaff had bought their supplies. This return will be handed to the Commissioners this morning, and will be taken into consideration by them when fixing the price.

Mr. Justice Edmunds stated that the speculator would not receive much consideration at the hands of the commission. The man who had sold without holding unduly and the agent who had sold at prices that were not excessive would, however, be protected.

Mr. Bowd (Cameron and M'Fadyen), examined by Mr. Mulholland, stated that it was not true that his firm had held 1000 tons of chaff in the Dubbo district. Only about 400 tons had been held, some of which was sold. His firm had contracts oversea for the supply of 1000 tons of chaff (New Zealand), 4000 tons Java maize, and 7500 tons of oats. The fixing of a price would mean a big loss to his firm.

Mr. Myles M'Rae, a produce merchant, stated that, in his opinion, Sussex-street merchants had recently been making as much as £4 a ton out of hay. In certain districts they were only offering £4/10/ per ton to the farmer.

Mr. Mulholland asked if Mr. M'Rae could explain why the Government had to go "cap in hand" to the farmers to buy at £7 10s per ton.

Mr. M'Rae, continuing, stated that dairymen were selling quantities of stock owing to the price of fodder. The Government should import. If 5000 tons were dumped down here there would be a "flutter in the dovecotes of Sussex-street."

Mr. Irvine stated that the only chaff being exported by the Government was for the Port Augusta railway.

A return from the Railway Department showed that 22,472 tons of chaff had been carried to the other States during the four months ended April 17. Of this quantity 16,130 tons had gone to Victoria and South Australia, via Albury, 2297 tons to Victoria and South Australia, via Tocumwal, 2112 tons to Victoria and South Australia, via Corowa, and 1933 tons to Queensland, via Wallangarra.

THE VANMEN.

PROPOSED INCREASED CHARGES.

DEPUTATION TO CHIEF SECRETARY.

The high price of fodder was brought under the notice of the Chief Secretary yesterday, when a deputation representing the licensed van proprietors in the metropolitan area, introduced by Mr. Thrower, M.L.A., asked that their charges should be increased.

Under the Metropolitan Traffic Act of 1900 the charges are regulated at 2s for the first half-hour or any part thereof, and 1s 3d for every additional half-hour; and the deputation asked that an increase should be made to 2s 6d for the first half-hour, and 2s for any additional half-hour or part thereof.

Mr. Thrower said that for the last six months the prices of all forage had increased, until chaff, which was £4 10s per ton last year, recently touched £10 per ton, and maize, oats, lucerne, and other lines had increased proportionately, so that the cost of feeding was more than 100 per cent. above normal rates.

Mr. Black, in reply, informed the deputation that he could say at once that he thought their request was reasonable. Undoubtedly, the price of fodder and other necessary commodities had increased considerably, and the position was very serious. He would go into the matter, which he thought was really one of regulation, and if he found it possible to grant their request he would do so. He would probably come to a decision during the week.

THE BLIND.

WORK OF THE INDUSTRIAL INSTITUTION.

A SUCCESSFUL YEAR.

The annual meeting of the Sydney Industrial Blind Institution was held yesterday. The Governor, Sir Gerald Strickland, presided.

In moving the adoption of the report, Sir Thomas Anderson Stuart, vice-president, gave a brief review of the year's operations. He said that the output of the shops had been greater than ever. Every blind worker had been fully employed, and new workers had been taken on, but, with all this, they had been compelled to refrain from tendering for several large contracts, owing to lack of labour. This lack of labour was not because there were not enough blind persons in the State—there are about 1000 in all, and 800 were over 21 years of age, a fair proportion of whom they could find work for, and yet they only had 119 at work. There was a great field for the expansion of the institution; but it could only be by a change of attitude in the blind themselves. The committee had done its best to induce them to come forward. The results had not been achieved without effort on the part of the management. In all, 119 persons were employed in making mats, baskets, brushes, brooms, bedding, halters, wicker furniture, caning chairs, teaching, and transcribing Braille books. The wages and allowances earned in 1914 totalled £6421, which was £783 more than last year. No less than £683 was paid in 1914 for transcribing the Braille books. The Wages Board rates would have given £3790 to the workers coming under the award, but to this they had to add no less than half as much again—£1947. This large amount was part of the philanthropic work of the institution, which recognised that a blind person was handicapped in the race of life, and therefore by bonuses on their earnings the institution made up the difference so as to enable the blind to live in comfort.

In addition to the bonuses, there were many other benefits conferred by the institution in order to ameliorate the lot of the afflicted. No less than 825 visits were made by the two teachers, who covered thousands of miles.

The free circulating library of embossed books was perhaps the largest collection of its kind in the world, and it was referred to in the most eulogistic terms at the recent International Congress in London. Two hundred and seventy-four persons read the books last year, and nearly 5000 books were used, sent and carried free of charge by the Railway Commissioners. For the first time in the history of Braille journalism daily war bulletins to the number of 3500 had been published in the embossed type and distributed to the readers. The homes for women and boys formed a most important part of our philanthropic work. The donations and bequests were, however, larger, and the year ended with £23 more than in the previous year.

The motion was seconded by Dr. Crago and carried.

Sir Charles Mackellar, in moving a motion endorsing the public support given to the institution, said that besides giving aid the institute had another object, and sought to make blind people independent by teaching them trades and callings by which they could support themselves. The founders of the institution kept the teaching scheme in the foremost place in their minds, and the success which was achieved had won the highest praise from experts throughout the world.

The motion was seconded by Mr. A. W. Meeks, and carried.

Dr. Kelly, Roman Catholic Archbishop, moved that the committee for 1915 be Sir Thomas Anderson Stuart, Messrs. T. F. Waller, Sutherland Sinclair, A. W. Meeks, A. Consett Stephen, E. W. Molesworth, A. E. Phillips, S. E. Lees, W. M. D. Merewether, A. E. Tooth, Ernest A. Scott, John Lane Mullins, Hugh Denison, Dr. Eric Sinclair, and Sir Charles Mackellar.

The motion was seconded by the Rev. John Ferguson, and agreed to.

The proceedings concluded with a vote of thanks to his Excellency, moved by Mr. John Lane Mullins.

NEW CITY STREET.

PARRAMATTA-ROAD TO PYRMONT BRIDGE-ROAD.

The matter of the construction of a new street, 48ft in width, running from Parramatta road to Pyrmont Bridge-road, in front of the Royal Alexandra Hospital for Children, was again before the works committee of the City Council yesterday, having been referred back by the council for further consideration.

The chairman of the committee stated that the estimated cost would be £4000, and the hospital authorities had agreed to contribute £1000.

Alderman English moved that the committee reaffirm its previous decision to carry out the work, and this was agreed to after a short discussion.

Bradley, solicitor, of Margaret-street, Sydney, executor and trustee of his estate. He bequeathed the lease, goodwill, stock, and effects of his business, also certain shares in the Australian Gaslight Company and Broken Hill South Silver Mining Company, to his employees, Mary McLoughlin and Florence Annie Lansdowne, in recognition of their long and faithful services to him. Subject to certain legacies, including one of £2000 to his niece, Marjorie White, he devised his estate to his trustee upon trust for his parents and their three surviving sisters.

The net value of the estate was estimated at £7684 8s 9d.

DEATH OF A COMEDIAN.

News has been received in Melbourne of the death, at about 40 years of age, of the Australian comedian Billy Williams. He died in England after an operation.

Known as "The man in the velvet suit," Williams achieved popularity in all parts of the United Kingdom shortly after his arrival with coster songs. "I must go home to-night" was one of his greatest hits. He lived at Brixton Hill, S.W.

THE GOVERNMENT STROKE.

GOULBURN, Tuesday.

For some time past the Works Department has been engaged in constructing an additional weir across the Wollondilly River to supplement the municipal water supply.

At the last council meeting serious complaint was made. One alderman said the work was going to cost the council twice as much as the department set down. The Government stroke, he declared, was there from daylight till dark—a remark which was applauded by other aldermen. Insufficient provision was being made to carry off silt, though experience with the present weir had shown that silt caused serious trouble.

The Mayor said that the department's engineer had stated that, from his experience, sluice valves were of very little use. It was agreed to ascertain what money had been spent on the weir, and to inform the Minister that the council desired that the engineer should visit Goulburn.

ON THE LAND.

FARM AND STATION.

CHAMPION WHEAT.

The wheat section at the Royal Show has attained considerable importance, and presumably exerts some influence upon the practical side of the industry. That fact in itself directs attention to a peculiar position in regard to champion wheats. For some few years in succession the Cedar variety of wheat has won the champion prize in the wheat section. According to the verdict at the Royal the champion wheat, which should certainly be the best wheat for farmers to grow, is Cedar. Yet the same variety is almost unknown in the wheat paddocks of the State. It is not grown to any extent for commercial purposes, and, what is more important, not likely to be. Surely this is an anomaly which suggests the need for some alteration in the wheat section. The matter is one that might well engage the attention of the agricultural section of the council, with a view to a general discussion of a position, which cannot be disputed, and which can hardly be considered satisfactory.

The position, anomalous as it is, is simple enough. Cedar obtains its distinguished position because it is the wheat which weighs most per bushel, and its milling qualities are very high. That is the standard by which the wheat is judged. No other wheat can surpass Cedar in those respects. But they are not sufficient, and, because other wheats are far better yielders, and, therefore, much more profitable to grow, Cedar is not in general cultivation. Nor can farmers be recommended to sow this variety under the circumstances. But as a result of Cedar winning the champion prize at the leading show, a number of farmers are led to believe it is the wheat they should plant, with the idea that it will do well in their district. Experience proves, however, that Cedar does only moderately well throughout the State, and is never likely to come into general cultivation. Is it advisable that a variety of wheat which is not in general cultivation, nor ever likely to be, should secure the champion prize at the Royal Show? It is an interesting point. What constitutes a champion wheat? The grower will probably say it is the variety which returns the most money per acre. Yield is therefore a matter of very first moment. Still quality cannot be ignored, and especially is it the duty of the Royal Show to recognise quality. Yet the above position is unsatisfactory. While Cedar is proclaimed the champion wheat at the show, the paddock tells a different story.

The records of the experiments carried out by the Department of Agriculture show that, even in districts where this red wheat is suitable, its yield is five to ten bushels per acre less than the best-yielding wheats. In other parts the difference is more marked. At Henty last season, while Canberra yielded 20.45 bushels, and Federation 19.46 bushels, Cedar yielded 10.1 bushels. The previous season the following comparisons were recorded:—Ringwood: Federation, 35.14 bushels; Cedar, 24.55; Germanton: Yandilla King, 28.49; Cedar, 18.31 bushels. In some instances the yield was more even, but as a rule there was a considerable discrepancy. Taking the averages for 1913-14 on the experiment plots in the southern districts, reckoning Federation as 100, Yandilla King went 110.5, and Cedar 84.1. That is where Yandilla King averaged 24.6 bushels per acre, Cedar averaged 18.21 bushels. There seems something wrong about a system which consistently terms a wheat with this record, the champion wheat. Moreover, even if the yield was satisfactory, this variety would not be suitable for general cultivation. In Riverina under normal weather conditions it would be impossible to strip it, and it would require to be cut and threshed. This puts the Cedar variety out of practical consideration, as stripping is the usual thing. This question was referred to Mr. H. Ross, Chief Inspector of Agriculture, and it was found he held much the same views as expressed above, and said, "Right throughout Riverina and the south-western slopes not a bag of Cedar would be grown in a season, and it was discouraging to farmers to see the champion prize go to a wheat which cannot possibly be grown in their paddocks for commercial purposes as a business proposition. Cedar wins because of its weight and strength, but its yield is low, and it cannot be harvested with the harvester in most cases, but would have to be threshed. Its growth is such as would not suit the majority of climates in our wheat districts."

The question is to provide a satisfactory remedy, even if it is generally agreed that the existing position is somewhat an absurdity from a practical point of view. Could the champion prize be confined to varieties extensively cultivated in this State belonging to the medium-strong class? It is not suggested that there should be no prizes for wheat such as Cedar, which belongs to the strong red class, or varieties such as Comeback and Bobs, which belong to the strong white class. But we cannot escape the fact that probably over 90 per cent. of our commercial wheats belong to the medium-strong class. While we want all the strength we can procure, it must be accompanied by profitable yields, and a practical standpoint should be taken on the matter. It is one which should be easy to approach with an open mind.

THE WHEAT QUESTION.

Mr. J. E. A. Florance, Baan Baa, writes:—Mr. Hall's claim to have made a profit of £17,000 by seizing the wheat of farmers, and retailing at an enhanced price, is no doubt made in good faith, but based upon ignorance. The direct result of the wheat grab is that a great area of land which should go under wheat this year will not be sown, a great area will be sown too late owing to the delay and humbug in obtaining seed, and a great area will be sown with inferior seed or unsuitable seed, owing to the disturbance to the industry caused by Mr. Hall's meddling with matters he does not understand. When the losses to the State from these causes are considered, it will be obvious that the paltry little surplus boasted of is on a par with the other wonderful financial successes of the present Government.

STOCK TRANSPORT.

COUNTRY PEOPLE'S APATHY.

The hon. secretary of the Association for Relief of Travelling Stock, Miss L. Blaxland, forwards a copy of a letter from Mr. Munro Hull, Eumundi, Q., a member of the association, in which he says:—"The movement is indeed a worthy one, and it is extraordinary that so little has been done in this respect in one of the greatest stock raising spots in the Empire. The very day I received your notice I happened to notice some big stock trains going through our station, and in almost every truck many of the poor creatures were down for good, and, as they had come from Clermont—nearly 700 miles distant—the whole mob must have suffered severely. I often wonder why sheep should pass through Rockhampton for Brisbane markets. When thinking over the matter I fancied that if light wire grills were run across the trucks—thus cutting them into small compartments—the overcrowding would be greatly minimised, as the shock in starting naturally tends to huddle the sheep together.

"It is extraordinary how difficult it is to get country folks to pull together. If a worker in the city finds his bread is buttered on one side only, he has a powerful organisation at hand—to put the sun back if necessary—until he gets what he wants, and yet there is no reason why the country people should not have a far greater say in many matters closely affecting their interests, and, through them, the interests of the whole; but without a better conception of the value of concerted action nothing will ever be done. I often tell my political friends that if they would give a fraction of their time to establishing markets for our stock we would need no other assistance, but they prefer to tinker away with abstract ideas, and no other country on earth would stand it—any old world spot would be ruined in a session.

"I note loose coupling is a feature of N.S.W. lines. Here we have none of that wretched bang, bang, bang, and jolt. Surely if close coupling is workable here, it can only be an official prejudice in your State."

NO VOTES CONCERNED.

"T.R.G.S." writes:—In your issue of Monday, under "Stock Transport," you do a good work in showing up the state of affairs on our railways as regards stock transport. You end up by asking, "Are we less humane than the Americans?" There is no doubt about it, we are. Year after year we continue to ill-treat sheep, cattle, and horses. Deputation after deputation goes before the various Ministers or Railway Commissioners, but it is all time wasted. Nothing is done, and nothing will be done until the Railway Commissioners are made legally responsible, as common carriers, for cruelty, loss, or injury and can be prosecuted. As long as no one is responsible, so long will we have the reputation, as we have to-day, of being the people who, notwithstanding that they rely on live stock for their prosperity, treat them worse than any other nation on the face of the globe. In fact, the way our railways treat stock would not be allowed in any other civilised country. And yet people are surprised that droughts are sent, and our live stock taken away from us. We deserve the periodical punishment we get. Nothing is done. Few people care. No votes hang on a reform.

Miss A. Millner writes to the effect that those responsible for the treatment of the horses that travelled to Lockhart should be made suffer for it.

APPEAL TO FARMERS.

MAIZE FOR THE RED CROSS.

The produce branch of the Red Cross Society is making an appeal to farmers throughout New South Wales for gifts of maize to help swell the funds of the society for the purpose of buying suitable food products for the sick and wounded Australian soldiers. The society, which has received splendid assistance from farmers in the way of farm products, desires to emphasise the fact that the real work of the Red Cross is only now beginning, and that a big drain is sure to be made upon the funds henceforward.

The society makes a special appeal for 500 bushels of maize. It is requested that all communications be sent to the hon. secretary, Mr. Saunders, produce branch, George-street, Sydney.

QUEENSLAND BANANAS.

BRISBANE.—Mr. James Davies, of Melbourne, who has been on a visit to the fruit districts on the North Coast, said yesterday that growers had been cutting up their fruit too fully matured to carry to the south. Some of the trucks supplied for carriage of the fruit were entirely unsuitable. If the railways would not supply well-ventilated trucks planters who shipped south were only courting disaster.

There is not the slightest doubt that the Queensland banana will carry if properly treated. Owing to the hurricane in Fiji Queensland has another chance of getting on the southern markets, and if the railways will only help them with louvred trucks, so that the fruit can be delivered in good order, they may be able to retain it, as Queensland fruit is preferred to Fiji. Directly Queensland can land bananas in Melbourne fit to carry west, a large quantity can be placed in Western Australia.

FARMERS AND SETTLERS.

WAGGA.—At a meeting of the Wagga branch of the Farmers and Settlers' Association it was agreed to protest against an enlargement of the franchise of the shires and municipalities, as proposed by the Government, as being inimical to the best interests of both. The proposed removal of the rating limitation was also condemned in the same terms.

Mr. E. Field submitted a motion to the effect that the Government be urged to introduce legislation declaring the forward purchase of wheat and other foodstuffs illegal. During the discussion it was urged that the system of gambling in wheat, which this amounted to, in uncertain seasons was contrary to the interests of both farmers and the community.

The motion was carried, and is to be sent on to the district council for consideration and transmission, if agreed to, to the annual conference.

A motion by Mr. F. W. Dobbs,—"That consideration be given to the question of nominating a Parliamentary candidate for the next State elections; and that the district council be requested to circularise branches calling for the nomination of a candidate or candidates, if any," was carried.

DISTRICT ITEMS.

BOMBALA.—After discussion Bombala Exhibition Society appointed a special committee to consider the advisability of holding a sheep show in September or October. The committee will present a report to the Society in a month's time.

COFF'S HARBOUR.—At a committee meeting of the Agricultural Society, the following officers were elected:—Patrons, Messrs. J. Thomson, M.P., and G. S. Briner, M.L.A., M. M'Lean, and W. H. Sharp; president, Mr. A. E. Long; vice-presidents, Messrs. Perry, Johnson, Burling, Walsh, W. J. Smith; treasurer, Mr. W. Moore; secretary, Mr. H. L. Macdonald.

CASINO.—Owing to the continued dry weather the cream supply is decreasing.

GRENFELL.—The continued dry weather means that meat must go up to 1/ a pound. Stock are dying, and the outlook is very serious. Some farmers, who sowed early, had their wheat up, and it is now all withered off through want of moisture. They have not the means or the inclination to resow.

KOORAWATHA.—As the result of 12 points of rain the early sown crops are already over the ground, and several are two and three inches high. Farmers are very busy seeding. The weather is ideal for the purpose.

SINGLETON.—A former resident of this district, Mr. Roy M. Bell, left Pickering, Denman, this week for South Eskdale, Esk, Queensland, where he and his brothers have bought portion of the well-known Eskdale freehold station. During his terms as manager at Baroona, Whittingham, Mr. Bell was popular with all sections of the Singleton community.

AGRICULTURAL SHOWS.

BARRABA.

FARM PRODUCE SCARCE.

BARRABA, Tuesday.

The twelfth annual show of the Barraba P., A., and H. Association was opened to-day in ideal weather. The horse exhibits were numerous, but the quality was not up to the usual standard, owing to the recent dry spell. The pavilion exhibits, though small, were of a high order, and owing to the show being held a month later than usual the farm produce was a scarce commodity. Mr. Horace Berry, of Tamworth, judged the ring events, and gave every satisfaction. The attendance was very fair for an opening day; £20 was taken at the gates. The cattle and sheep sections were very poorly patronised. Awards:—

WOOL SALES.

MELBOURNE SERIES.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

A two weeks' series of wool sales was inaugurated to-day. The catalogues totalled some 4000 bales. The selection, as a whole, was of a miscellaneous character, being largely comprised of short, faulty, and inferior sorts. Competition proved somewhat disappointing, and heavy withdrawals resulted. The few good wools offered commanded plenty of attention at the hands of American buyers, but the prices realised for them were not up to those ruling six weeks ago in this market, and, generally speaking, they may be quoted at 5 per cent. cheaper. The demand for faulty and inferior sorts was of an irregular nature, and a decline of 10 per cent. must be noted in these. To the increase in freight may be attributed, in part, the all-round decline, as may the inferior nature of selection, but there is no denying the fact that the general tone of the market lacked that keenness which was the outstanding feature at the close of the regular season.

SHOOTING CASE.

FATHER AND DAUGHTER'S LOVER.

MOREE, Tuesday.

Edward Sutton, proprietor of the Wilby Hotel, was committed for trial, charged with shooting at a man named Priestley, a stockman, with intent to do him grievous bodily harm.

Priestley was keeping company with Sutton's daughter, and received a letter asking him to meet her. Her father was said to be waiting behind a fence with a gun, and to have fired two shots. No injury was done. The evidence suggested that the letter was written by Sutton's wife to decoy Priestley. The daughter denied authorship of the letter, and said she was still fond of Priestley.

Sutton reserved his defence, but during the hearing volunteered the information that he only fired to frighten Priestley away from his place.

The daughter in her evidence said her father said he would follow her to her grave rather than see her Mrs. Priestley.

CHARGE AGAINST TEACHER.

ORANGE, Tuesday.

At Orange Police Court to-day Mark Larkinson, teacher, was committed for trial for shooting at John Sheppard, with intent to do grievous bodily harm.

Larkinson had been keeping company with Sheppard's daughter, to which the father objected, and one night called to see her. Sheppard left the house to order him away, when Larkinson, it was alleged, pulled a small revolver and shot Sheppard through the hand.

AGENT-GENERALSHIP.

NO FINALITY YET.

The State Cabinet yesterday further discussed the question of filling the position of Agent-General in London, but came to no decision.

All that the Premier would subsequently say about the candidates for the position was that there were five or six.

LAND SUPER TAX.

BILL TO BE INTRODUCED.

The State Cabinet yesterday decided that the Land Super Tax Bill will be introduced early next session.

It was first brought forward by the late Mr. Trefle some time ago, but was eventually dropped. The bill proposed to tax lands over £5000 in value within a certain distance of railways and towns, unless the areas are cultivated for agricultural purposes.

The Premier said that this was a measure in the interests of closer settlement, and was an issue definitely raised at the last elections. The bill would probably provide for the taxing of lands within a prescribed distance of railways and important towns, and the tax could be avoided by putting the land under cultivation. The purpose of the bill was not revenue, but to force land into its most profitable use.

ARTESIAN WATERS.

GOVERNMENT INTERVENTION.

CONTROL OF BORES.

The Government has determined to put an end as far as it can to the waste of water from artesian bores. It has been demonstrated to the satisfaction of scientists that the artesian supply bears some relation to the amount of rain that falls, and in the semi-arid districts it is particularly important that steps should be taken to conserve the water in the underground natural reservoirs tapped by the bore.

The Minister for Lands, Mr. Ashford, made an announcement on the matter yesterday. He said he had before him the facts deduced at the recent Interstate Conference on Artesian Water, which go to prove that the discharge from existing artesian bores is yearly decreasing. The members of the conference were of the opinion that the primary cause of such decrease was due to the demands which have already been made by the accumulated supply in the basin by the undue multiplication of uncontrolled bores. This opinion had since been verified in a practical way by the results obtained in connection with the construction of a new bore at Bellata. It was intended in future, wherever necessary, to strictly enforce the provisions of the Water Act, which gives the Crown the power to control the flow from any bore.

The Minister said he had approved of an explanatory letter, with a copy of the report of the proceedings of the Interstate Conference, being forwarded to all owners of private bores, and to the trustees of trust bores. This would ensure all those directly interested having the latest and most authoritative information on the subject, and would, he hoped, also ensure the co-operation of all concerned, and thus render any action under the Water Act unnecessary.

LIFT FATALITY.

MAN KILLED AND TWO INJURED.

At about 9.40 a.m. yesterday a lift accident occurred at the new building being erected for the "Daily Telegraph," at the corner of King and Castlereagh streets. A heavy goods lift was being hauled up a well by means of a crane on the roof. It had reached the ninth story, when the wire rope broke, and the lift fell to the fifth floor, where it jammed. On its way down, it dislodged some heavy timber, which fell to the bottom of the well, striking three men, one of whom was killed outright.

The man who was killed is James Stewart, 35, a foreman carpenter, of Johnston-street, Annandale. Frederick Hodgson, foreman builder, of Beamish-street, Campsie, had his right hand crushed. George Glover, a lift attendant, residing at Smith-street, Mascot, had his right arm lacerated and his right ankle hurt. He is also suffering from shock.

Glover and Hodgson were removed by the Civil Ambulance to Sydney Hospital, where they were admitted by Dr. Aspinall.

G.U.O.O.F.

DROUGHT AND WAR EFFECTS.

The annual general meeting of the Grand United Order of Oddfellows was opened in the hall, 328 Castlereagh-street, yesterday, and will be continued during the week.

Mr. Chas. M. E. Nicod, grand master, stated that the total funds had increased by a most substantial amount, and that the average sickness experience was somewhat lighter than in the year preceding. The work of dealing with the matter of medical officers had been placed in the hands of the Friendly Societies Association. To find a solution of the problem for the whole State was a severe tax on any body. The results which could accrue in centres with large populations by the adoption of medical institutes and chemists' shops were worthy of consideration. In the assurance department progress had been steady. He predicted that the order would soon begin to achieve the expansion that such a splendid proposition deserved.

The report of the committee of management stated that Oddfellowship had not been exempt from the effects of the war, all branches and members having felt its influence. No less than 280 members had enlisted. All these men would be kept financial. The membership in 1914 was 32,772, or 1937 less than in 1913. The total income had, for the second time, exceeded £100,000, the actual total for 1914 being £101,857. This was said to be particularly excellent considering the events of the year. The total funds now stood at £262,524.

THE NEWS FROM THE FRONT.

The news we publish this morning confirms our previous impressions of the nature of the battle at present raging in Flanders, and of the design of the German leaders. As far as the British armies are concerned, the battle resembles in many respects the long struggle which determined the Allies' line of trenches for the winter. It followed an advance of the British, which carried them some way into Belgian territory, although not as far as they themselves had hoped for. It derived its character and its first appearance of success from the failure of the British general to forsee certain features in the German attack, notably their numbers, and the strength of their new formations. At Ypres the German armies were encouraged by the real weakness of the British line, and especially of its connecting links. They were accurately informed of its numbers. With characteristic, and in this case natural presumption, they underestimated the courage and the tenacity of the British soldier. In this battle the Germans have again attacked the Allied line, where with good reason they believe it to be weakest. They have evidently made their supreme effort at a point where the Belgians, a small French force, and the Canadians come between the sea and the main British army. A German, though he had changed his contempt for the British soldier for a well-founded respect, would still believe the troops of a new country unfit for the strain of a European war, he would regard the Belgians as his destined prey, and the French as inferior to the armies of the centre and the south. If it is still too early to speak of a victory for the Allies, it is clear that the German boasts have again been premature. We need not expect that the battle will last as long as the struggles of October and November. But it will be certain to show many fluctuations. We must be prepared to hear of positions captured and recaptured, as the villages of Lizerne and Saint Julien have been already, of terrible losses and of occasional retreat. But with our knowledge of the quality of the troops engaged, and with the news that has already come to hand, it is impossible to believe in ultimate defeat. The British troops we know. They have come out of the trench warfare with their vigour unimpaired, and they are now fighting a defensive battle with a line thrice the strength of that which threw back the Prussian Guard at Ypres. After this experience there will never be any doubts about the Canadians in the German mind. Their valour has been acclaimed throughout the whole Empire, and their losses have only served to draw thousands of their countrymen to the recruiting offices. Nor have the Belgians shown a less degree of courage or of vigour than when, with their French comrades, they took up a position on this point in their territory after the fall of Antwerp. We hear of them again and again repulsing attempts to cross the flooded waters of the Yser Canal, and at last advancing to the attack with the French soldiers chanting the hymn which has so often signalled the victory of the French Republic over an invader.

If we seek for the object of this concentrated and sudden attack we shall find it to be threefold. It is designed to regain the offensive and so prevent the encroachment of the French in the centre and south, and of the British in the north; to encourage the German people, and to impress the wavering neutrals. The first or strategic object would be accomplished by a movement which, besides carrying German troops to the sea coast, would envelop the British Army, not yet at its full strength. It would certainly compel the French to weaken their attacks in the Champagne district, to detach reinforcements to the north, and to abandon many positions they have successfully occupied during the last few months. At the same time such a victory would seriously embarrass Sir John French, both in collecting his new troops and in obtaining supplies of ammunition from British factories. If we are wrong in supposing that the people of Germany are in need of encouragement, we are supported by the character of recent German bulletins and by the accounts of this battle. An analysis to which these bulletins have been submitted shows a decided change since the early days of this war. There has been a tendency to exaggerate numbers of prisoners taken, and to minimise casualties, in the spirit which appears in the premature celebrations in Berlin, and in the announcement of guns captured from the British and the French; announcements which our latest cables show to be inconsistent with the facts. Probably not the least important consideration in bringing about this attack was the need of impressing neutral Powers with the belief that it is still possible for Germany to conquer in the West. With the Balkan peoples, no doubt, the strongest factor will be the result of the attack on Constantinople. But for Italy it is still of the first importance to know whether she is to anticipate a victorious Germany, or whether she may regard her as already certain of defeat. A defeat of the Allies now would not be decisive. It would only mean that the end must be delayed for many months, and that fresh exertions and fresh sacrifices would be needed. But a defeat for Germany after such premature celebrations must be disastrous. It will enormously facilitate the advance of the allied armies through Belgium or through Luxemburg. It must impress on the neutral Powers that whatever arrangements they may make with the central Powers, the final decision will be with the Allies, and the sooner the better.

WAR AND WOOL.

The deadlock in the wool market in Sydney will probably be relieved. We may fairly assume that the wool brokers are as eager to sell as the buyers are anxious to fill their orders; and the difference between them as to freights and interest ought not to prove any real barrier to a speedy agreement. There is, however, one phase of the business which deserves consideration at the present moment. It brings the war into new prominence, because, while we realise afresh how intimately our prosperity as a producing and business community is related to the prosperity and well-being of Europe, the vital importance of sea transport is directly demonstrated. Some people like to think of Australia in the future as self-contained. They imagine that sooner or later, with a sufficiently high tariff, we shall be able not only to grow all we want, but to manufacture all we need, and the world outside then may go hang. To such narrow dreamers a deadlock like the one now attracting attention has no special significance. In days to come we shall grow wool to turn it into finished products here; and the population of the continent will have increased sufficiently to absorb everything. This is very well as a visionary's forecast, but it is not practical. It has no real relation to the immediate facts, which show that Australia is absolutely dependent upon the world's markets for her progress and profit, and which further demonstrate that in time of war she is peculiarly vulnerable, even when the oceans have been swept of enemy warships. Indeed, part of the trouble arises from the banishment of most of the German mercantile marine to neutral ports while the war lasts. We have been for so long partially dependent upon foreign vessels for freights in wool that, now our troops have to be transported to the world's end, there is a deadlock between sellers and buyers, because the latter are afraid lest the Australian Government's demands may upset their arrangements for getting the commodity to Europe. But, apart from the immediate disability under which we labour, there is the certainty that Australia for many years will do best as she banishes narrow views, and places the producer in the country first in her regard.

Objection may be taken that the cry to send several thousand more troops from Australia to Europe is forcing the Government's hands. What can it do if steamers are suddenly required for transport? Perhaps the reminder may be offered that the situation depends very largely upon the Government knowing its own mind. Why should its hands be forced anywhere? The sending of a sufficient number of troops as Australia's quota should have been settled and prepared for some time ago, instead of becoming a matter of tardy additions, accompanied by spasmodic patriotic speeches. However, the thing now is to get down to bedrock, and help our producers and business men to decide what lies ahead in the way of obstacles to market. It is a question of connecting wool with the war by an announcement of policy, and by letting the pastoralist and small wool-grower understand that their interests are being considered. We cannot forget in this connection how hard a time many of them are having in consequence of prevalent drought through a wide area of country. While the coast and part of recent drought-stricken districts have received rain, the vast west of New South Wales, and away up into Queensland, is still dry. Sheep and cattle are perishing. Mr. Kidman's report of the state of the country he is interested in makes anxious reading; and the grim irony of the situation hurts one as the world's needs are remembered. The worst drought on record has come with the worst war. Such a strange coincidence should, however, bear some good fruit. If we realise how much our wool, and meat, and wheat are required, and how certainly they will continue to be in demand, we shall turn to the problems of railway communication and water conservation with renewed zest. Heretofore we have gone into each matter with a measure of half-heartedness. We have never realised their tremendous importance in a continent periodically visited with drought simply because good seasons have poured wealth into our laps, and those who have been ruined are quickly forgotten. This war will give us plenty to think about in the near future; but its best work will have been done if it makes us understand that we shall never really enter into a great estate until we have mastered the conditions of possession. Our main interests more than ever in a world wasted by war will be those of primary production, and related to them will be the sea as our only way to market. As we have said, the wool-sellers and the wool-buyers to-day will find a way of settling their differences; but to-morrow there may be little enough wool to sell. If our pastoral products fail at this critical juncture there will be a great gap to fill in public and private finance. The sooner, therefore, our Governments place them well up in their list for consideration and action the better for everybody.

THE MINISTRY.

NEW APPOINTMENTS.

Yesterday Mr. Flowers resigned the position of Vice-President of the Executive Council and his portfolio as Minister for Public Health, and was appointed President of the Legislative Council, in succession to the late Sir Francis Suttor.

Mr. J. D. Fitzgerald was appointed to succeed Mr. Flowers as Vice-President of the Executive Council, and was also appointed to the Legislative Council, where he will represent the Government.

Mr. G. Black, Chief Secretary, was sworn in as Minister for Public Health.

The salaried position of chairman of the New South Wales Fire Commissioners is being retained by Mr. Flowers, together with the honorary office of chairman of the Meat Industry and Abattoirs Board.

CONSERVATORIUM.

THE DIRECTORSHIP.

OFFER TO M. VERBRUGGHEN.

The Government yesterday sent a cablegram to the Agent-General offering the position of Director of the State Conservatorium of Music to M. Henri Verbrugghen, chief of the Glasgow Choral and Orchestral Union.

M. Verbrugghen is a Belgian by birth, and is 42 years of age.

The appointment is one recommended to the Government by the Council of the Conservatorium, who acted on the advice and judgment of leading expert authorities in England.

CIVIL SERVICE.

INCREMENTS TO BE ALLOWED.

The State Cabinet yesterday decided that officers in the Public Service receiving less than £200 a year shall now receive due increments such as will not bring the salaries above £200.

All Civil Service increments were stopped when the war caused a straitening in the State finances, and the outlook, the Premier said yesterday, had sufficiently improved to enable this relaxation of the general rule to be made.

THE "SYDNEY MAIL."

This week's issue of the "Mail" is an Australian war number, which is bound to be in even greater demand than usual, because of the admirable illustrations of our troops in Egypt and in England, and of those who are about to leave these shores for the front. As a valuable record of the memorable scene on Saturday last, when 5000 volunteers, with full war equipment, marched through the streets of Sydney, the publication is well worth preserving. There are splendid pictures of the 12th A.L.H. on the way from Holsworthy Camp to Sydney—troopers watering their horses and officers and men enjoying their midday repast by the wayside. We see this fine regiment again in the great parade, accompanied by its machine-gun section. The French sailors who led the parade are pictured, and there are interesting snapshots of the school children in Hyde Park and the ambulance waggons of the Army Medical Corps. The parade illustrations include three striking page pictures—the Governor-General at the saluting-base, guns of the Australian Field Artillery, and Senior Cadets keeping back the crowd at the corner of Park and College streets. There is also a photograph of the State Commandant (Colonel Wallack) receiving a number of patriotic gifts. Several capital pictures are published of the members of the Australian Divisional Supply Column and the Divisional Ammunition Park who went from Egypt to England, and are billeted at Romsey, in Hampshire; and there are also interesting photographs of the Australians in Egypt, including an amusing one of Colonel Ryrie mounted on a donkey at the entrance to his tent. As usual, the pictorial budget from the front in Europe is full of interest and variety.

PRICE OF BREAD.

PROPOSED INCREASE.

APPLICATION BY MASTER BAKERS.

The secretary of the New South Wales Master Bakers Association, Mr. M. Thompson, yesterday addressed the following letter to the chairman of the Necessary Commodities Control Commission:—

"The members of my association respectfully approach you with the request that you will favourably consider the granting to them of a rise in the price of bread of one half-penny per two-pound loaf, as the present price under existing circumstances not only does not allow us a profit, but unfortunately compels us to work our businesses at a loss.

"They respectfully submit that the Necessary Commodities Control Act did not contemplate depriving them of a reasonable return on their capital and labour, but was brought into force for the purpose of safeguarding the interests of the public from exploitation by being charged prices that would allow of more than a fair and reasonable return on the capital and labour invested.

"In approaching you in this matter, they respectfully submit the following reasons:—

1. At the time the proclamation was issued, fixing the maximum price at 4d per 2lb loaf, it was not a living price (nor did it leave us a living margin). We protested at the time, but as we were in anticipation of obtaining some relief, by allowance or consideration with regard to fancy bread, we made no further move.
2. Enormous increase in the price of horse feed, over 100 per cent. on price at time of proclamation, and figures given you at the time were based on lower prices than those then prevailing.
3. Decrease in output, due to increase in price.
4. Decrease in yield per ton, owing to hard wheat flour being unprocurable, and the inferior quality of this season's flour.
5. Increase in book debts and defaulters.
6. Increase in cost of delivery, due to the carters' 5 p.m. finish.

"We further suggest that, if your commission are not prepared to grant the halfpenny throughout the whole of the County of Cumberland, that you will at least favourably consider the granting of same to those bakers trading within this area, but outside a seven-mile radius of the General Post Office, and including the municipalities of Lane Cove, Willoughby, Rockdale, Ryde, and the shire of Kuring-gai.

"If in considering this matter your commission desires any further information, we shall be pleased to be favoured with an opportunity of giving any evidence that may be desired in support of this application."

BUTTER INQUIRY.

SOME PERTINENT QUESTIONS.

The Necessary Commodities Control Commission (Mr. Justice Edmunds, president) has addressed a letter to Mr. C. D. Meares, general manager of the New South Wales Coastal Farmers' Co-operative Society, and other parties, asking for additional information in regard to the producers' recent application for an increase of threepence per lb on the wholesale price of butter.

The commissioners require statistics showing the supplies of butter from the factories for April, also for a similar period during the last two years, also complete figures for 1914-1915, showing for each factory the quantity of cream supplied, the price paid, and the quality of butter produced, together with the amount realised in sale. Finally, the amount charged for working expenses and the surplus profits distributed among producers are asked for.

FLOUR SHORTAGE.

CONSERVATION MEASURES.

TAX ON EXPORTED BISCUITS.

The Attorney-General has decided to place manufacturers who export on the same footing as those merchants who have been allowed to continue exporting flour to Queensland and the islands. The biscuit makers are to be supplied with flour at the low price proclaimed for New South Wales as compared with prices ruling in other States, on condition that they pay the Government £3 per ton "rebate" on the biscuits exported.

This £3 per ton is to be applied by the Attorney-General to reducing the price of flour to be made from the wheat which it seems will inevitably have to be imported to supply the wants of the people of New South Wales.

Although Mr. Hall preferred not to make any statement on the question of an expected shortage of wheat and flour, it has for some time been recognised by experts that there will be a deficiency between the actual wheat yield in the State and the official estimate of 15,000,000 bushels.

Mr. Hall said:—"It is now clear that every ton of flour that goes out of this State will have to be replaced by imported wheat or flour before the end of September. The biscuit manufacturers have had the advantage of an £11 17s 6d market for flour, whilst in Victoria and other States their rivals have been paying £18 per ton. They will have, even after paying this £3 per ton, an advantage in comparison with exporters in other States. Even the payment of £3 per ton will not repay the State for the expense which will be incurred to replace the flour used in making the exported biscuits, but, in view of the fact that the biscuit manufacturers give a good deal of employment to our people, they have been liberally dealt with in this arrangement."

RUSSIA'S WHEAT.

VLADIVOSTOCK SHIPMENTS.

AN IMMENSE QUANTITY.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Tuesday.

The Prime Minister, Mr. Massey, has received the following cablegram from Mr. Clifton, who is representing the New Zealand Government at the Panama Exposition at San Francisco:—

"It is stated here that some 350,000 tons of wheat are in course of shipment at Vladivostock for Europe. It is said that a large number of British ships have arrived at that port, via the Panama Canal, and that delays will be experienced in loading, as there are but few facilities there for dealing with such cargoes. Temporary wharfs and moorings are being constructed.

WOOL TRADE.

SALES STILL SUSPENDED.

The position in regard to the wool sales has not changed so far as the associated brokers and buyers are concerned. Separate meetings of the Wool-selling Brokers' Association and the Buyers' Association were held yesterday, but no solution of the difficulty created on Monday was found.

Both sides are so far firm in the stand they have taken. Brokers are averse to selling wool provisionally and possibly having some of it thrown back on their hands. Buyers are unwilling to operate with the possibility of being unable to ship it as required to fill their orders. It is a stand by both sides against taking risks. Buyers contend that as the Brisbane brokers ceded the conditions asked for in Sydney, the whole of the Sydney wool-selling houses should follow their lead. The associated brokers, on the other hand, contend that because that step was taken in the northern State it is not good policy to follow it in New South Wales.

The selling position as it stands to-day is that the associated brokers are not submitting catalogues under the terms and conditions of sale as asked for by the buyers' association. Two non-associated firms, however, propose to submit catalogues totalling some 8000 bales to-morrow, these offerings to be supplemented by further catalogues next week of similar proportions, if the deadlock with the associated brokers and the associated buyers continues.

STAND TOGETHER.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—As a grower I have pleasure in supporting the very proper stand made by the Sydney Wool-selling Brokers' Association against the absurd demands of the buyers, viz., that they should buy wool and not pay interest on the money till the wool is shipped. The selling brokers have to render account sales and proceeds within 14 days, so it is most unreasonable to expect them to be out of their money for perhaps a month or six weeks without interest. I hope wool-growers generally will assist, and support the action taken by the association. It is an absurd position that men should come from Great Britain, America, and the Continent, to buy wool in Sydney on commission, and dictate to the selling brokers and the growers terms and conditions under which wool should be sold. I am, etc.,

MERINO.

LAND SUBDIVISIONS.

MISLEADING ADVERTISEMENTS.

The Minister for Lands, Mr. Ashford, has forwarded to the Premier a letter of appreciation received from a group of settlers in regard to the proposed legislation to prevent the publication of misleading advertisements respecting private subdivisions of land. The letter states:—"I am very glad to see that you have taken the matter up to protect the small and working man from being so grossly defrauded. Myself and brother and two friends came over and paid our own passage. We have some means. We proposed to acquire each a small farm, and thought by the description in papers they would suit us. We went to men advertising such land, and were offered land guaranteed to be fit for farms, with water, etc., at what we thought a fair price and terms. We paid a deposit on their representations, and then went out to see it. We found it worthless, and can now neither get back deposit nor any satisfaction."

COOK'S LANDING.

DEMONSTRATION AT HYDE PARK STATUE.

Owing to the decision of the trustees of the landing-place of Captain Cook to abandon the usual annual celebrations to commemorate the landing of Captain Cook at Kurnell, the Australian Natives' Association has taken steps to celebrate fittingly this important national event by having the statue of Captain Cook in Hyde Park decorated and illuminated. At 8 p.m. patriotic addresses will be delivered by well-known public men, amongst whom the following have been invited, viz., the Premier, the Lord Mayor, Mr. C. W. Oakes, president of the British Empire League, president of the Historical Society, president of the Yorkshire Society, and others. A band will be in attendance to render appropriate patriotic airs.

WAR TIME IN LONDON

Grave Words.

LONDON, March 19.

Lord Kitchener's speech on the output of war material, made, this week, through the House of Lords to the nation, has had the effect of startling us. No doubt that, precisely, was the effect designed and desired. The speech was, indeed, a grave statement of affairs. It lifted momentarily the cloud behind which the realities of the war have from the first been carefully veiled. It let us all into the secret that the war is so serious a thing for Great Britain that even her marvellous creation of a huge voluntary army is of no avail without other and no less huge operations; that munitions of war are as necessary to us as men, and that we are failing to produce munitions of war with the requisite rapidity. Chiefly, it is shells, and more shells, and still more shells that are needed, and must be had—shells not only for our own guns, but shells also for the Allied batteries of artillery—and with the shells other explosives, and guns, and rifles, and bayonets, and the whole terrific paraphernalia of destruction. And, though the work of production in all our great manufacturing centres is at a feverish pitch of increasing daily and nightly output, still we are not producing fast enough. And we are not producing fast enough, because in some of those centres the men who should do the work have failed us. There is no question of the majority of them. But it must be a large and important minority which calls forth this unusually frank expression of Lord Kitchener's disappointment. The numbers of men, that is to say, who are shirking the great "speed-up" of the armament workshops of Britain, who prefer rather to earn their sufficient wage without strain, and then to slacken into idleness, and disputes as to rates of pay, must be large enough for very serious effect upon the national output of material. Else had we heard nothing of the matter. It is plain to see, of course, that there is responsibility at the door also of the contractors. It will be measured out to them in due course. But the fact remains that with full knowledge of the conditions—contracts, wage-sheets, and everything else concerned—Lord Kitchener has singled out for censure not the masters, but a section of the men. That means specific responsibility. It also means specific half-heartedness in the national crisis—and that is a charge we shall hope to see quickly erased from the great record of the wage-earning class. The more quickly because every class had seemed to rally with equal enthusiasm to this perilous occasion. Workers by the hundred thousand, leisured upper-class men, and wealthy middle-class men by tens of thousands, are at their several places for proof of it, and blood and treasure flow indiscriminately from all quarters. Surely this failure of response by sections of the workers can only be ignorant and temporary disaffection, that is in no way representative.

Strong Measures.

All the same, the Government is out with strong measures, with a view to compel attention to the war as demanding everybody's co-operation. The unprecedented course of attaching all manufactories to national uses in case of need has been followed by the conference of trade union representatives, by Mr. Lloyd George's address to them, and by the call for female workers to replace absent men. In other words, the nation's resources, greater, as the Chancellor of the Exchequer told that conference of trade unionists, than the resources of any other nation, are gradually being mobilised for national purposes. In that regard this country is merely following the lead of France, where very soon after war was declared the whole working plant of the nation was marvellously organised for the one great aim, and where women have for months past been engaged in all manner of avocations. Here we are only too glad to find the Government sternly out upon revolutionary methods of the kind. Our one complaint, indeed, is that the Government did not set itself to them long ago. That complaint of ours, in truth, expands into a general criticism of the Government's way of avoiding strong action, and with it disclosures of the necessity for strong action, until both action and disclosure are absolutely forced upon it. Especially do we complain that the Government's recent frankness of statement was not available to us long ago. We cannot conceive that any grade of working-man would be found slacking his job to-day if he had been warned of the value of his work to the nation. He might still have been discontented with a position wherein huge expenditure upon contracts, and incessant work at high pressure, left him facing a rapid rise in the cost of living no better off than before. But if he had had grasp of the great fact that the issue of the war was gravely in the balance, and that the turn of the scale might be effected by just his maximum of effort, can anyone doubt the character of his response? But he was never told, until now, any such thing. He was led to believe, as we have all been led to believe, by suppression of the war's difficulties and dangers, and exaggeration of its every favourable incident, that things went uniformly well with us, and that little more than patience was necessary for the final overthrow of the enemy. And now it is becoming clear that much more than patience is necessary, and even the Government has begun to drop hints that the task we are engaged upon needs every ounce of effort. A few more disclosures by the Government of the real strength of the enemy, and plain statements of some of the facts that would show where precisely we stand, and what precisely we have suffered, would be of the utmost benefit. Some of those facts are stubborn enough and awkward enough. But knowledge of them would be worth to us more than the many pages of the deceptive gush that too long has served for news of the war.

The Racing Problem.

That impressive body of sportsmen, who, being the stewards of the Jockey Club, control the racing of this country, have adjudicated upon the troublesome question of Epsom and Ascot. The decision proved to be, as was anticipated, of the nature of a compromise. The famous fixtures will be held on their due dates, but they will be shorn of so much of their traditional glories that they will probably prove to be scarcely recognisable. More than that, so much discretionary power is left in the hands of the local stewards that both Epsom and Ascot may yet assume quite startling forms. It is hinted that the programme will be run through before luncheon. It is certain that there will be no Royal enclosure at either place. As to Epsom, Lord Rosebery, in his speech at the Jockey Club debate, while protesting that he really did not know the meaning of the word, gave it as his opinion that the Derby meeting would be no "beano" this year. As to Ascot, with its whole great array of social festivity swept away at a stroke, and its luxurious assemblage widely affected by mourning, Gold Cup Day may have its attractiveness, but it will be quite another day than that with which we are so familiar. And in any case, the widespread discussion which the matter has had will serve to surround these great summer fixtures with a seriousness that will be sure to dim their gaiety. From that point of view, Epsom and Ascot look like providing a public vexed by a curious medley of motives. Reluctance to interfere with a great industry, for example, the British love of sport, the determination, also British, to keep a stiff upper lip, somewhat shamefaced thought of the battle-front and its miseries and its sacrifices—these are but some of the mixed feelings that may be expected to disturb the patrons of this year's Derby and Gold Cup as they walk the so changed sward of Ascot and the Downs.

LABOUR CONFERENCE.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The conference of the Federal Grand Council of Labour, consisting of representatives from the various States, was commenced to-day.

Amongst the questions to be discussed will be the widening of the sphere of the council, to enable trades which are only partially affiliated with various State councils to come under the scope of the federal body.

FLANDERS.

GREAT BATTLE.

DEADLY GASES.

PROTECTION DEVISED.

Sir John French reports that the general situation north-east of Ypres is unchanged. Severe fighting continues, with heavy casualties.

The Germans captured St. Julien after a gallant resistance by the Canadians, who were inferior in number.

A French communique states that the Allies made marked progress north of Ypres.

The Belgians and French devised a protection against asphyxiating gases with the best results.

The Germans claim that they still hold Lizerne, and that they have taken 44 guns.

A Petrograd communique reports the continuation of a desperate battle on the Russian left in the Carpathians.

The Austrians claim to have captured a height near Koziova, and to have repulsed Russian counter-attacks with heavy losses.

The Allied fleet and the troops which have been landed on the Gallipoli peninsula are combining in a general attack on the Dardanelles.

YSER BATTLE.

STUBBORN FIGHTING.

HEAVY CASUALTIES.

GERMANS TAKE ST. JULIEN.

LONDON, April 27, 1.5 a.m.

Sir John French reports: The general situation north-east of Ypres is unchanged. Our left flank is readjusting the line.

Owing to the French enforced retirement, we had to face north and extend west beyond Saint Julien. The extension weakened our line temporarily.

After a very gallant resistance by the Canadians against superior numbers, the enemy captured Saint Julien (to the north-east of Ypres, on the road to Poelcapelle).

The troops east of Ypres have borne the brunt of repeated heavy attacks, which they stubbornly opposed. Throughout the battle the men have shown gallantry and fortitude in an entirely unexpected situation, and the officers quick resource.

We repulsed German attacks east of the Ypres salient, despite asphyxiating gases.

German officers and men captured admit to very heavy casualties among the Germans in the last three days. Our losses also have been heavy.

The Press Bureau's summary of Field Marshal French's report states that severe fighting with heavy casualties continues north of Ypres.

A British airman destroyed the Courtrai [illegible], and although wounded brought his machine back safely.

It is not true four heavy English guns were captured.

BRITISH CHECK ATTACKS.

LONDON, April 26.

The Germans violently bombarded Ypres.

ALLIES' PROGRESS.

FRENCH OFFICIAL NEWS.

PROTECTION FROM GASES.

PARIS, April 27.

A communique states: The Allies have made marked progress north of Ypres, on the fighting front, where they drove back the enemy, inflicting heavy losses.

The Germans again employed asphyxiating gases, but the Belgians and French devised means for protection with the best results.

IN FRANCE.

THE MEUSE HEIGHTS.

BATTLE DEVELOPING.

LONDON, April 26.

The French Embassy states that the battle on the heights of the Meuse is developing.

The Germans, after their repulse at Calonne, made an attack towards St. Remy, with the object of retaking Les Eparges. They were repulsed after vigorous bombardment and violent combat.

ALSACE.

GERMANS GAIN GROUND.

PARIS, April 27.

A communique states: The Germans after an extremely fierce bombardment succeeded in setting foot on the summit of Hartmann's Weilerkopf.

We occupy a position a hundred metres from the summit, from where we attacked on March 25.

STILL RAGING.

BATTLE FOR CALAIS.

THE TAKING OF LIZERNE.

LONDON, April 27.

A Dunkirk message dated Monday says the battle for Calais continues to rage fiercely. The Germans have brought up large reinforcements, and at least a hundred thousand men are in the fighting line.

The enemy made repeated efforts to break through between Boesinghe and Zudschoote.

It is not true that the Germans captured many guns. The thirty guns abandoned by the French in the marshes remain between the opposing lines, and the French artillery is frustrating German efforts to capture them.

It is believed that the Germans have the largest concentration of artillery of the present war, including 16-inch guns, and 17-inch howitzers.

ENTHUSIASTIC TROOPS.

The Allies recrossed the Yser, marching to Bixschoote. Despite the terrible fighting the enthusiasm of the reinforcing troops was irresistible, and the French pushed forward chanting the "Marseillaise."

The Zouaves greatly distinguished themselves in capturing Lizerne. The narrow river channel and the adjoining village had been lost and retaken several times. The bodies of Germans were piled a yard high, the accumulation of corpses being unequalled since the bloody battle of Dixmude in November. The Germans have already had ten thousand casualties.

The French and Belgians began a combined counter-attack between Pilkem and Saint Julien on Sunday night, and are still fighting.

Prisoners state that prior to Thursday's attack the German officers told their men the lines were very weak, and that it would be easy to get to Paris. They made the men swear never to surrender.

GERMAN PREPARATIONS.

When the Germans first saw the result of the asphyxiation they thought immediate victory lay in their hands.

The prisoners add that the Germans had been preparing for the asphyxiation for three weeks. They laid a pipeline from the rear of their trenches to convey chlorine to metal cylinders planted in front of the trenches. They intended to plant cylinders all along the Belgian, French, and British front where an attack was contemplated, but the British attack on Hill 60 prevented the completion of the plan.

Most observers agree that a greenish-grey iridescent vapour preceded Thursday's attack. Victims state that men dressed like divers used yard-long generators, to which a hose was attached. Others sprayed the earth with fluid, afterwards igniting it. A third method was the use of explosive shells, containing a blinding chemical. Many of the rescued victims have since died.

The Canadians' chief claim to distinction is that they held on in defiance of every tactical rule. They were left fully exposed by the French retirement. The men in the rear trenches were forced to face about, and thus were assailed in both front and rear. They were also enfiladed, yet they resisted for hours, and made many prisoners.

Finally they retired in good order, conforming to the new alignment.

NO QUARTER.

Some of the wounded state that during their retirement the Canadians left wounded comrades behind them. After a counter-attack they found that all had been bayoneted to death. They took a terrible revenge, and made only two prisoners.

THE CANADIANS.

A STIRRING TALE.

RECAPTURE OF THE GUNS.

A member of the Canadian contingent who took part in repelling the German attack on the Yser, in the course of an interview, said: After the line was broken on our left we were sent to the north of Ypres. We started without food or water, in wet equipment, each man having four hundred rounds. We waited from early in the day until nearly midnight, when two battalions were ordered to charge the enemy, five hundred yards away. Artillery mowed us down like sheep—2500 Canadians were attacking 7000 Germans in a wood full of maxims. Before the attack a few shells were fired against the wood. We then expelled the enemy from the trenches in front of the wood, and went right through to about 500 yards to the other side. Then we were almost surrounded, and we retired to the captured trenches, dug ourselves in, and remained overnight, the enemy shelling us with shrapnel.

We filed out to make room for reinforcements. In our advance we were enfiladed by a heavy fire on both sides. The Prussian Guards fronting us ran like cowards. We recovered three French howitzers, which we blew up, and next recaptured our 4.7 guns. We surrounded at that point sixty Germans, of whom we bayoneted forty-five. The German officer blew out his brains. We were not able to estimate the number of Germans slain. Their searchlights were busy the whole night picking up their dead.

The Germans continuously shelled the dressing stations, despite the Red Cross flag. We were 48 hours without food, and in some cases 72.

We lost the bulk of our officers. The stations are full of wounded.

It was a fine sight to see the Indian and French Lancers and crowds of British troops proceeding to hold the position we had won.

KITCHENER'S APPRECIATION.

Sir John French has informed General Alderson that he reported the Canadians' splendid behaviour to Lord Kitchener. The latter had replied that their gallantry and determination in a difficult position was much appreciated in England.

BERLIN VERSION.

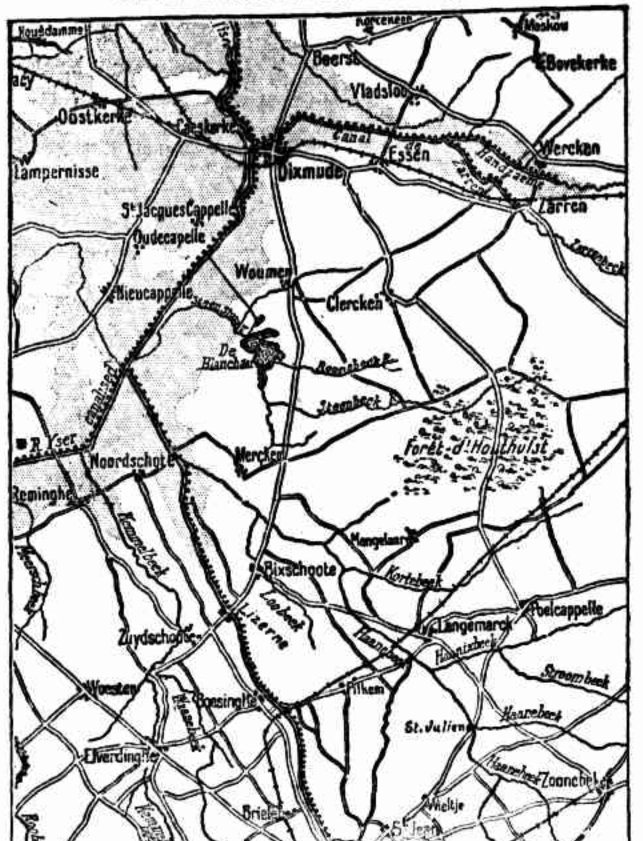
GUNS CAPTURED.

BERLIN, April 27.

A communique states: We still hold Lizerne, and have captured 44 guns.

We continued to attack north-west of Zonnebeke, capturing over 1000 Canadians, the total number of prisoners being 5000.

THE FLANDERS BATTLE.



The scene of the great German attempt to smash through the Allies' line and win a way to Calais.

IN CANADA.

RECRUITING STIMULATED.

OTTAWA, April 26.

The recruiting offices are being overwhelmed with offers.

The press points out that the Canadians proved they are ready to die for the Motherland at all times, and prophesies that recruiting in the Dominion will be greatly stimulated, although even now thousands are offering whom the Government are unable to accept.

Thousands of messages have been despatched to France from the Dominion congratulating the Canadians on their gallant stand.

CANADIAN CASUALTIES.

OTTAWA, April 27.

The casualties among the Canadians on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, include 21 officers killed (including three colonels), and 59 wounded.

ASPHYXIATING GAS.

AMERICAN CONDEMNATION.

NEW YORK, April 26.

The whole of the press denounces Germany's resort to the use of asphyxiating gases, and retaliation by the Allies is freely anticipated, though the necessity is deplored.

The "Tribune" says:—"The first duty of civilisation after the war will be to chain down such instincts of barbarity as Germany has shown, and to create international treaties, arraying neutrals against any belligerent descending to foul and forbidden methods of warfare."

REPRISALS URGED.

PARIS, April 26.

The "Debats" calls upon the military to discard all false sentiments, and to adopt immediate reprisals against the enemy for his use of poisonous gases.

NEED FOR MUNITIONS.

LORD KITCHENER'S APPEAL.

LONDON, April 26.

Lord Kitchener has sent a message to Vickers, Ltd., and Workman, Clark and Co., Ltd., appealing for a full output of munitions.

Anything less, he says, will mean that gallant lives will be sacrificed unnecessarily, and the victory of the Allies postponed.

NO RELAXATION.

Mr. A. J. Balfour, M.P., speaking in the Bechstein Hall, said it was clear the enemy's position was far less strong morally and materially than at the beginning of the war. It was a great thing to have checked the tide of invasion, but until the final consummation was reached the efforts of the mechanic at home and the soldier abroad must not be relaxed.

Our gratitude was due not only to the leaders and troops, but to the unnumbered nameless heroes on whose work ultimately depended the efficiency of all that was done in Flanders and France; to whom, in truth and reality, we should owe our freedom from the military nightmare under which Europe and the world groaned.

MINERS' DEMANDS.

QUESTION OF WAR BONUS.

LONDON, April 27.

Mr. Asquith's reply to the miners' conference is indefinite. He is still urging the Miners' Federation to accept the employers' offer to discuss the war bonus question at the various wages boards, as a national conference on wages would be an entirely new departure in the coal trade.

KRONPRINZ WILHELM.

TO BE INTERNED.

WASHINGTON, April 26.

The captain of the German armed liner Kronprinz Wilhelm has decided to intern his vessel.

THE CARPATHIANS.

A HILL OF DEATH.

SCENE OF FIERCE FIGHTING.

LONDON, April 27.

The "Daily Chronicle" correspondent at Lemberg writes: Amid snow-crowned peaks in the heart of the Carpathians is Hill 992, thirty miles south of Stry, dominating the river, with the railroad and highroad running through a winding gorge.

Hill 992 has been the scene of the fiercest mountain fighting of the war, and has earned the title of Golgotha. The Germans alone have lost 20,000 men since the Austro-German forces attempted to dislodge the Russians.

The Austro-Germans captured Hill 992 on April 9, but the Russians still hold the village of Koziova, and the gateway to the plains is firmly and securely held.

The Russians could retake Hill 992, but it is not worth the cost of a frontal attack, in view of the Russians' general position in the district.

BATTLE CONTINUES.

PETROGRAD, April 27.

A communique states: A desperate battle continues in the direction of Stry (on the Russian left in Galicia).

AUSTRIAN CLAIMS.

HEAVY RUSSIAN LOSSES.

LONDON, April 27.

A Vienna communique claims that the Austro-Germans captured a height south east of Koziova, taking a thousand prisoners. The Russians repeatedly counter-attacked at Koziova, and in the adjoining districts, but all attacks were repulsed with heavy losses. Two battalions were annihilated, and several hundreds taken prisoners, in addition to the thousand mentioned.

The communique adds: We occupied many Russian trenches. The Russians before Uszok then retreated in full flight.

ITALY.

DEFINITION OF RIGHTS.

ROME, April 26.

The "Corriere d'Italia" publishes a declaration by a personage connected with the Consular service, to the effect that Italy has been in communication with London, and that her rights in Trente, Trieste, and the Dalmatian Archipelago have been formally recognised.

It is also stated that Serbo-Italian interests have been reconciled, including the Servian outlet in the Adriatic. Only the question of Italy's rights in the Aegean and Asia Minor remains unsettled.

BULGARIA.

KING VISITS DEDEAGATCH.

PARIS, April 26.

The Dedeagatch correspondent of the "Temps" says that King Ferdinand of Bulgaria has granted an amnesty to all officers sentenced after the Balkan wars.

His Majesty proceeded with Prince Boris and Prince Cyril to Dedeagatch. After inspecting the garrisons at Xanthi and Gumuljina, he congratulated the commandants on the fine appearance of the troops.

Great political importance is attached to the journey.

FOR BELGIUM.

KING STARTS FUND.

THE NAVARRA.

SUNK TO AVOID CAPTURE.

AMSTERDAM, April 26.

A Berlin telegram asserts that the armed merchantman Orama did not sink the Hamburg-Amerika liner Navarra. It is stated that the Navarra was sunk in order to avoid capture by pursuing cruisers.

DARDANELLES.

ALLIES' ATTACK.

BY LAND AND SEA.

STUBBORN OPPOSITION.

LONDON, April 26.

The Admiralty and War Office state that the general attack on the Dardanelles by the fleet and army was resumed yesterday.

The disembarkation of the army, which was covered by the fleet, began before sunrise at various points along the Gallipoli Peninsula. In spite of serious opposition from the enemy, who were behind strong entrenchments and entanglements, it was completely successful, and before nightfall a large force was established ashore.

The landing of troops continues.

ARMY ON LAND.

TROOPS ENTRENCH.

The "Times" welcomes the landing of General Sir Ian Hamilton's army at the Dardanelles, and says there should have been conjoint action of the two services throughout.

It is probable, adds the "Times," that the navy is watching the lines at Bulair, while the landing force is attacking the south-westerly end of the peninsula, in order to cover further landing operations.

The attention of the Germans and Turks was diverted by feints at other points, giving the Allies at Gallipoli time to entrench, which they had done successfully.

BIG BATTLESHIPS.

THE FORTS REPLY.

ATHENS, April 26.

The bombardment of the Dardanelles was vigorously resumed on Sunday, large battleships participating in it.

The forts replied to the Allies' fire.

Two Turkish aeroplanes were brought down on Tenedos.

Several French aeroplanes threw bombs on the magazine at Maidos, where there are important forts.

THE BOSPHORUS.

RUSSIAN FLEET'S WORK.

PETROGRAD, April 27.

A communique states: Our fleet bombarded the Bosphorus forts, causing great explosions.

SOUTH-WEST AFRICA.

CAPETOWN, April 27.

It is officially announced that the Union forces have occupied Aritetis, 70 miles north of Keetmanshoop.

THE NORTH SEA.

GERMAN DESTROYERS.

COPENHAGEN, April 26.

The captain of a vessel which arrived at Ebsjerg reports having seen during the last two days of the voyage 30 German destroyers in the North Sea.

CHARITY SWINDLES.

SCANDAL IN FRANCE.

AMAZING REVELATIONS.

PARIS, April 27.

Astounding revelations have resulted from an investigation of war charities. Out of 147 societies in the Department of Seine, 76 were fraudulent, of which 35 had been founded by shady financiers, most of whom had served terms of imprisonment.

One society was installed in a German house, controlled by a secretary who had been eleven times imprisoned. There are several cases of Austrians and Germans who escaped from concentration camps acting as presidents with false titles.

Two women who were penniless before the war were making £40 a day. Another has been earning £80 daily by means of a spurious agency for tracing missing soldiers.

Most of the societies sold goods at exorbitant prices, which customers bought, believing the profits would be devoted to charities. Some employed agents to collect subscriptions from house to house. Several of these agents received commissions averaging £6 daily.

The investigation was the result of a tailor who was going to the front giving a stock of clothing for charitable purposes. The tailor met the founder of one society wearing one of his gift suits.

TREATMENT OF PRISONERS.

GERMAN PRESS REPORT.

BERLIN, April 26.

According to the "North German Gazette," the United States and Spanish Ambassadors visited the prisoners' camps, and found the English and other prisoners well cared for and humanely treated.

RUSSIAN OPINION.

PETROGRAD, April 26.

The newspapers eulogise Great Britain's justice and unvarying treatment of German prisoners, notwithstanding what British prisoners are suffering in Germany.

PRINCE OF WALES' FUND.

TOTAL, FIVE MILLIONS.

LONDON, April 27.

The Prince of Wales' Fund has reached £5,000,000.

MERCHANT SHIPPING.

LONDON, April 26.

The R.M.S. Orsova (left Sydney March 10), and the steamer Port Albany (left Sydney March 4) have arrived at London.

WAR NOTES.

THE FLANDERS BATTLE.

The great battle in Flanders is still raging, but, as far as can be gathered from the cablegrams, the position has not vitally altered since yesterday. The Germans, who are still bringing up reinforcements, have retaken St. Julien on the Ypres-Poelcappelle road, but a vigorous Allied counter attack is in progress betwen St. Julien and Pilkem, immediately to the west. The Germans have made the most desperate attempts to smash through the Allied line between Boesinghe and Lizerne on the Ypres-Dixmude canal; but all their efforts have so far proved unavailing. Again, some tremendous assaults have been launched against the British line, which sweeps round from St. Julien to the east and south-east of Ypres; but, in every case, no impression seems to have been made on this salient. The fierce fighting may be expected to go on for some days, until the Allied line is smashed or till the great German attack has spent itself. It is clear that the Germans have for some time been making careful preparations for this offensive; but it now also seems clear that the sudden British assault upon and capture of Hill 60 to the south-east of Ypres forced them to a premature attack. There would appear to be something of the proverbial British luck about it; for Sir John French's assault move against Hill 60 was not made with the object of forestalling the German offensive, but merely to gain possession, if possible, of a tactically important position. The Germans were laying plans for a lightning blow at the Allied line of much greater strength than that which they were able to hurl on Thursday, their idea being, apparently, to make one desperate effort to smash a way through to the coast before the new British and French formations could take their places at the front. And if they had been spared a few more days the situation might have been critical, indeed. Now that the French and British reinforcements are being hurried to the scene it seems hardly likely that the Allied line will be broken. In the tremendous struggle its contour may undergo considerable changes, here to our detriment and there to our advantage; but there is every reason to believe that it will remain intact, and that when the battle is over the balance of gains and losses will not be so very much against us.

THE AEROPLANE AND SECRECY.

There is one aspect of this latest development in Flanders that is apt to strike us as curious. We have been led to believe that the aeroplane had to a very great extent done away with secrecy in the movement of big bodies of troops, and the point has always been insisted on that, owing to the ascendancy of our airmen over the Germans, and the fact that they took all weathers as a matter of course, the reconnaissance work on our side was all that could be desired. Yet here we have a case of a tremendous concentration being carried out on the part of the enemy which must have taken a considerable time to accomplish, and, although our airmen have been flying over the German lines daily, Sir John French speaks in his report of "an entirely unexpected situation." As a matter of fact, the aeroplane has by no means done away with concealment—it has merely turned concealment into a fine art. A passage in a despatch by the "Morning Post's" correspondent, who recently visited the front, emphasises this. He is illustrating how conversations with officers up there forces one to reconstruct many ideas gained at home from newspaper reports as to the extraordinarily different conditions of modern warfare compared with old-time fighting. "When one objected," he says, "that, thanks to the air service, concealment could no longer be achieved, one was met with the chief of one's surprises. While in England we have been regarding the aeroplane as growing more and more mistress of the situation at the front, speculation has rather concerned itself with the means of outwitting her inquisitive attentions. Far from the aeroplane dominating more and more the enemy's movements, one was assured that with every week it finds by the peril of detection, the cunning on such domination more difficult; that faced both sides has reached such a pitch that the discovery of the positions of great guns in action has become largely a matter of luck, owing to the subtlety with which even their flashes are screened from observation, the cleverness of the German gunners being no whit behind our own. It was pointed out, moreover, that, despite the ceaseless vigilance and the incontestable competence of our own airmen, the enemy, notably at Ypres in October, has been able to assemble a force in close proximity to our lines which greatly exceeded our estimate, and to effect what might not unfairly be called a surprise. It was further urged that if such a concentration could be accomplished under our very eyes, strategical surprises will still be possible, provided that all movement takes place at night, that all means of hiding troops are utilised, and that methods of concealment at present in embyro should be duly developed.."

IMPRESSING THE NEUTRALS.

In addition to the desire to strike a crushing blow before the western Allies could get their new formations to the front, the Germans in assuming their present offensive doubtless had in mind the influencing of neutral States like Italy, Bulgaria, and Greece, who are all just at present weighing with especial care the pros and cons of intervention. The one great fact that Germany has used to impress outsiders, just as she uses it to impress her own people, is that she is now in the position of a conqueror. She holds practically the whole of Belgium and some of the finest districts of France, as well as a great deal of Russian territory. Apart from one little corner of Alsace, there is not a foreign soldier on her soil who is not a prisoner, and, as far as the actual events on the two fronts from day to day can show, there is not any suggestion of the German armies being driven from the outside territories they now hold. Look at it as we like, it is an impressive claim. And now she is seeking to show that in the face of the armies of France and Britain she is not merely on the defensive where she stands, but that she can herself take the offensive and gain still further ground. By this she hopes to make those States which are inclining to enter the war think seriously on the question as to whether it is advisable to range themselves against a Power which has accomplished so much and is prepared to accomplish more. But simultaneously with the reports of the battle of Flanders comes the news that an agreement between Italy and the Entente Powers has almost been concluded. As to what would be the effect of these negotiations if the German offensive had resulted in the smashing of the allied line we cannot, of course, say; but, in the circumstances as they stand, it begins to look as though all that Germany has accomplished will not prevent Italy taking the field on the side of the Allies before many weeks pass by. As to Bulgaria, the visit of the King to Dedeagatch, which is now being visited by British squadrons, suggests that the efforts of the Austro-German diplomats here are also losing their potency, notwithstanding Germany's latest exploit in the western field. And if Bulgaria sides with the Allies, then the intervention of Greece and Roumania follows inevitably.

CARPATHIAN CAMPAIGN.

The only news from the eastern front that had arrived at a late hour last night was in regard to the operations north of the Carpathians east of Uszok. Russian accounts tell of past fighting for Hill 992, which is 30 miles south of Stry and about 25 miles east of Uszok Pass. This hill dominates the valley of the upper Stry, and so commands the high road and the railway running down to Beskid Pass. So fierce and prolonged was the fighting for the position that the hill has earned the title of "Golgotha." The Russians had held it for some time, but when the great Austro-German attempt to turn the Russian left flank was made they put forth strenuous efforts to take Hill 992. The Germans alone are said to have lost 20,000 men in these efforts. Finally, on April 9, the Russians were driven off the crest, but they retained possession of the town of Koziova, near by—thus, according to the Petrograd reports, the gateway to the plains lying between the Stry and Uszok railways is still firmly held, and in view of this the Russians do not think it worth the cost of a frontal attack to attempt to regain "Golgotha." This means that they will, for the time being, at least, make no effort to force the Beskid railway pass, and will rest content with merely holding the Austro-German forces safely on their left flank while continuing the operations against Uszok Pass. The Austrian communique suggests that they have obtained a considerable success against the Russians in this district, and that the latter are "in full flight" in the neighbourhood of Uszok. But when we recall how unreliable the Austrian communiques have been all along, and how the Russian official despatches have always frankly admitted reverses, we need not feel greatly concerned about the position for the present.

GERMANY'S APPEAL FOR MONEY.

Dr. Delbruck, Vice-President of the Prussian State Department, in introducing the second German War Loan, made an urgent appeal to the people, high and low, to subscribe to the issue. Coming on top of the claim that Germany was in a far more favourable position financially than Britain, the appeal reads curiously. The opening passages of the speech, reported in the "Volkswirt," run as follows:—"The war upon which we are now engaged is altogether different from those of former centuries. Then the army went forth; the people at home sent their good wishes after them and rejoiced in their victories. To-day England's attempt to starve us out has made this war a war of people against people—nay, of man against man—so that every one, no matter whether he be in the field or at home, under arms or at work, without distinction of age or of sex, must devote his whole being to the simple service of war. Every one of us must from morn till night direct every activity by the one question—how to injure the enemy and serve our country. Thus, every penny lying hoarded in stocking or drawer must be brought out, and used for the war; and the new loan affords the opportunity of bringing it out. Once more there is a call to great and small to run as one man and subscribe; and it is on the small man that success depends. . . . The means that used to be employed—depreciation of the coinage, inflation of the paper currency, liquidation of State assets, seizure of the treasures held by churches, cloisters, and families—are inadequate, a drop in the ocean of the demands of a world-war—demands which only Government loans on a gigantic scale can meet. If, which God forfend, the second loan were to fail, the result would be a national disaster. Who wishes to live if Germany dies?. . ."

LATE WAR NEWS.

INFERNAL MACHINE.

AT TURKISH WAR MINISTRY.

PARIS, April 27.

The Salonika correspondent of the "Echo de Paris" states that a huge infernal machine was discovered at the War Ministry in Constantinople. It was timed to explode during a meeting of a council of Ministers, including Enver Pasha, General von Sanders, and General von der Goltz.

The German police believe there is a serious political organisation working against the Germans and Young Turks. Several functionaries at the Ministry have been arrested.

ASPHYXIATING GAS.

CHLORINE AS A BASIS.

The employment of asphyxiating gases in shells used by the Germans, as referred to in our cable columns, was brought under the notice of Professor Robinson, of Sydney University, yesterday, and the professor was asked if he would explain what sort of gases were used.

Professor Robinson replied that it could be merely a matter of conjecture, but the probabilities were that the gases floated over the French trenches from the German trenches or used in their shells had chlorine as a basis. It was perfectly easy to form more asphyxiating gases than lyddite, which was employed in British shells. When lyddite exploded it gave off poisonous gases, but nothing to compare with those described in the cables as having been employed by the enemy. If the British had intended to produce asphyxiating gases in shells there was no doubt that a far more effective medium could have been employed than lyddite.

THE JOHN MURRAY.

HEARING RESUMED.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The inquiry into the management of the training ship John Murray was continued today by Mr. G. C. Morrison, sitting as a Royal Commission.

William Groom said he was a member of the committee of the John Murray. He knew Sampson.

Mr. Paul (representing the committee of management): Sampson said that he had given you his original diary. Did you ever receive a book from him?

Witness: Yes, he brought it in and said, "That's it." I did not look at it. It was too big to read. Captain Newman was present. Sampson was excited, and said that he had a lot of complaints and grievances, and I said, "I am only an individual member of the committee; you send a report to the committee, and I will see that it is thrashed out." He promised that he would do so.

Mr. Paul: Did he make any complaint about shortages?

Witness: Not to me at any time. I stopped on the ship all night on the occasion that Sampson brought in the book. On half a dozen occasions I was on the ship for two or three hours at a time, and made it a rule to go through the ship, and was always ready to hear complaints. I saw Sampson on most of these occasions. Sampson's complaints on the night he gave me the book were chiefly about the schoolmaster. When he left I asked the captain when the committee was to be relieved of the bother with the men, and the captain replied, 'Oh, that man's ratty.'"

The commission adjourned till Thursday.

"FOLLOW THE KING."

BROKEN HILL, Tuesday.

The Rev. W. Shaw, chairman of the Methodist Church in Broken Hill, at Sulphide-street Church, delivered an address on "The King's Call to National Abstinence, or the Drink Traffic—the Nation's Peril." Several times during his discourse the preacher was loudly applauded.

EIGHT-HOUR DAY.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The Eight-hour Day procession yesterday was smaller than that of last year or the year before. This year 11,164 people attended, as against over 12,000 last year, and 13,000 in 1913. The weather was favourable, and crowds lined the streets to witness the procession from the Trades Hall to the Exhibition-building, where a sports programme was carried out. The best show of all the trades in the procession was perhaps that of the cordite works workers. The union marched in great strength behind a new banner. These workers were cheered heartily as they passed.

MASTER BUILDERS' MOTION.

CONGRATULATIONS TO VOLUNTEERS.

BRISBANE, Tuesday.

At the convention of the Federated Master Builders' Associations the president moved,—"That this convention of Federated Master Builders' Associations of Australia deplores the terrible war now raging in Europe, recognises it as one of the most momentous crises in the world's history, and tenders its congratulations and encouragement to the noble and patriotic Australians who have sprung to arms and joined the Motherland in the fight which she and her Allies are making for civilisation."

The motion was carried.

RECRUITING.

THE WRONG WAY.

MEN BEING TURNED AWAY.

MORE DOCTORS REQUIRED.

It has been stated over and over again by the military authorities, headed by the Minister for Defence, Senator Pearce, that every available man is required to come forward and join the colours. The District Commandant, Colonel Wallack, C.B., has drilled this in at every meeting of a rifle club he has addressed, and finally last Saturday's big parade was arranged, primarily, it was officially given out, with a view to the encouragement of recruiting.

The big parade acted as a fine incentive, and Sunday, Monday, and Tuesday saw a great increase in the number of men applying for positions in the military forces. The recruiting hours are, and have been given out also officially as, between 9 and 12 on week days, and 9.30 and 12 on Sundays, and even though the would-be recruits are at the enrolling office before the clock chimes 12, they have been informed that they had no hope that day, and the best thing they could do was to go away and come up again the next day.

Such a state of affairs is hardly likely to prove an aid to recruiting—rather the reverse, and the recruits who were turned away on Monday and yesterday did not mince matters in the choice of epithets they applied to officials who had publicly announced that the hours were from 9 till 12, and yet refused to even consider an application between 20 to 12 and the hour itself. About 30 men were told to call again on Monday, and 11 were treated in the same manner yesterday. The men were all before the recruiting sergeant, had made out their application forms, and been passed by the enrolling officer before the clock struck 12, but when they went to the room where the doctors examine the recruits before they are sent to Liverpool, they found the door closed, and were informed that "no more will be examined to-day."

When the tale of those so turned away becomes known in the country and the city it may do more harm to the recruiting movement than anything else could. As one disappointed recruit put it yesterday, "I thought recruits were required. I was here on time, and was passed by the enrolling officer, and told to come over here to the doctor, yet when I carry out these orders, a boy in khaki tells me to go away and come again to-morrow. I live at Parramatta, and have already got two days' leave from the enrolling officer. As I'm not passed by the doctor, owing to the fact that apparently he is too busy to bother about examining a recruit who presents himself on time, I've got to pay my fare back to Parramatta to-day, come in again to-morrow, and get my leave extended, and go back all at my own expense. It's pretty hot when you see all the stories about recruits being wanted."

"That's nothing," said another recruit who stood before the doctor's closed door. "One poor beggar turned up from the country yesterday in time. He had all his luggage with him, and was ready to leave for camp straight away. He was told to go away and return, but was so disgusted with the treatment accorded him that he went away, and did not make a second attempt.

Yesterday the door of the shed where the men are examined by the doctors was closed to the tick of midday, and 11 men were lined up outside. All had been passed by the enrolling officer, but the doctors did not see them. Two of these men were penniless, and had spent their last money in reaching the barracks. They asked how they were to exist till the next day, and where they were to sleep. The recruiting sergeant brought them before the enrolling officer, and explained their plight, and the latter officer informed them that they would be put up and given meals in the barracks until they could be medically examined to-day.

There were nearly 200 men both on Monday and Tuesday passed by the enrolling officer, and as many of these men arrive at the barracks between 8.30 and 10 o'clock, their plight is an unenviable one. Passed by the enrolling officer, they are sent over to the artillery shed to strip, with the exception of their trousers, and, clad only in this garment, and with bare feet, they are sent to another shed to wait till the doctors arrive somewhere about 11 o'clock. It was 20 minutes to 11 yesterday when the first doctor arrived, and there were 116 men waiting for him, some of whom had been there since 8.45. Some of the recruits had slipped a coat on over their bare skins, but the cold of the cement floor must have been bitter to naked feet. What it was like for the recruits waiting in the cold snap of Sunday and Monday is better left to the imagination.

BACK TO THE LAND.

Among the recruits at the barracks yesterday was a man who came from the Darling Downs. He was a fine stamp of man, but when he asked the enrolling officer for a solid month's leave, the officer, who readily grants a week or a fortnight on a valid excuse, wanted a sufficient reason before complying with the request. "Well, you see, it's this way," said the recruit. "If you give me a month I've time to go home and sow my wheat, and then it'll be all ready for me to cut when I come back." He got his month.

A ship's steward, who came along to enlist placed in the special qualification column the statement that he was an "assistant doctor." When asked to define this term, he stated that he used to help the ship's doctor when operations had to be performed on board.

There were close on 200 recruits passed before the enrolling officer yesterday, and a similar number the day before; and a good steady stamp of men they appeared to be.

Captain Kenneth Smith, A.M.C., and a party of five men are leaving Sydney shortly, and proceeding to Melbourne to catch the Maloja for England. Captain Smith and his party will form the advance party of the new double general hospital of 1040 beds which Australia is providing at the front.

Lieut.-Colonel Watson, V.D., has been transferred from the command of the 19th Battalion, New South Wales, to the command of the 24th Battalion, Victoria.

Colonel Paton, V.D., who has been in command of the 17th Battalion, New South Wales, has been transferred to a battalion command in the 7th Brigade, Queensland.

Lieutenant R. M. Porter, R.N.R., who prior to the war was second officer of the Athenic, is at present attached to H.M.S. Swiftsure, and just before the last English mail left had been placed in command of H.M.S. Andros, a captured German gunboat.

Quartermaster-sergeant W. J. Watson and Sergeant W. Payne were on Saturday evening entertained by a large number of friends at Annandale. Quartermaster-sergeant Watson was presented with an illuminated address, a pair of field glasses, and a gold-mounted fountain pen, and Sergeant Payne with a gold-mounted cigarette holder and case.

Two members of the staff of the Rozelle Superior Public School—Messrs. Albert Doust and Hector Lang—having volunteered for the front, were farewelled in the presence of the teachers and 800 of the senior boys. They were presented with wristlet watches, fountain pens, military belts, and other gifts. The presentation was made by the headmaster (Mr. P. J. Nelligan), who commended their desire to serve the country, and encouraged the junior and senior cadets to qualify themselves for their country's defence.

THE ANIMATING SPIRIT.

"A Sydney Architect" writes:—"Apropos of the magnificent march past on Saturday last I should like to draw your attention to the fact that the leading motor ambulance was driven by Private William Wiesener, whose patriotic action in making our country the gift of this ambulance has been capped by his action in enlisting as an ordinary private, and submitting himself to all the arduous training and sacrifice that this entails. I have read much about the magnificent physique of the men, but my object in writing is to draw attention to the spirit and determination that animates them, a fact which surely adds greatly to their value as a military unit. All have made sacrifices for their country, and to possess the friendship of any one of these men as I do that of William Wiesener is indeed an honour."

ARMY CHAPLAINS.

"One Who Thinks" writes:—"I would draw attention to the incongruity of the deputation of military chaplains to the Minister for Defence protesting against the reduction of their salaries, which, to the ordinary lay mind, seemed excessive and out of all proportion to the value of their services rendered, apart from the fact that we do look for disinterestedness on the part of our clergy. Can we wonder that some of our churches do not fill in the face of such occurrences? We know, of course, that chaplains are entitled to a salary sufficient to keep their families in comfort, but some who have already left these shores are single men, and are now in receipt of salaries almost double what they would have received had they stayed here."

This letter was referred to military headquarters, and information was supplied to the effect that army chaplains who are appointed only receive the pay of a captain in the army, and that any chaplains now at the front who held higher rank and pay would at the expiration of six months have their pay reduced to that of a captain. If they objected to such reduction they could return to Australia. It is not known of any case where the chaplain is drawing double salary, or, in other words, is being paid his stipend in addition to his military pay. In most cases the former is needed for the locum tenens.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

"Loyalist".—(a) The number of chaplains to each New South Wales contingent depends entirely upon the requirements of the contingent. There are four chaplains at present in the infantry brigade, which works out at one to each battalion. (b) There is not the slightest difficulty in securing the number required. (c) He must enrol as a private, and when before the enrolling officer should make known his wish to join the A.M.C. The pay and conditions are the same as any other private has—6s a day, and live at Liverpool until embarked for the front.

"Malaria Patient."—It will only be a matter of time before the discharge you refer to is cancelled, and you will receive a continuance of pay if you make a proper application. No pay will be stopped unless through disease contracted owing to your own fault.

"W.H."—From your own description, you should have no difficulty in passing the enrolling officer and doctors. The minimum height is 5ft 4in, and the chest measurement 32-34. The maximum weight for light horsemen is 11st.

"L.R.H."—The authorities must have supporting documents before full discharges can be granted. Such documents have to be obtained from headquarters, Melbourne, and take some little while in reaching here. On their arrival the discharges you refer to will be granted.

"Anxious."—The tape is put round the back and brought over just above to the centre of the breastbone.

THE MISSIONS.

LOYAL INDIA.

The annual demonstration of the Church Missionary Association was held yesterday afternoon and evening. The Bishop of Newcastle, Dr. Stretch, preached at a service, held at St. Andrew's Cathedral, at 4.30, and at night there was a public meeting in the Town Hall. In the interval between 7 and 8 o'clock Mr. Broome P. Smith, F.R.G.S., gave a lecture on West Africa, where he had laboured for 23 years.

At the Town Hall Dr. Wright welcomed the Rev. Principal Fraser, M.A. Much credit, he said, was due to men of Principal Fraser's stamp for the great part India was playing in the national affairs of to-day. Christianity was now on its trial, and one way to exemplify it was to show other nations that England was living up to the principles always so dear to her.

The Rev. P. J. Bazeley, general secretary, submitted the annual report.

Mr. John Kent, hon. treasurer, submitted the balance-sheet, which showed that payments had been made for the year ending March 31 amounting to £5443. There was a balance of £1021, but a sum of £600 was due to the C.M.S. for the support of missionaries for 1915.

Principal Fraser (C.M.S. Trinity College, Kandy, Ceylon) moved the adoption of the annual report and treasurers' statement. He explained the work that was being done in India and elsewhere. Year by year Christian standards and thoughts were permeating that great continent. The flood of loyalty was astounding. A southern missionary had written:—"The flood of loyalty that has poured forth from prince and peasant astonished me. True, it is greatly due to the humanity and justice of the Government, but to most of the lower classes Government is a very impersonal and shadowy thing. I claim that it has been chiefly due to the Christian merchant, planter, missionary, and others, who come in touch with the natives, and let them see in the daily life what it means to be a follower of Christ."

The motion for the adoption of the report and balance-sheet was seconded by the Rev. F. C. Gore (Soudan), and carried. He said more missionaries were needed.

On the motion of the Rev. H. E. Warren (Roper River Mission), seconded by the Rev. M. G. Hinsby, the thanks of the association were accorded to the Bishop of Newcastle, for his sermon during the afternoon, and a committee was appointed for the ensuing year.

GUARDING WATER SUPPLY.

QUESTION OF PAYMENT.

At yesterday's meeting of the Water and Sewerage Board a letter was received from the Auditor-General stating that he could not sanction any further payments by the board in connection with the military guard after April 30, on the ground that the guard was unnecessary.

After discussion it was decided, on the motion of Alderman Griffin, that the vice-president (Alderman Barlow) and the secretary should wait on the military authorities to ask them if it were necessary to continue the guard at the reservoir, and if so that the Minister should be asked to find the money with which to pay the soldiers.

CAPTAIN COOK.

SOME MONUMENTS.

(BY CAPTAIN JAMES H. WATSON.)

The recurrence of April 28 reminds us once more that it is the anniversary of the arrival in Botany Bay of H.M.S. Endeavour, under the command of Lieutenant James Cook. April 28, 1770, marks the day when the first European landed on the east coast of New Holland. There are some who affect to believe that an earlier visit was made, but not one single bit of evidence to support such a theory can be produced; so that Cook's claim that all the east coast of New Holland had remained undiscovered until he sighted it must hold good until proved to be wrong. Cook is frequently spoken of as the discoverer of Australia. He made no statement at any time that would bear that interpretation, but he did believe that he was the first white man to be on the Pacific coast of New Holland.

In 1874 Captain Thomas Watson, a master mariner of note in his day, erected at Randwick a statue of Captain Cook, not to his memory but to that of Commodore Goodenough. This monument was placed on a small triangular piece of ground at the junction of Belmore-road and Avoca-street, and faces Botany Bay. It is the work of Mr. M'Gill, and has no particular artistic merit. But Captain Watson was evidently a great admirer of Captain Cook, and determined he should have a statue worthy of himself and of the people occupying the land he discovered. He took vigorous action. A committee formed of some of the leading citizens of the day ably assisted him, with the result that what the papers of the day describe as "Mr. Woolner's chef d'oeuvre" was unveiled in the presence of nearly 100,000 people," a spectacle more "imposing than any ever witnessed, or likely to be again witnessed, on the continent of Australia," on February 25, 1879.

But there is an earlier memorial of the discoverer of New South Wales than either of these, and that stands in the old town of Liverpool. In form it is an obelisk, on a pedestal, and serves also as a milestone. The inscription states that it was "In memory of Captain James Cook," that "Charles A. Fitzroy, K.C.B.," was "Govenor-General," and that Campbelltown was XIII miles and Sydney XX. miles distant. The monument has an old and weathered appearance, and the spelling is somewhat original. This also is said to have been erected by Captain Watson. Nor has his name been neglected in New South Wales and the other States of Australia, for there is the county of Cook, Cook's River, Cooktown, Cook's Creek, Cook's Vale, and other places deriving their names from the same, all commemorative of him, the anniversary of whose landing in this territory is to-day being celebrated.

It is natural that in the neighbourhood of Cook's birthplace memorials of him should be seen. At Marton, a small village in Yorkshire, where he was born in 1728, there was erected in 1850 a memorial school. Inserted in one of its walls is a tablet which has on it this inscription: "To the memory of Captain James Cook, the celebrated circumnavigator, who was born in this parish October 27, 1728. This tablet was erected by the parishioners of Marton A.D. 1812. Re-erected here at the building of this memorial school A.D. 1850." At Ayton, a village that Cook's parents moved to when he was eight years of age, there stands on Easby Hill a high obelisk, enclosed by iron railings. This is one of the oldest memorials erected. About three years ago the Hon. Gervase Beckett, M.P., thinking that Whitby had overlooked the great sailor who had made that small seaport town famous, presented it with a statue of Cook which would grace the finest site in the capital city. It was unveiled by Admiral Lord Charles Beresford, who termed it a tribute to the greatest navigator and surveyor England ever had.

At Gisborne, where Cook first landed in New Zealand, was erected in 1906 a very handsome column of Aberdeen granite. On one side an inscription sets out the monument as a memorial of Captain Cook, but by an extraordinary mixing of ideas on the other side are the names of troopers belonging to the district who fell in the South African war. Two years ago the people round Queen Charlotte Sound put up what is described as "a plain truncated pyramid of rough-cast concrete, broad-based." The inscriptions are in English and Maori; the latter, being interpreted, reads: "Welcome, O visitor, from the borders of heaven, my beloved, return to us from beyond the horizon—welcome, welcome." Cook thought highly of Ship Cove, Queen Charlotte Sound, which is on the north coast of the middle island, and is entered from Cook's Strait, and he anchored there five times during the period of his three voyages.

It has been stated recently that the original sheet of copper, inscribed with the particulars relating to Cook's death, and which was nailed to a tree near the beach at Karakacooa Bay, Hawaii, by the officers of his ship, is in the possession of some of the natives there, but the spot was unmarked in the earlier years of the last century by any memorial. In 1837, however, the Lords of the Admiralty sent out and had this remedied, and on a copper tablet, which was fixed on the stump of a cocoanut tree, this inscription was: "Near this spot fell Captain James Cook, R.N., the renowned circumnavigator who discovered these islands A.D. 1778. Her Majesty's Ship Imogene, October 17, 1837." This was all the navy could do for him who did so much for it, by his treatment to prevent scurvy among its seamen, if for no other reason. However, in 1874 a very fine but simple monument was erected. But being in an out of the way locality few tourists see it, and it is exposed to the weather, and in a short time it becomes neglected looking and shabby. English warships occasionally visit the island, which belongs to the United States, and the crews renovate the monument and clear up the ground around it.

There are many others in various places more or less associated with Cook, among the former being a monument at Tahiti, where he observed the transit of Venus, before he sailed on his first visit to New Zealand; a copper plate at Botany Bay, placed there in 1822, by the Philosophical Society, and the high obelisk at the landing place at Kurnell, erected there by the late Thomas Holt, M.L.C., and on the Endeavour River, at Cooktown, a handsome monument marks the site where the Endeavour was beached, after running on the reef off Cape Tribulation on the night of June 10, 1770.

Of church monuments there is one at Ottery St. Mary's, in Devonshire, and another over the altar in the Church of St. Andrew the Great, at Cambridge. On it is recorded what may be called the family history, and a sad one it is. The list of deaths begins with Captain James Cook, 1779; Mr. Nathaniel Cook, a midshipman, lost in his ship at sea, 1780; Mr. Hugh Cook, of Christ College, Cambridge, 1793; James Cook, Esq., Commander, R.N., who lost his life 1794; Elizabeth Cook, 1771; Joseph Cook, 1768; and George Cook, 1772. The last to close the melancholy roll is Elizabeth Cook, "who survived her husband 56 years," and died in 1835, aged 94 years. Of all their children only one reached the age of 21, and he, the commander, was drowned at the age of 31 yearr, on the way to his ship.

Last of all may be mentioned the first monument to be erected. It was built at the family seat of Admiral Sir Hugh Palliser, the friend and patron of Cook, in Vache Park, Buckinghamshire. It has been described as "a square block surmounted by a globe, and enclosed by a neat, but simple-roofed, building, open at four sides." In addition to his name and an appropriate description there are 84 lines of poetry divided among the four sides, and is what may be described as an effusive panegyric.

Of all the monuments the one in Hyde Park, Sydney, stands out alone above all the others as worthy the man. Here we see Cook standing erect, looking out towards the distant Pacific, his arm and hand poised in the attitude as if he was saying, "Behold, what I have found for you." May this and future generations of Australians zealously and jealously guard the great gift he gave them, and of which they are the trustees by circumstances of environment.

THE GOVERNORS.

LORD MAYOR'S BANQUET.

CIVIC WELCOME.

DISTINGUISHED GATHERING.

His Excellency Sir Gerald Strickland, the Governor of Victoria (Sir Arthur Stanley), and the Governor of South Australia (Sir Henry Galway) were entertained at dinner last evening by the Lord Mayor, Alderman Richards. Among those present were the Speaker, Mr. R. D. Meagher, the Premier, the Attorney-General, the Minister for Education, the Vice-President of the Executive Council, the Chief Secretary, and the Minister for Works.

The Lord Mayor proposed the health of Sir Gerald Strickland. He said: England has long been fruitful in great men, the necessary consequence of admirable discipline of her institutions, and we are to-night honoured with the presence of three of his Majesty's representatives who have an undoubted and peculiar title to our welcome. This occasion is the opportunity not only to give expression to our personal regard for their Excellencies, but also to evince our devotion to the Empire, to express our sense of its transcendant value, and to resent whatever threatens its proper authority or endangers its existence. His Excellency in the respective positions that he has adorned in this and other States has established a reputation on the firmest basis, possessing fortitude to conquer difficulties, and ability to perform the duties of his office with conspicuous distinction, honour, and dignity. He is honoured and respected by all classes of the community. Personally I am very much indebted to his Excellency for his wise counsel upon many matters of public moment, and upon following his advice I can assure you that my resolution has always been well founded.

Sir Gerald Strickland, in responding, disclaimed having played any part in bringing about the meeting of the Governors in Sydney. "The presence of Sir Arthur Stanley and Sir Henry Galway, in Sydney to-day," said his Excellency, "is due to the sporting instinct of the Lord Mayor. The four of us happened to meet at Flemington during the Melbourne Cup meeting, and the Lord Mayor said to me why not invite your fellow-Governors to visit us in Sydney? That was how this meeting all arose. It is to the Lord Mayor that we owe this visit, and it is to his sporting spirit that we have the pleasure and honour of meeting them to-night. I am proud in the name of New South Wales to be associated with the Chief Magistrate of Sydney, in offering the city's hospitality to the King's representatives in the other States."

Mr. Holman proposed the health of the Governor of Victoria, Sir Arthur Stanley. Though it was Sir Arthur's first visit to New South Wales, his family occupied a very warm place in the hearts of the people of the State. His distinguished father, Lord Sheffield, visited Sydney, together with Lord Emmott and a number of other distinguished English Parliamentarians only a few months ago. Lord Sheffield's name was also associated with the State of New South Wales in another way. It was he who had so generously given the Sheffield Shield, for which so many sturdy contests had taken place in the cricket field, and "circumstances have conspired," said Mr. Holman, "wrongfully and maliciously I believe, to make Melbourne the place of rendezvous for Australian statesmen. There is a geographical convenience about Melbourne which overcomes its social and other defects, and makes it desirable for the representatives of Governments to meet there and discuss matters of common concern. (Hear, hear.) It was there that I first met Sir Arthur Stanley, and recognised how strenuously he exerted his influence for the benefit of his State, and for the good of Australia. If I were a successful statesman of the British Empire, and had my choice of all the posts at the disposal of the British Government, I think that I would accept the Governorship of the State of Victoria. There they have no political crises. There they have had an apostolic succession of Ministries, and nothing has occurred to disturb the peaceful horizon or to upset the political equilibrium of the State. Here, however, Sir Gerald Strickland does not know at what day or what hour he will be deprived of the advice and the invaluable co-operation of his present advisers. I think Sir Henry Galway also has had some experience of this kind lately. I desire to say, however," concluded Mr. Holman, "how much I rejoice at seeing Sir Arthur Stanley amongst us. I wish to say to him that we are one with the people of Victoria in doing our utmost to advance the interests of the Commonwealth and in strengthening the motherland to which we belong."

Sir Arthur Stanley, in returning thanks, said that when one came to Australia one learned to discard many of the prejudices and false impressions gathered some twelve thousand miles away. He now recognised that the people of the States trusted one another heartily, and did their utmost for the advancement of Australia generally. Whatever feeling of jealousy may have existed in Victoria in the past had entirely disappeared, and the people not only of Victoria, but of the whole of the States, had become Australians—(cheers)—and were working for the good of Australia. There were no doubt many questions that needed solution. He had read the debate which took place some twelve months ago when the Premiers met to discuss certain outstanding questions, and he could not help being struck with the spirit which animated the whole of those present. Their ideal seemed to be to work together in order to give effect to the great ideal which Australia had when she federated some fifteen years ago. "There are certain duties of a Governor which are not defined, and about which no regulations can be found," said his Excellency. His duty is to learn what Australia means and in what direction Australia is going, so that when he returns to the Old Country he may be able to enlighten his friends on these points. It is a matter of some interest to compare these dominions with Britain's overseas dominions 120 or 130 years ago. England had just then emerged from a war which lost her her great American possessions. Now, instead of finding her Dominions in arms against her, we see them flocking to her assistance and ready to spend their money and their people, and to shed their blood to assist her. (Cheers.)

Mr. C. G. Wade proposed the health of Sir Henry Galway, Governor of South Australia.

Sir Henry Galway, after thanking the Lord Mayor and the citizens of Sydney for their hospitality, paid a high tribute to Sir Gerald Strickland for the work he was doing, and the cordiality with which he had received them. "Speaking as a soldier," he said, "I would like to say a little about the war. One of the most striking things in connection with the struggle to my mind has been the manner in which the overseas Dominions have rallied round the flag. The war has taught us that the Empire is a combination of heroic hearts, striving, seeking, and finding, but never yielding. (Cheers.) The great secret of this is the genius of the British race for self-government and good government. I am optimistic enough to think that this great war, with its rivers of blood and tears, is in a sense purifying the nation. It has, for one thing, set the hallmark on national character. It has also, I think, silenced once and for all the croakers who said that the British nation was becoming degenerate. While saying this, I must say there are many men—many young men in this country—who could go to the front, but who have not done so. The best recruiting sergeant we could have had here would have been a few shells dropped into Sydney, Melbourne, Adelaide, and other coast towns. I am not complaining, but there cannot be any doubt that a great many are not going who ought to go. I pay my tribute of admiration to Australia for what she is doing. The manner in which she has helped Belgium is splendid, and the generous response she is making in other directions is also splendid. There is another thing I would like to add, and that is a word for the men who are training our troops and staying behind. They deserve great credit for what they are doing, and I think deserve as much reward as the men who go to the front.

The health of the Lord Mayor was proposed by Sir Arthur Stanley, and enthusiastically drunk.

THE GARDEN APPROACH.

FURTHER LEGAL OPINION.

The works committee of the City Council had before it yesterday the legal opinion dealing with the proposal practically to close the upper portion of Cathedral-street, and to take off a slice of Phillip Park for the purpose of providing a garden approach to St. Mary's Cathedral.

Alderman A. M'Elhone, chairman of the committee, said that the opinion the council had already received cited cases in support of the contention submitted that were not on all fours with the proposal before the council. That was his view, and it was borne out by the views of one or two legal gentlemen in the council. He therefore suggested that they take the opinion of senior counsel, and moved that the finance committee be requested to grant the necessary authority.

The motion was adopted without discussion.

FOR BELGIUM.

HELP FOR THE HELPLESS.

NATIONAL RELIEF FUND.

The thousand pounds' mark was again topped by the National Belgian Fund yesterday. Of the day's takings, the municipality of Randwick sent a very considerable proportion in a cheque for £650, being a first instalment from that district. With the exception of the £1000 from the city of Newcastle, this is the largest amount yet sent in a single donation by any municipality, and the residents of Randwick, as well as the organisers of the fund there, are to be congratulated on the splendid response to the appeal.

Public schools yesterday sent in a further subscription of £139 10s, Dorrigo Shire sent £40, and Bemboka £36. A further subscription of £50 was received from the Australasian Trained Nurses' Association, making a total of £200 already sent in by this body.

The sum of £26,024 12s 6d was received from April 1st until the 26th by the secretaries of the National Fund, at Challis House. This just covers the thousand per day needed to maintain the State's quota. The period includes four Sundays, and the result must, therefore, be considered highly gratifying.

Mr. J. H. C. Close, who was a member of the 1912 Mawson Expedition to Antarctica, has given a 6ft Union Jack, which was flown in Adelie Land in 1912, to be sold by auction for the benefit of the fund. In view of the history attaching to this flag, it is probable that it will bring a substantial sum.

Repeated complaints are being made to the hon. secretaries of the fund concerning the operations of bogus collectors, especially in the suburban districts. Householders are again urged to be careful in accepting as genuine collectors who do not produce the necessary authority from the local Mayor or president of the municipal committee. The Inspector-General of Police has been communicated with upon the matter, and rigorous action will be taken against any bogus collectors who are run to earth.

Occasion will be taken by a party of Parliamentarians, who left last night for a tour of the North Coast to bring before the notice of the people in the districts passed through the urgency of the appeal for funds for the Belgians. One of the secretaries of the fund, Mr. Percy Hunter, accompanied the party, and arrangements have been made for him to deliver addresses at Port Macquarie, Grafton, and Lismore.

FLOWER DAY TO-DAY.

People who are kind enough to give flowers for sale to-day at the stall controlled by the committee of ladies at Miss O'Shanassy's millinery establishment at the top of William-street, and Grace Bros., Broadway, Glebe, are reminded that they should leave them at the Gresham-street entrance of the Royal Exchange, or at Horton's shop at the railway station, this morning.

BELGIAN DAY.

GENERAL OBSERVANCE THROUGHOUT THE STATE.

The arrangements for "Belgian Day, May 14"—one great united effort, by the whole State—are progressing. The first factor in the success of the day is that every town in New South Wales shall observe it. The idea of the State paying homage to the brave Belgian nation on the same day is one that should appeal powerfully to popular imagination, and the proposal to toast King Albert and his gallant army at the 1 o'clock function in every centre of population strikes a note that the collective mind immediately responds to.

At Bathurst it was decided yesterday to hold Belgian Day on May 15. This is unfortunate, and the organising committee trusts that so important a centre will fall into line with the rest of the State, and make its "day" on the general date.

Some concern has manifested itself regarding the money collected on May 14 not counting in with the sum each town is raising on its own initiative, but there is no reason why it should not be so counted. The purpose of "Belgian Day" is to record the result of the one day's special effort. "Belgian Day" is not a Sydney celebration. It is the tribute of all New South Wales to a people who, in giving all, lost all save honour.

"It is Belgium's own doing that has placed her in her present plight," said Dr. Dernburg recently through the American press. Was there ever a more eloquent case stated for our admiration? If Belgium had considered her material welfare before her duty to the world the world would not be faced today with its duty to Belgium. A famous correspondent, Irvin Cobb, after a tour through the tragic country, says it is more than a duty that confronts the world. "I tell you," he writes, "that every penny sent to help in the stricken territory is bread cast upon the waters. To give is the greatest honour and privilege you who are spared can have."

EX-SERVICE MEN.

LAND SETTLEMENT SCHEME.

At a special meeting of the council of the Royal Colonial Institute the following resolution was passed:—

"That it be a recommendation to the council to give its earnest and immediate attention to the subject of 'the employment of ex-service men on the land and otherwise, at home and overseas, after the war.' Also to appoint a committee for the purpose of taking the necessary steps to approach the Home Government and the Governments of the Dominions thereon."

The council has nominated Mr. Herbert E. Easton, the hon. secretary of the British Immigration League, as a member of the committee which has been formed to deal with the subject. The longer the war lasts the greater the number there will be for whom homes and occupation will have to be found. This being the case Mr. Easton has been requested to bring the matter under the notice of the respective Australian Governments, in order that steps may be immediately taken to secure lands suitable for such settlements.

MET IN A TRAIN.

NOVEL SEPARATION CASE.

PERTH, Tuesday.

A separation case possessing novel features occupied the attention of Mr. Justice Rooth at the Supreme Court yesterday.

The parties to the suit were Alma Victoria Kathleen Thomas, 19 years of age, and Joseph William Thomas, 70 years of age.

The evidence showed that Mrs. Thomas met her husband by chance in a Bunbury train at Perth. Thomas got into conversation with her, and proposed marriage to her before the train had travelled 18 miles. The girl at first laughed, but some days later the marriage took place in the presence of the girl's mother. The couple then took train to Serpentine. Early the next morning a disagreement arose between Thomas and his bride, and Thomas, according to Mrs. Thomas, treated her cruelly, took possession of her rings and the greater part of her wearing apparel, and then left her. Later Thomas accused his wife of having misconducted herself with a man at the hotel. Since then the parties had lived apart.

Under cross-examination petitioner admitted she had had a child, but denied that she had told respondent that she was a widow.

Respondent said that petitioner led him to believe that she was a widow with one child, and that her husband had died two months after the wedding. He denied that he had ill-treated his bride, or that he had accused her of misconduct.

Under cross-examination, he said he had married her for love. He had no money now, but in marrying him he supposed that the girl thought she had "a good haul."

His Honor reserved his decision.

AN OLD LADY'S MESSAGE.

An interesting item is reported from Victoria. Mrs. M. Mudge, one of the workers for the Tallangatta branch of the Red Cross Society, is over 80 years of age but does the most skilful knitting. At a recent meeting of the branch four pairs of socks knitted by this member were received, and the work aroused such admiration among the ladies present that a special vote of thanks was passed to Mrs. Mudge, and she was asked to put her name and a message to the soldiers in the socks. She did not give her name, but sent the following message:—"Knitted by an old woman over 80, who admires the brave men who have gone to the front to fight for us all."

SIX SONS FIGHTING.

It was reported in the "Herald" a few days ago that a South Australian resident, Mr. Ernest Wheeler, had six sons at the front, and this was thought to be an Empire record. Miss Shields, matron of the Renwick Hospital for Infants, mentioned yesterday that her uncle, Dr. Gowans, of Westhoe House, Westhoe, England, could also claim a similar record, as he had the whole of his six sons at present in the fighting line.

THE WAR.

THE CASE FOR POLAND.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Will you permit us to say a few words in reply to the letter signed "Historicus," appearing in your issue of Saturday? With the first part of this letter, to the effect that Australians should help the Belgians, Servians, etc., we cordially agree, and may say that nearly all those helping the Belgians figure on the subscription lists for the Belgians, Servians, etc. They deem it only their duty to help the heroic and suffering victims of this war, and amongst them we include the Poles, who have nearly a million men fighting for the Allies, and consequently for us, and whose country has been devastated and become a sacrifice. In regard to the second part of "Historicus's" letter, we beg leave to differ. There is no difficulty or complexity in regard to the Polish Relief Fund. It is intended for the Poles of Russian Poland (above referred to), and for whom a fund has been started in Warsaw, and who for the purposes of this fund are quite distinct from anyone in Germany or Austria. The great violinist Paderewski's cable appealing to the farmers of Australia for help means that the German hordes had tramped four times across Russian Poland, destroying the farmers' crops, and robbing the population of their all, thus rendering 10,000,000 people homeless and destitute. The Russian Government fighting, as it is, against Germany, Austria, and Turkey, along a battle front of a thousand miles, and with millions of wounded and refugees to be provided for, cannot render adequate assistance; hence the appeal to the Allied nations for help. Unfortunately the Polish community in Sydney is small, and not wealthy, hence the need of the charitable to rally to their help. After what has been said, perhaps it is hardly necessary to say more, but an additional guarantee is found in the fact that the Government is subsidising the Polish Fund £ for £. All money subscribed to this fund is being forwarded through the Russian Embassy to the fund in Warsaw. Trusting that you will give this matter publicity in the name of humanity, seeing that otherwise the letter of "Historicus" may prejudice help being given to those sorely in need, we are, etc.,

LAWN TENNIS.

STATE CHAMPIONSHIP TOURNAMENT.

MORE HONOURS FOR MISS STEWART.

The New South Wales lawn tennis championship tournament was continued yesterday in perfect weather and on greatly improved courts. The challenge pairs competition furnished the best contests of the day, the final and challenge rounds being most attractive displays. In the former A. B. Jones and Miss Stewart met E. Jordan and Miss Addison. They won the first set easily enough, and had a slight lead at the outset of the second, but Jordan and Miss Addison then gave better opposition, due to a certain extent to Jordan intercepting more frequently. With one set all, a great struggle ensued for the third. The Victorian ladies played superbly, Miss Stewart making extraordinary recoveries, while Miss Addison placed to perfection. It was interesting to watch Jones and Jordan manoeuvring to get in to finish the rests. After "games all" had been called the match see-sawed, each pair having the advantage game more than once, but Jones and Miss Stewart ultimately won after 20 games had been played.

In the challenge round against J. O. Anderson and Mrs. Ford, Jones and Miss Stewart had another severe trial, the scores closely resembling those of the former match, and again the luck of Jones and Miss Stewart stuck to them, or rather they again demonstrated their greatness in a time of crisis, for they won on the third set, after the holders had gone very close to winning. In this match they had opponents who adopted different tactics from those employed by Jordan and Miss Addison, for Anderson and Mrs. Ford were usually at the net at the same time, whereas Miss Addison had remained principally at the back of the court. To meet the altered formation, Jones and Miss Stewart employed the lob to a large extent. Miss Stewart again amazed the spectators by her remarkable saves when running at top speed.

Miss Stewart and Mrs. Ford had only a short rest before they came out to oppose each other in the ladies' doubles championship, Miss Stewart being partnered by Miss Addison, and Mrs. Ford by Miss Collings. These pairs have met repeatedly, the Victorians usually winning, and they added another victory yesterday. It seemed that the match would be very one-sided when the Victorian pair won the first set at 6-1, after being within an inch of gaining a love set, but Mrs. Ford and Miss Collings infused more vigour into their game in the second set, which they only lost to four games. The championship round had then to be played by Misses Addison and Stewart against Mrs. McArthur and Miss Schlesinger. It seemed unlikely that the match would be completed, as it was late when it began, but Misses Addison and Stewart tried hard to win. They took the first sets quite easily, to judge by the score, but not altogether so by the play. Mrs. McArthur and Miss Schlesinger did better in the second set, but the light failed rapidly. They went on till Misses Addison and Stewart led at 4-3, with the moon shining brightly. At this stage the umpire, who alone has power to postpone on account of failure of light, declared it was too dark to see the ball, and the match was discontinued. It was the right course to take as it would have been a burlesque of the game to continue in such darkness.

No definite result was arrived at in the singles championship. The tie between A. B. Jones and L. Todd was postponed, and Marsh, after losing the first two sets to J. O. Anderson, made one of the characteristic recoveries that brought him two sets, when the failure of light necessitated a cessation of play.

TRADES HALL.

A LARGE SUM OF MONEY STOLEN.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

A robbery was committed after midnight last night at the Trades Hall, Rathdown-street, Carlton, within a hundred yards of the city watchhouse and detective office. The whole of the money received (about £400) from yesterday's Eight-hour demonstration at the Exhibition Building, was stolen from a tin trunk in the office of the secretary, Mr. John Hyman.

The thief or thieves obtained entrance to the Trades Hall through a window of the Amalgamated Carpenters' Union office on the ground floor, and went upstairs to Mr. Hyman's office. Access to this room was gained through a fanlight over the door, which was forced by a jemmy. The tin trunk was forced open, and the money, which was largely in silver, was tipped apparently into a receptacle and removed. An iron safe in the office, which contained about £1000, was not touched. The money was brought from the exhibition last night at 11 o'clock by Mr. Hyman and four others, and their movements must have been watched.

STOLEN ART TREASURES.

LONDON, April 26.

Moss, the owner of an old manor-house at Chiswick, which was raided by the police some time ago, and where £100,000 worth of stolen art treasures were recovered, has been sentenced to three years' imprisonment.

The seizure was described as the most extensive in police annals. Sixteen rooms were found to be filled with a marvellous collection of rare gold, silver, and bronze ornaments, beautiful china, and pictures. The pictures included several by Reynolds. The arrest of three men for stealing plate at Kennington led to the discovery of the stolen articles. The occupier of the house was engaged in the muffin business.

ISSUE OF BONDS.

LONDON, April 26.

In regard to the reported issue by New Zealand of £300,000 4 per cent. bonds, it is stated there will be no public issue of New Zealand stock. The transaction is purely private.

The "Daily Mail" writes that apparently the New Zealand loan at 4 per cent. will be put on top, the market taking a minimum of £200,000 at a price which will allow it to be retailed at 96½. If investors want more they will get more.

FINANCIAL.

BANK OF AUSTRALASIA.

The report of the above bank for the half-year ended October 12, to hand by the mail, shows a net profit of £220,509, which with £94,066 brought forward, made £314,575 available. A dividend at the rate of 14 per cent. per annum, or £2 16s per share, and a bonus of 3 per cent. per annum, or 12s per share, absorb £170,000, a sum of £20,000 is carried to the reserve, making it £2,710,000, and £10,000 is allotted to the reduction of the bank premises account, leaving £114,575 to be carried forward. A noteworthy feature is that premises, which formerly stood at the purely nominal amount of £2241, are now put down at £142,288. The following comparison may be made:—

ILLAWARRA STEAM.

A dividend at the rate of 7½ per cent. per annum absorbs £2812, and £707 is carried forward. The following comparison of accounts may be made:—

SEAHAM COLLIERY.

In its report for the year ended March 31, the above company shows a net profit of £15,910. An interim dividend at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum paid in November absorbed £4750, leaving £11,160, which, with £3749 brought forward from the previous year, made £14,909 available. From this, it is proposed to transfer £5000 to the reserve account, and to pay a dividend at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum, absorbing £4750, leaving £5159 to be carried forward. Considerable expenditure will be necessary in the near future in connection with ventilation. Trade for the first part of the financial year was satisfactory, but the effect of the war was to reduce greatly the demand for coal for the foreign trade. In addition, restrictions upon the export of coal, together with great increase in freights, made it impossible to retain trade in competition with local collieries in Chili, whilst in Java and the Philippines business formerly done with Newcastle has reverted to Japanese mines. Capital stands at £190,000. The reserve and contingency account is £75,352, and sundry creditors are down at £16,637. On the other side of the ledger mine property, plant, and rolling stock is valued at £256,173, and coal stocks, etc., at £4561. Sundry debtors owe the company £18,658, fixed deposits amount to £7500, and cash amounts to £4664.

The annual general meeting of the company was held yesterday, when Mr. C. C. Stephen occupied the chair. The report and balance sheet were adopted; Messrs. C. C. Stephen, E. Northcote, and J. R. Brown were re-elected directors, and Mr. A. R. Harwood was re-elected auditor.

AERATED BREAD CO., LTD.

The report of the above company covers the six months ended March 31. It states that the business was adversely affected by the war, and though expenses were further reduced by £1100, the net profit was £370 lower. The high prices ruling for all the principal products used by the company, together with the decreased takings, fully account for the reduction in profits. The mortgage on the new factory was reduced by £500 during the half-year. The net profit amounted to £8 only, which with the amount brought forward made £461 available, which it is proposed to carry forward. The following comparison may be made:—

In consequence of the death of Sir William Manning a vacancy has occurred in the directorate of the Australian Bank of Commerce, and at a meeting of the board yesterday Mr. George Frederick Tudman was unanimously elected a director.

BUTTER PRICES.

GROCERS' PROTEST.

THE QUESTION OF QUALITY.

The secretary of the N.S.W. Retail Grocers' Association (Mr. E. F. New) has addressed the following letter to the secretary of the Necessary Commodities Commission:—

"Sir,—We notice from the press reports that at the sitting of the Necessary Commodities Commission yesterday Mr. C. E. D. Meares, in giving evidence, made a statement that 'when supplies were short grocers and others sold the lower-grade butters at the higher prices,' and, again, that 'it was desired that a maximum price of butter only should be fixed, and not a tariff dealing with the several grades.'

"Unfortunately, the retailers were not aware of this application to the commission, and were not present to hear the statements being made, but we take this opportunity of strongly protesting against the first statement, which is really an ex-parte statement of an interested party, and we would like an opportunity of giving evidence before the commission.

"We certainly think that the claim for the fixing of a maximum price only is not in the interests of either retailers or the public, and that before any definite action is taken in this we would respectfully request that some further evidence be heard on the matter.

"In support of this latter statement, if the request were granted a position would arise whereby the sellers could demand the maximum fixed price for any grade of butter whatever, and as they are circularising their clients that they are unable to meet all butter requirements, the local buyer would be in the position of having to accept whatever was offered him. Again, there is the point to be remembered of the factory which endeavours to make a high-class butter. Their efforts would be nullified, because the lower grades would—it is almost certain—be sold under the conditions asked for at practically the same price as the very choicest. We trust that the commission will not deal definitely with these matters until a chance is offered to us of placing the other side of the case before its members."

Mr. E. F. New wishes everybody interested in the retail butter trade—grocers, butter men, milk men, smallgoods sellers—to be present at the inquiry into the cartage and box charges which is to be made by the Necessary Commodities Commission this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

COMMERCIAL.

THE MARKETS.

A fair business was reported from the country in groceries, but between houses the market was stagnant. Complaint continued to be made of the increasing scarcity of many lines. Besides those previously advised, the scarce lines included medium sizes of Holbrook's sauce, Holbrook's vinegar, Portuguese sardines, and Colman's starch. Some relief will be given when the sailing vessel St. Rogatien arrives. Morton's epsom salts were sold at 20/ per cwt, almost double the normal price. The price has been raised to almost the same extent on the English market. Wax matches were scarce at 4/, and safeties were sold at 6/, with a weakening tendency. It was still possible to obtain whiting at 110/ per cwt, but generally 10/ more was asked. Dried fruits and canned fruits were steady at late rates.

Eastern produce was quiet. The difficulty concerning freights not only delays shipment of goods which have already been bought, but also actually prevents the purchase of merchandise, because, while the position is uncertain, merchants are afraid to operate. They buy only what they believe they are certain to ship. Rice was steady at the rates ruling for months past. Tapiocas were unchanged. Nutmegs were cabled slightly firmer, but not sufficiently so to advance the local price. Coffee was a little firmer. In the course of the fortnight Java coffees have risen 23/ a ton. Freight on coffee from Aden now costs a fraction over a half-penny a pound.

Oatmeals were slow. Millers were simply supplying their customers. They were not pushing trade, because they would lose heavily. With oats at the present high rates, the position is obscure. The same remark applies to cornflour; maize being worth 5/11 to 6/, with the tendency still upward. Bulk cornflour was advanced 30/ per ton, selling at £26/10/ per ton. Packet cornflour was unaltered.

The tea market was quiet, because there was little tea to be obtained. A letter from Calcutta received by the mail dated March 29 stated that stocks everywhere were getting very small, and the writers predicted by the end of July an unusual shortage of all growths. New season's teas, it was added, would be on the market in some quantity by the middle of May, and the opening sale would take place on June 1. Shipments, which were being made at the date of writing, had advanced 1d per lb since the time of purchase in Calcutta.

Linseed oil, though without quotable change in distributing rates, was rather easier, because of the prohibition of export to foreign countries enforced by the British Government. Some holders were nervous, more especially as they had bought forward, for May-June shipment, at a price higher than the present spot price. Whitelead was steady, but redlead was dearer, as much as £41 being asked for best brands. A little was done in Norwegian and Newfoundland cod oil at an advance of 3d—2/9 per gallon. Japanese was without alteration at 2/3. Morrison's Stockholm tar was 6d lower at 6/ per drum. Creosote was plentiful, and no difficulty was experienced in buying at 1/9 in casks. Rosin oil was advanced £3 per ton to £30 for pale. Whale oil was worth 2/6.

In manufactures of metal, No. 8 black wire was practically off the market. No. 10 B was procurable at £13 in parcel lots, and most houses asked £13/10/ for country orders. A little was done in imported wire nettings at rates equal to the Australian-made netting.

Very little business was passing in jute fabrics, and prices were unchanged. Cornsacks were quoted at 6/6, branbags at 5/2, and woolpacks at 3/4, all net to rails. Advices from Calcutta stated that mills had covered their requirements of raw jute to June 30, after which date the new crop should normally be available. It looked as if there would be a carry-over of from 4,000,000 to 5,000,000 bales. Sowings from the new crop had commenced, and reports from the districts showed that the agriculturists did not intend to reduce the area under jute this year. The weather generally was ideal.

BREADSTUFFS.

Flour was quoted at £11/17/6; bran at £7/10/, and pollard at £8 a ton.

At Darling Harbour yesterday 8 tons of wheat and 45 tons of flour were manifested to arrive.

PRODUCE.

DAIRY.

NEW LAID EGGS 2/7.

Supplies of eggs yesterday were again very small, and agents were able to secure from 2/6 to 2/7 a dozen for the best samples. The high prices which have ruled during the past week have been responsible for a marked falling off in the demand, and it is the opinion of some operators that values have reached the highest figure to which they are likely to go this season. River consignments were offered at from 1/8 to 1/10. Railways and South Coast lots brought from 1/9 to 1/10, with a few cases at 2/ a dozen.

There was no change in the proclaimed price of butter. The best brands were quoted at 126/ per cwt, delivered in boxes. In Brisbane the price is 174/, and in Melbourne 177/4 per cwt.

RAILWAY MARKET.

ALL GRADES CHEAPER.

A full yarding of produce was offered at auction to a small attendance of buyers at the railway forage and grain sales. Buyers were not in the mood to purchase extensively, and bidding was lifeless. Consequently auctioneers were forced to accept cheaper rates for produce, wheaten and oaten chaff in particular. The reduction in prices was the result of several factors, the chief of which were the large number of trucks in position, and the fact that the decision of the Necessary Commodities Commission on the question of chaff prices was still pending.

Wheaten sold from 7/9 to 10/7; the latter being obtained for a consignment from Leabeater, of Lyndhurst, whilst oaten was worth from 7/11 to 10/5. Lucerne chaff brought from 7/ to 8/8, and lucerne hay found purchasers at figures ranging from 7/8 to 9/3 (ex truck). Oaten hay realised from 7/4 to 10/7 per cwt.

Transactions were made in potatoes at prices varying from 3/2 to 4/6, and pumpkins realised from 6/4 to 7/ per cwt.

Consignments placed in position for sale:—Hay, straw chaff, 91; grain, 4; pumpkins and potatoes, 7.

VEGETABLE MARKET.

A fair amount of business was transacted at the Municipal Market yesterday at irregular prices. Tomatoes were scarce, and advanced in price. Cabbages were inclined to be firmer, because of a steady demand, but most agents quoted late rates, and reported increased supplies to arrive. Cauliflowers were almost unobtainable, and onions showed an all-round rise of £1 per ton. Potatoes suffered a drop of £1 per ton, whilst beans and peas were slow of sale.

Quotations were:—

Beetroot, 1/6; carrots, 1/3 to 1/6; celery, 2/; eschalots, 1/6; herbs, 1/6 to 2/; parsley, 2/, parsnips, 2/ to 2/6; radishes, /6; rhubarb, 2/6 to 3/; watercress, 2/ to 2/6; white turnips, /6 to 1/; spinach, 2/ per dozen bunches; beans, 4/6 to 6/6; peas, 6/ to 8/ per bushel; Hobart peas, 10/ per two-bushel bag; cabbages, 1/ to 6/; cauliflowers, 7/ to 14/; vegetable marrows, 5/ to 7/3 per dozen; rockmelons, 2/ to 5/ per case; jam melons, 2/6 per cwt; tomatoes, local, 2/ to 7/; Tasmanian, 3/ to 5/; pumpkins, local, 3/ to 12/ per dozen; onions, brown, 10/ per cwt; potatoes, Redskins, 9/; Bismarcks, 9/; Carmens, 7/, Up-to-Dates, 7/, local varieties 6/ per cwt; Swedes, 8/ per cwt.

MINING.

METAL VALUES SOUND.

SPECULATION GENERALLY QUIET.

SPELTER £58 PER TON.

The most attractive feature about the market yesterday was the information circulated early in the morning that private cables announced the London metal market closed on Monday with values strongly on the up-grade.

This was confirmed by a cable message from our London correspondent, despatched from London at the close of Monday's metal market. The figures, published in the commercial columns of this issue, show that the prices of metals in all sections were exceedingly sound. Even metallic tin, which has wobbled on the easy side for some days past, has regained strength for "spot" transactions, whilst, what is still more important, the three months' quotation shows even greater strength.

As to the "spot" price of standard copper—£79/12/6 to £79/17/6, and the three months' price at £81 to £81/5/—a prominent speculator remarked: "The smelter who cannot make a good profit at those figures ought to close his furnaces down." On four occasions only during the last 20 years has standard copper sold higher than its present price of £79/17/6. That was in 1905, when it reached £81 per ton, in 1906 £109/10/, in 1907 £112, and in 1912 £80/3/9. The other side of the picture shows that in those 20 years the lowest price at which standard copper sold was £45/2/6 per ton in 1902, £47 in 1887 and 1901, and at £49 in 1914.

The position of affairs as regards spelter is even more satisfactory in the case of the Barrier mines, for spelter has moved up £4/10/ per ton to the unprecedented figure of £57/10/. The highest price recorded during the past three years was as follows:—

1915 (to-day)	£58/0/0

For some time past such large spelter producers as the Zinc Corporation and the Amalgamated Zinc (De Bavays) have based their profits on the assumption that the price of spelter stood at £22 per ton, whereas to-day the actual selling price of the metal is more than double that figure. The Mount Morgan Company has also, for some time, estimated the value of its monthly output on the basis of copper selling at £55 per ton, whereas to-day standard copper is quoted at £79 17s 6d, or £24 17s 6d per ton more than the price taken into consideration when estimating the value of the monthly output by the leviathan.

Those interested in tin ventures likewise have no cause to complain, for the trend of the metal market is on the firm side. True, tin is subject to big fluctuations, but those conversant with the tin market are confident that, despite these fluctuations, the end of the year will see the price of tin still higher than it is now.

Whilst it cannot be said the Exchange reflected the improved tone of the London metal market, in the direction of increased speculation, it was clear that the soundness of metal values was greatly appreciated by scrip-holders. They quoted firmly, and their refusal to write down prices was largely the cause of the restricted business done.

MINING NOTES.

The manager of the Tyrconnell gold mine (Q.) wires that for the fortnight ended Monday, April 26, 135 tons were crushed for 186oz. This result is exclusive of concentrates and tailings.

For the week ended April 24 the Mount David tunnel was extended 14ft to 245ft, in much the same character of country as before. A change coming in shows a much stronger formation of quartz leaders. The gold values from borings and dolly keep about the same average. As to the reef mentioned in the last report, the manager finds it impossible to break into the walls of the tunnel while driving the same, so will postpone the driving on the said reef till later on.

A dividend of 1/ per share has been declared by Harrietville Star Bucket Dredging Company, payable on May 11. The A1 Gold Mines has declared a dividend of 1/ per share and a bonus of 2/ per share, payable on May 10.

The Brilliant Block Company (C.T.) reports a crushing of 180 tons of ore, for gold valued at £369.

HAWKINS' HILL MINING.

BATHURST, Tuesday.

At the Amalgamated Hill End Company's property considerable development work is being carried out. The tributers on Phillipson's Reef are taking out a payable crushing. A number of small shows are still working, and Government aid is being received by same. The Hawkins' Hill Reward mine is still running its mill continuously with payable results. Last month's crushing gave 239 ounces. The principal work is being carried out at the 200ft and 240ft intermediate levels. In the north and south ends of the intermediate level, and in the 200ft level going north there is a big make of payable stone. Stoping is in progress at the 323ft level. Operations are continuing in a southerly direction on Frenchman's leaders, which look well.

The Minister for Mines will visit Hill End next month to receive a deputation from local mining men.

KAMPONG KAMUNTING TIN DREDGING.

The managing director's report for month of March states:—"The erection of the dredge has been completed, except for the installation of the electric lighting plant, and a start to work was made on March 27. Up to the close of the month very little was done beyond starting to open up a paddock by daylight, and it will yet be some weeks before any useful information as to results and recoveries can be obtained. The machinery is working well, and after the lighting system is ready the dredge should begin to run continuously."

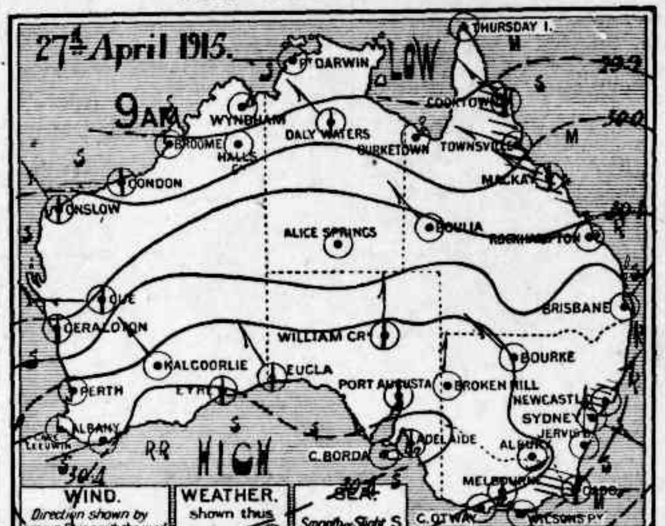
AUSTRALIAN WEATHER.

THE "HERALD" MAP.



Practically no change has taken place in the pressure distribution since Monday, with the exception of the two isobars extending further north-eastward. This expansion probably accounts for the cessation of the southerly blows, and the small quantity of rain received on the North Coast. The centre of the high pressure is still over the Bight, but has contracted a great deal during the 24 hours ended at 9 a.m. yesterday.

The tropical depression is at present between Norfolk Island and the northern part of New Zealand, but so far has not affected either place.

Slight monsoonal dips are shown in the northern isobars of the "high" over Western Australia and Queensland.

At present the prospects are for fine weather generally, with cold frosty nights, and pleasant days, with south-westerly winds.

Ocean Forecast.—Fresh south-easterly winds on Central and North Queensland coast; elsewhere smooth to moderate.

PERFECT TONE IN THE WEBER PIANO.
PERFECT TONE IN THE WEBER PIANO.
The FAMOUS ENGLISH WEBER PIANO is a perfect example of the Piano-maker's art. Some Pianos are noted for brilliancy of tone; some for richness or mellowness, but in the WEBER the happy combination of these qualities, together with its sympathetic singing tone and wonderful carrying power, make it the ideal instrument for the discriminating Piano-buyer.
The Weber Pianola Piano is a combination of the genuine Pianola with this famous English piano, playable either by hand or roll. Recitals daily.

WOOD FOR WINTER.

CHOP IT! SAW IT!

HERE ARE THE TOOLS.

Whether you chop or whether you saw, you need a good sharp tool to work with. There's a feeling of satisfaction, of increased efficiency, when the saw rips fast and free—a feeling of pleasure when the chips fly merrily as the axe bites deeper and deeper, and the wood pile grows——

Yes, you need GOOD TOOLS, Saws and Axes such as those at

NOCK AND KIRBY'S NOTED LOW PRICES.

HUNTERS' HATCHETS, for campers, rabbiters, and domestic use, 1/9, 2/ each.

CLAW HATCHETS, 2/3 each.

AXES THAT COUNT—THE "KELLY" AND THE "PLUMB."

THE FAMOUS "KELLY" AXE.—Perfect in shape, superb in balance, superior in temper. Its name is one to conjure with anywhere. Made of solid steel and hand-hammered, it has the scientifically correct ridge blade which is so easy to sharpen. Then there is the "taper eye" which binds the handle to the head. "A pleasure to swing and a terror to trees." 4/9 each.

THE CELEBRATED "PLUMB" AXE.—Forged outright from one piece of high-grade steel, it is altogether free from the faults of ordinary axes—has twice the efficiency, lasts twice as long, and only costs a little bit more. The steel in the eye and body is stiff and tough, while a special tempering treatment for nearly two inches above the cutting edge gives a steel capable of taking (and maintaining) a sharp, fast-cutting edge. 4/9 each.

'Phones: City 6600 (six lines).

"REX" HAM PATE,

close them together over crisp, crinkly lettuce or green sprigs of fresh watercress. Then—Taste the Taste.

It's one of those hankering tastes, that you can't seem to get enough of; for it's the taste of good boiled ham flavoured with salt and sugar and hickory smoke.

We cook it en casserole, to keep in all the delicious "Rex" Ham flavour. Then we grind it up fine, and mix it with the special Rex Seasoning of spices, and pass the taste right on to you in handy little cans that keep it ever fresh.

THE HOUSE OF DISTINCTION.

IMPORTANT EXHIBITION OF DISTINGUISHED STYLES.
VALUES THAT ARE UNRIVALLED.

The love of Furs is natural to every woman, therefore this display of latest models in Fur Coats should prove interesting. The quality and beauty of the skins, the distinctive cut and splendid workmanship, are a delight to all who inspect them. Our values are particularly keen owing to fortunate purchases before the commencement of war. The Market rates for Furs have since considerably advanced, and this is all the more reason why our values should be taken advantage of.

CONEY SEAL COATS.

A splendid feature of the exhibition is the showing of Coney Seal Coats. This class of skins is very scarce, and our assortment is fortunately very large; other Coats are of Musquash, Squirrel, etc. You are cordially invited to attend our Fur Department to examine the Coats.

After years of daily use the "Perfection Heater" will be still as good as ever.

SPECIAL CONTINENTAL PURCHASE OF

LADIES' AND CHILDREN'S GLOVES AT GRACE BROS.'

OUR GLOVE DEPARTMENT announces a Special Purchase of Gloves, secured by our Home Buyer whilst on the Continent recently. He states that many of the Glove Manufacturers in Grenoble and other parts of France are compelled to sacrifice their stock of skins owing to scarcity of labour. This sacrificing of price means a great loss to the Glove Manufacturer, but to the shopping public an economical advantage.

This Special Purchase will be on view in our Ladies' Glove Department, and those who have Glove needs to satisfy should avail themselves of the prices which are far below those prevailing at the present time.

Below we quote a few special lines from our GLOVE PURCHASE.
